INDONESIA IS QUITTING U. N. IN PROTEST OVER MALAYSIA

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Indonesia announced Saturday it is canceling its membership in the United Nations despite a personal appeal by Secretary-General U Thant to President Sukarno for reconsideration.

The Indonesian U.N. delegation, headed by Ambassador Lambertus N. Palar, worked on what amounted to a document of divorce for incompatibility because of the seating of Malaysia on the Security Council.

Malaysia is a British-backed anti-Communist federation that Sukarno has been trying to crush with a trade boycott, propaganda and guerrilla incursions ever since it was founded 16 months ago.

The U.N. Charter makes no provision for resignation of a member and if Indonesia gets out it will be the first in the organization's 20-year history.

"Indonesia no longer considers itself a member of the United Nations," a member of the mission told newsmen.

Various members have threatened in the past to pull out. These include South Africa, harassed at every General Assembly session about segregation policies, has been campaigning lately to picture himself as the leader of the world's new emerging forces struggling against the old established forces.

In line with this he professes to see the United Nations as an outdated tool of reactionary elements and one that should be revamped to conform with the world as he says it exists today.

A member of Thant's cabinet said, "We must regard them as out. There is no way to stop their leaving."

Indonesian sources said formal notification will be handed "perhaps Monday" to the president of the General Assembly.

With an Indonesian pullout, Palar and 11 other members of his staff would lose their diplomatic status as members of the Indonesian mission to the United Nations. Their special parking privileges and other diplomatic immunities in the United States under a headquarters agreement between the United States and the United Nations probably will be canceled after a grace period.

Indonesia has been a member of 13 U.N. specialized agencies, such as the World Health Organization and UNESCO. Its future in these organizations remains a question mark.

Britain Rushes More Troops To Malaysia

LONDON (AP) — Britain rushed a top army commander and troop reinforcements to Southeast Asia Saturday against the possibility of new attacks on Malaysia from Idonesia.

Gen. Sir James Cassels, who takes over soon as chief of the general staff — the nation's top army post — flew to Malaysia to take a first-hand look at the situation there.

At the same time 1,000 paratroopers and infantrymen were being airlifted tc beef up the 10,000 troops already taking part in operations to fight off Indonesia's "crush Malaysia" campaign.

Fear of New Indonesian attacks on Malaysia brought Prime Minister Harold Wilson hurrying back to London from a weekend rest in the Scilly Isles to confer with military and political advisers.

The crisis took a new turn with the news that Indonesian President Sukarno intends to take his country out of the United Nations in protest against Malaysia's election to the Security Council.

In addition to flying troops to Malaysia Britain took immediate steps to boost her sea and air power in Southeast Asia.

Six ships from the Singapore "mothball" reserve are to be taken out to reinforce the 80 vessels of what is now Britain's largest operational single fleet cruising in Southeast Asian waters.

The six new vessels are four minesweepers and two coastal defense boats. Their crews will

Indonesia Still Bound to Peace, U.S. Officials Say'

WASHINGTON (AP) —U.S officials said Saturday that if Indonesia quits the United Nations she will still be bound under international law not to use force against another country, and the United Nations is obligated to keep nonmembers from disrupting international peace.

They also said Indonesia has a right to pull out, but if she does, she probably could not get back in without going through the regular admission process requiring an okay from the Security Council and the General Assembly.

For the record, the State Department was making no comment on President Sukarno's threat to quit the world organization in protest against the seating of Malaysia on the Security Council.

Sukarno has pursued a militantly hostile policy toward his newly independent Asian neighbor, and Britain is sending in reinforcements to protect its former colony from Indonesian invaders. Washington also opposes the Sukarno policy and has been aiding Malaysia.

U.S. sources suggested privately that Sukarno would be hurting himself more than anybody else if he does leave the world organization.

They said the smaller powers are the ones which often have most to gain from U.N. membership and that the United Nations is important because of who is in it, not who is outside.

They expressed doubt that an Indonesian pullout would touch off a rash of departures by other countries.

Gifts Showered on First Baby of Year, John Allen Orth, in Colorado Springs

Because John Allen Orth and the new year arrived within minutes of each other, he and his proud parents are in for a lot of happy surprises.

John was born at 12:12 a.m. Friday at St. Francis Hospital, which makes him the first baby born here in 1965 and the clear winner of the "baby derby".

Baby John is the first child of John Orth, 21, and Sandra Lee Orth, 17, who live at 2711 Gunnison St. Papa John is employed by the A-1 Janitorial Service. The couple came to Colorado Springs about a year ago from Nebraska.

Although fame and fortune accompanied his arrival into the world, young John seems pretty blase about it all, and answers reporters' questions with a yawn and photographers' flashbulbs with a distinct scowl. It is obvious that all the excitement doesn't impress him at all, and he would much rather do things like sleep and eat, a lot more fun for a guy only two days old who weighs 7 lbs. 12 ounces.

The baby and his parents will receive a shower of gifts, the bounty of the 17th annual "baby derby" presented by the Gazette-Telegraph and the merchants of Colorado Springs.

Three savings accounts wait for Baby John: $10 compliments of the Pikes Peak National Bank, 2418 W. Colorado Ave.; $5 plus a baby book savings bank from the Northern National Bank, 220 E. Fillmore St.; and $10 compliments of Don Esch, 522 S. Tejon St.

Gift certificates in the amount of $10 each will be presented to the baby and his parents from

ARIN, Calif, (AP) — Sky diver Rod Pack says he leaped out of a plane at 14,600 feet Friday without a parachute.

He rode safely to earth, he says, on a parachute handed to him by a fellow sky diver who followed him out of the plane — and caught up with him 4,000 feet below.

Pack, 26, a movie stuntman, said it was a first in aerial daredevitry and added: "They claimed it couldn't be done, but we proved differently."

The pilot of the chartered plane confirmed Pack's account. So did two-sky-diving photographers who said they followed Pack's descent and took movies and still pictures of the feat.

Pack, a blond ex-carpenter who took up sky diving because "floating around in the air has a thrill of its own," told how he thought up the stunt more than a year ago: "You always hear somebody joking abou jumping out of a plane without a parachute. Then I got to thinking, "why couldn't it be done."

He and his sky-diving buddy, North Hollywood carpenter Bob Allen, 25, made a few practice jumps, passing back and forth the light-weight reserve chute that saved Pack on Friday.

Friday they and the two photographers circled at 14,600 feet over a plowed field, a sky dive's drop zone about 80 miles northwest of Hollywood.

Then, Pack said, he jumped out, wearing a parachute harness but no chute. It was his 534th jump as a sky diver.

"I flared out, lying on my stomach with my feet and arms out, grabbing as much air as possible to slow me down"

President Khan Of Pakistan Wins Election

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan Saturday was returned as president for a five-year term. He scored victories in nearly every corner of the country he has ruled for the past six years.

The inauguration March 22 will install the former soldier and nation's leader for another five years in a term already the longest in Pakistan's brief history.

The elections were Ayub's biggest test since he seized power in a bloodless generals' coup seven years ago.

Two Southern Demos Stripped Of Seniority

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats by a secret vote of 157 to 115 Saturday stripped all seniority rights from two of their Southern colleagues who openly supported Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater for the presidency.

The action taken in party caucus sent Rep. John Bell Williams of Mississippi from the No. 2 position on the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee to the bottom of the list in seniority, even behind newly elected members.

It also sent Rep. Albert W. Watson of South Carolina to the bottom of the same committee. Watson had only two years of House service and was a low ranked member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Lost in the shuffle was a substitute plan which would merely have served notice that in the future any Democrat who supported the presidential nominee of another party would lose all party standing. A technicality blocked a vote on this substitute.

No attempt was made to read the two Southerners entirely out of the party.

The decision to take the vote by secret ballot was approved by an apparently unanimous voice vote after both Williams and Watson had defended their action as a matter of principle.

Williams has ranked fifth among the 15 Democrats on the District of Columbia Committee and will lose that spot as well.

Town Proves It Can Get Out of Debt

BASTROP, La. (AP) — This northeast Louisiana city of 16,000 enjoyed unique status today. It doesn't owe anybody any money for the first time in 44 years.

City officials said Bastrop is the only city in the state — and one of a very few in the nation — that stands free of debt.

Rescue Operations Stalled By Swirling Snowstorm

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A swirling snowstorm stalled relief operations in flood-stricken northern California Saturday in a new round of weather misery tht has plagued the Far West for two weeks.

Officials in Yreka, Calif., feared the snow would turn to rain and cause new flooding in communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers near the Oregon line.

The weather bureau issued a travelers warning for occasional heavy snow and strong winds through Saturday night. Forecaster R. C. Crooks said snow probably will change to showers Sunday, "but I don't believe there will be any serious melting condition."

There appeared to be no letup in sight in the harsh weather that has caused 42 deaths and more than $700 million damage in the Far West since the weekend before Christmas. President Johnson declared flood-stricken Idaho a disaster area Friday, in addition to California and Oregon.

Saturday's snowstorm grounded all but one of 100 military and civilian helicopter pilots who have been flying food, medicine and fuel oil into isolated California communities in Del Norte, Humboldt and Siskiyou counties.

The only pilot reported flying this morning was Bob Young, a Ketchikan, Alaska, bush pilot. He flew into remote Sawyers Bar in the rugged Salmon Mountains Saturday and, with district ranger Al Groncki at his side, skimmed his pontoon-equipped 'copter along narrow river canyons checking the condition of isolated settlers and prospectors.

Trucks attempted Saturday to take supplies over flood-damaged roads to Cecilville. From there helicopter pilots will make shuttle flights into Soames Bar, Sawyers Bar and Forks of Salm when the ceiling lifts.

A break in the weather Thursday and Friday let helicopters fly supplies into the isolated communities of some 500 persons. Now the main concern was for those hardy settlers living alone along the streams and rivers of the Klamath National Forest.

'Copter pilots flew out 55 sick and young residents of the isolated areas Thursday and Friday.

Castro Displays Russian-Built Rockets, Planes

By DANIEL HARKER

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro displayed Saturday Soviet "land-to-land missiles" and swift new reconnaissance jet planes which have been added to the array of Soviet military hardware which has made his army the strongest in Latin America.

The slender, gray rockets, about 24 feet long, rolled through Havana's streets in the military parade marking the sixth anniversary of the Castro revolution.

The new jets, of an unannounced type, screamed low overhead as announcers said they were capable of guarding the Cuban coasts day and night.

A Cuban television announcer said the missiles had been acquired by Cuba "through the brotherly help of the Soviet Union."

But at the same time, Castro declared "We do not need to ask anybody to loan us their brains, their heroism or their revolutionary colors."

In his annual speech, Castro said Cuba will keep its political

Jupiter's Moon Linked To Mystery Radio Waves

BOULDER (AP) — A breakthrough in the study of Jupiter, the largest and second brightest of the planets was disclosed here today.

The discovery involved radio emissions from Jupiter which heretofore have puzzled scientists by their very sporadic nature.

George A. Dulk, a West Point graduate studying for a PhD in geophysics at the University of Colorado, had for some time been working on a theory that there was a connection between the first of Jupiter's 12 moons, called Io, and the radio wave emissions.

He felt so confident of the relationship that at a recent meeting of the American Astronomical Society in Montreal he predicted radio emissions from Jupiter would be received on earth on New Year's Eve.

On New Year's Eve, the 70 by 100-foot antenna of the High Altitude Observatory in the mountains west of Boulder picked up the low frequency waves from Jupiter as Dulk had forecast.

Dr. James W. Warwick, chairman of the department of geophysics at the university under whom Dulk is working, said "this discovery will further develop an understanding of Jupiter's radio waves and relationship of the radio waves to the radiation belts around Jupiter."

Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, director of the National Center for Atmospheric Research here, described Dulk's work as "extremely important," and said that on the basis of this new information scientists will likely develop a theory of the source of the emissions.

Dulk's experiments showed that the first moon of Jupiter acts as a switch in turning on and off the radio waves from that planet.

Scientists Set Their Clocks by 'Atomic Time'

The atom used as the heart of the National Bureau of Standards clock here is from the chemical element, cesium—No. 55 in the atomic table. The clock is so accurate that it won't run fast or slow by more than one seconds in 3,000 years.

Scientists discovered that the atom of cesium has an unvarying beat, ticking 9-billion-plus times a second.

However, the bureau's time signals broadcast from Beltsville, Md. and Maui, Hawaii, are still clocking their impulses by time based on the earth's rotation, as is the bureau's other long wave Colorado station, WWVL.

Peking Claims Another Plane Is Shot Down

TOKYO (AP) —A Peking broadcast said Saturday Communist China had shot down an unmanned American reconnaissance aircraft flying over south-central China.

"Communist China previously shot down a similar type of plane Nov. 15" the announcement said.

It added that Red China has shot down 11 U. S.-built Chinese Nationalist planes since February 1958. It said they included three U2 planes.

The broadcast gave no further details.

In Washington, the Defense Department said it had no comment on the report.

Thirty-four accidents in the Colorado Springs area within a 36 hour period, involving 56 vehicles and an estimated $4,785 damage were reported by the State Patrol. The accidents, mostly of the fender-bender variety, also resulted in injuries to six persons, the patrol reported.

William Abila, 26, 128 N. Wahsatch Ave., suffered lacerations of the face and left hand in an accident on Janitel Road. Abila was northbound on Janitel Road at what the patrol termed "an unsafe speed" when he lost control of his vehicle on a curve. He veered off the road on the left side after skidding 140 feet and his car flipped over on its top, ending up in a narrow ditch.

In another one-car accident, Otis J. Laiche, Jr., 28, of Fountain, sustained a laceration to his forehead and minor bruises and was taken to Ft. Carson Hospital by private vehicle.

According to the report, Laiche was northbound on Interstate 25 at 8 p.m. Friday when he lost control of his vehicle on the slippery road surface. His car skidded off the road to the right, struck a guardpost and traveled 90 feet off the road unto the right shoulder.

Because John Allen Orth and the new year arrived within minutes of each other, he and his proud parents are in for a lot of happy surprises.

John was born at 12:12 a.m. Friday at St. Francis Hospital, which makes him the first baby born here in 1965 and the clear winner of the "baby derby".

Baby John is the first child of John Orth, 21, and Sandra Lee Orth, 17, who live at 2711 Gunnison St. Papa John is employed by the A-1 Janitorial Service. The couple came to Colorado Springs about a year ago from Nebraska.

Although fame and fortune accompanied his arrival into the world, young John seems pretty blase about it all, and answers reporters' questions with a yawn and photographers' flashbulbs with a distinct scowl. It is obvious that all the excitement doesn't impress him at all, and he would much rather do things like sleep and eat, a lot more fun for a guy only two days old who weighs 7 lbs. 12 ounces.

The baby and his parents will receive a shower of gifts, the bounty of the 17th annual "baby derby" presented by the Gazette-Telegraph and the merchants of Colorado Springs.

Three savings accounts wait for Baby John: $10 compliments of the Pikes Peak National Bank, 2418 W. Colorado Ave.; $5 plus a baby book savings bank from the Northern National Bank, 220 E. Fillmore St.; and $10 compliments of Don Esch, 522 S. Tejon St.

Gift certificates in the amount of $10 each will be presented to the baby and his parents from (Turn to Page A6, Column 7)

ARIN, Calif. (AP) — Sky diver Rod Pack says he leaped out of a plane at 14,600 feet Friday without a parachute.

He rode safely to earth, he says, on a parachute handed to him by a fellow sky diver who followed him out of the plane — and caught up with him 4,000 feet below.

Pack, 26, a movie stuntman, said it was a first in aerial daredevilry and added: "They claimed it couldn't be done, but we proved differently."

The pilot of the chartered plane confirmed Pack's account. So did two-sky-diving photographers who said they followed Pack's descent and took movies and still pictures of the feat.

Pack, a blond ex-carpenter who took up sky diving because "floating around in the air has a thrill of its own," told how he thought up the stunt more than a year ago: "You always hear somebody joking abou jumping out of a plane without a parachute. Then I got to thinking, "why couldn't it be done."

He and his sky-diving buddy, North Hollywood carpenter Bob Allen, 25, made a few practice jumps, passing back and forth the light-weight reserve chute that saved Pack on Friday.

Friday they and the two photographers circled at 14,600 feet over a plowed field, a sky dive's drop zone about 80 miles northwest of Hollywood.

Then, Pack said, he jumped out, wearing a parachute harness but no chute. It was his 534th jump as a sky diver.

"I flared out, lying on my stomach with my feet and arms out, grabbing as much air as possible to slow me down"

Pack, who weighs 167 pounds, wore a skin-diver belt with 30 (Turn to Page A6, Column 5)

President Khan Of Pakistan Wins Election

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan Saturday was returned as president for a five-year term. He scored victories in nearly every corner of the country he has ruled for the past six years.

The inauguration March 22 will install the former soldier and nation's leader for another five years in a term already the longest in Pakistan's brief history.

Two Southern Demos Stripped Of Seniority

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats by a secret vote of 157 to 115 Saturday stripped all seniority rights from two of their Southern colleagues who openly supported Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater for the presidency.

The action taken in party caucus sent Rep. John Bell Williams of Mississippi from the No. 2 position on the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee to the bottom of the list in seniority, even behind newly elected members.

It also sent Rep. Albert W. Watson of South Carolina to the bottom of the same committee. Watson had only two years of House service and was a low ranked member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Lost in the shuffle was a substitute plan which would merely have served notice that in the future any Democrat who supported the presidential nominee of another party would lose all party standing. A technicality blocked a vote on this substitute.

No attempt was made to read the two Southerners entirely out of the party.

The decision to take the vote by secret ballot was approved by an apparently unanimous voice vote after both Williams and Watson had defended their action as a matter of principle.

Williams has ranked fifth among the 15 Democrats on the District of Columbia Committee and will lose that spot as well.

Williams has been in the (Turn to Page A6, Column 1)

Town Proves It Can Get Out of Debt

BASTROP, La. (AP) — This northeast Louisiana city of 16,000 enjoyed unique status today. It doesn't owe anybody any money for the first time in 44 years.

The last of Bastrop's bonded indebtedness was paid off with the end of 1964.

City officials said Bastrop is the only city in the state — and one of a very few in the nation — that stands free of debt.

Rescue Operations Stalled By Swirling Snowstorm

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A swirling snowstorm stalled relief operations in flood-stricken northern California Saturday in a new round of weather misery tht has plagued the Far West for two weeks.

Officials in Yreka, Calif., feared the snow would turn to rain and cause new flooding in communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers near the Oregon line.

The weather bureau issued a travelers warning for occasional heavy snow and strong winds through Saturday night. Forecaster R. C. Crooks said snow probably will change to showers Sunday, "but I don't believe there will be any serious melting condition."

There appeared to be no letup in sight in the harsh weather that has caused 42 deaths and more than $700 million damage in the Far West since the weekend before Christmas. President Johnson declared flood-stricken Idaho a disaster area Friday, in addition to California and Oregon.

Saturday's snowstorm grounded all but one of 100 military and civilian helicopter pilots who have been flying food, medicine and fuel oil into isolated California communities in Del Norte, Humboldt and Siskiyou counties.

The only pilot reported flying this morning was Bob Young, a Ketchikan, Alaska, bush pilot. He flew into remote Sawyers Bar in the rugged Salmon Mountains Saturday and, with district ranger Al Groncki at his side, skimmed his pontoon-equipped 'copter along narrow river canyons checking the condition of isolated settlers and prospectors.

Trucks attempted Saturday to take supplies over flood-damaged roads to Cecilville. From there helicopter pilots will make shuttle flights into Soames Bar, Sawyers Bar and Forks of Salm when the ceiling lifts.

A break in the weather Thursday and Friday let helicopters fly supplies into the isolated communities of some 500 persons. Now the main concern was for those hardy settlers living alone along the streams and rivers of the Klamath National Forest.

'Copter pilots flew out 55 sick and young residents of the isolated areas Thursday and Friday.

Castro Displays Russian-Built Rockets, Planes

By DANIEL HARKER

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro displayed Saturday Soviet "land-to-land missiles" and swift new reconnaissance jet planes which have been added to the array of Soviet military hardware which has made his army the strongest in Latin America.

The slender, gray rockets, about 24 feet long, rolled through Havana's streets in the military parade marking the sixth anniversary of the Castro revolution.

The new jets, of an unannounced type, screamed low overhead as announcers said they were capable of guarding the Cuban coasts day and night.

A Cuban television announcer said the missiles had been acquired by Cuba "through the brotherly help of the Soviet Union."

But at the same time, Castro declared "We do not need to ask anybody to loan us their brains, their heroism or their revolutionary colors."

Jupiter's Moon Linked To Mystery Radio Waves

BOULDER (AP) — A breakthrough in the study of Jupiter, the largest and second brightest of the planets was disclosed here today.

The discovery involved radio emissions from Jupiter which heretofore have puzzled scientists by their very sporadic nature.

George A. Dulk, a West Point graduate studying for a PhD in geophysics at the University of Colorado, had for some time been working on a theory that there was a connection between the first of Jupiter's 12 moons, called Io, and the radio wave emissions.

He felt so confident of the relationship that at a recent meeting of the American Astronomical Society in Montreal he predicted radio emissions from Jupiter would be received on earth on New Year's Eve.

On New Year's Eve, the 70 by 100-foot antenna of the High Altitude Observatory in the mountains west of Boulder picked up the low frequency waves from Jupiter as Dulk had forecast.

Dr. James W. Warwick, chairman of the department of geophysics at the university under whom Dulk is working, said "this discovery will further develop an undertanding of Jupiter's radio waves and relationship of the radio waves to the radiation belts around Jupiter."

Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, director of the National Center for Atmospheric Research here, described Dulk's work as "extremely important," and said that on the basis of this new information scientists will likely develop a theory of the source of the emissions.

Dulk's experiments showed that the first moon of Jupiter acts as a switch in turning on and off the radio waves from that planet.

Scientists Set Their Clocks by 'Atomic Time'

The atom used as the heart of the National Bureau of Standards clock here is from the chemical element, cesium—No. 55 in the atomic table. The clock is so accurate that it won't run fast or slow by more than one seconds in 3,000 years.

Scientists discovered that the atom of cesium has an unvarying beat, ticking 9-billion-plus times a second.

However, the bureau's time signals broadcast from Beltsville, Md. and Maui, Hawaii, are still clocking their impulses by time based on the earth's rotation, as is the bureau's other long wave Colorado station, WWVL.

Peking Claims Another Plane Is Shot Down

TOKYO (AP) —A Peking broadcast said Saturday Communist China had shot down an unmanned American reconnaissance aircraft flying over south-central China.

"Communist China previously shot down a similar type of plane Nov. 15" the announcement said.

It added that Red China has shot down 11 U. S.-built Chinese Nationalist planes since February 1958. It said they included three U2 planes.

The broadcast gave no further details.

In Washington, the Defense Department said it had no comment on the report.

34 Auto Accidents Reported In Springs in 36-Hour Period

Thirty-four accidents in the Colorado Springs area within a 36 hour period, involving 56 vehicles and an estimated $4,785 damage were reported by the State Patrol. The accidents, mostly of the fender-bender variety, also resulted in injuries to six persons, the patrol reported.

William Abila, 26, 128 N. Wabsatch Ave., suffered lacerations of the face and left hand in an accident on Janitel Road. Abila was northbound on Janitel Road at what the patrol termed "an unsafe speed" when he lost control of his vehicle on a curve. He veered off the road on the left side after skidding 160 feet and his car flipped over on its top, ending up in a narrow ditch.

In another one-car accident, Otis J. Lajoie, Jr., 26, of Fountain, sustained a laceration to his forehead and minor bruises and was taken to Ft. Carson Hospital by private vehicle.

According to the report, Laiche was northbound on Interstate 25 at 8 p.m. Friday when he lost control of his vehicle on the slippery road surface. His car skidded off the road to the right, struck a guardpost and traveled 90 feet off the road unto the right shoulder.

A two-car accident on Colorado 1, 16 miles north of Colorado Springs, resulted in injuries to two persons

John J. Bergin, 32, 2819 N. Cascade Ave., suffered lacerations to his head and was taken to Academy Hospital. Mrs. Joseph Bergin, 32, a passenger in the Bergin vehicle, also suffered (Turn to Page A6, Column 1)

Russian Scientist Blasts Bureaucrats

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet scientist charged today that Russian bureaucrats are hamstringing this country's scientific progress.

V. V. Parin, a member of the Soviet Academy of Medical Science, complained in the Communist party newspaper Pravda that Soviet officials were timid about embarking on research projects unless they could produce guaranteed results in the foreseeable future.

His remarks suggested a sharp behind-the-scenes conflict over resources for pure scientific research between Soviet budget officials and scientists.

PRODUCTION INCREASES

SEOUL (UPI)—The Bank of (South) Korea announced Thursday this country's gross national product in 1964 totaled about $2.1 billion, an increase of 34 per cent over that of 1963.

The bank also estimated that national income during this year amounted to about $1.8 billion, an increase of 37 per cent over 1963.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, the Gazette Tele-Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholsim and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall Director — Alcoholsim Information Center, Out West Bldg. sponsored by The El Paso Council on Alcoholism.

1. Q. What can a family or employer do about a problem drinker who refuses to recognize or do something about his excessive drinking?

A. The family and or employer can do much to motivate the problem drinker if equipped with proper knowledge, facts and understanding. Creating a family or employment crisis is probably one of the best motivating factors, but only effective when done with knowledge not threats. According to the Alcoholism Foundation of Alberta, a leading authority in the field: learn the facts about alcoholism, go talk over your problems with a Counsellor at your local agency, or with an A.A. or Al-Anon member, or family Physician, Spiritual Advisor or Social worker, who has some knowledge of the illness and can understand your problem. This must be someone whose attitude towards the alcoholic is truly helpful and not merely moralistic or punishing. Alcoholism is a disease and not a disgrace, but it is disgraceful not to do something about it.

2. Q. My Father drinks constantly, abuses my Mother and the other small children in the family, what can I do about it?

A. Learn the facts about the disease your Father may be afflicted with then discuss them with your Mother and encourage her to learn them thus motivating her to motivate your Father to do something about his illness. Contact your local Al-Family Doctor, or perhaps an Alateen member (youth auxiliary of A.A.) Do it at once, do not let this continue, alcoholism is a progressive disease and conditions could get worse.

3. Q. What can I do about a Drinking Mother who covers up her drinking with my Father's military status will be affected if I disclose it as I have threatened to do?

A. Do not threaten, it accomplishes nothing as you have probably learned. Discuss the problem with your Father in an effort to enlist his aid to help he,, to motivate her to do something about her drinking. She isn't the only one using this ruse which probably is a convenient product of her imagination. Both you and your Father can help by getting facts and knowledge from your Doctor; local Information Center, State or Chaplain.

4. Q. What can I do about my husband's drinking that is interfering with his Military Career? If it continues will he lose his pension.

A. Explore the possibility that he may be a Problem drinker, get some professional aid either through your Doctor, Alcoholism Information Center, A.A., State Agency, or Chaplain. Choose the right moment to suggest to him that he seek treatment, do not talk to him about his problem unless he is completely sober. Alcohol blunts a person's ability to make decisions or carry them out. It is very important that he realize that you know he is sick and his illness can be treated. Sources of recovery are available to him. If you act now you may save him and his pension.

5. Q. My husband is an alcoholic and I've done everything I know to help him but he keeps right on drinking, what can I do?

A. You might like to check and see if you have done everything. The following from the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program might be helpful: a copy of this pamphlet giving detail explanation is available at your local alcoholism Information Center or A.A.

Five in India Sentenced for Slaying Woman

ALLAHABAD, India (AP) — Five men from a remote Indian village were sentenced today to death by hanging on charges of slaying the 60-year-old wife of an American medical missionary April 16 in a roadside attack.

The victim was Mrs. Ruby E. Nelson, native of Holly, Colo., who had been in India more than five years assisting her husband, Dr. Phillips Nelson, at the Seventh Day Adventist Church missions and hospitals.

The couple had been motoring on the west coast to catch a ship to the United States for home leave when their automobile had a flat tire. Dr. Nelson hitched a ride into Allahabad to get a new tire, leaving his wife with the car and baggage.

Dr. Nelson found his wife's slashed and beaten body near the car when he returned that night.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

'Migrating teeth' Can Be Made to Stop Wandering

"Dear Doctor: Something funny's happening to my front teeth. I'm 47 and always had pretty good teeth. Now my teeth are moving apart, and there are spaces between them. One of my teeth, the left front one next to the two middle ones, has turned half around." — MRS. G. G.

It's not uncommon for a tooth or group of teeth to change position in the jawbone. Dentists refer to this phenomenon as "migration."

While not always so, it is most often associated with a condition known a periodontosis.

Periodontosis is a tongue twister, and I just can't resist adding that it's also a tooth twister.

For about 100 years the name most used to describe diseases of the gums and of the bone that holds the teeth in the jaw was the word "pyorrhea." Treatment of pyorrhea is now so highly developed and specialized that a whole new complex vocabulary has evolved.

Roots of teeth are covered by a soft, thin pad of tissue which cushions the teeth during biting and chewing. When these pads are healthy, teeth are healthy.

When they become infected and swollen, the bone around the roots rapidly shrinks, teeth become loose, and migration takes place. Again, this is periodontosis.

Because front teeth have a single, straight root, they are not as solidly fixed in the jawbone as the many-rooted molar teeth. They are often the first teeth to be affected by migration.

The condition is easy to spot because the spaces that develop are so obvious. In molar teeth, usually the first sign of movement is getting food caught between them.

There is no adequate home treatment for pyorrhea, although good mouth care slows down the progressive destruction of gums and bone.

Expert dental treatment is necessary. Root surfaces are scraped and polished, "pyorrhea pockets" are cut away and, of prime importance in migration, the bite is so adjusted that teeth fit together in proper balance.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Conservation Leaders Slate Denver Meeting

State and national leaders in the field of natural resource conservation and management will participate in the 20th annual meeting of the Colorado Association of Soil Conservation Districts which opens in Denver Monday.

The state association represents nearly 20,000 Colorado farmers and ranchers interested in improvement and preservation of soil and water resources. It is composed of 94 soil conservation districts throughout the state, according to Ross E. Chambers, Eagle, CASCD president.

Following an address of welcome by Denver Mayor Tom Currigan, Monday's session will feature meetings of the association's 12 standing committees.

"Colorado's Stake in Natural Resources" will be the topic of a Tuesday address by R. T. Eckles, coordinator of the state division of natural resources.

Other prominent speakers at the meeting will include Evan Green, national student secretary for the Future Farmers of America, and Gordon K. Zimmerman, executive secretary, National Association of Siol and Water Conservation Districts, Washington, D.C.

During the business session Wednesday, the group is expected to revise the association's by-laws, hear committee reports and pass resolutions. The three-day meeting concludes Wednesday night with the annual banquet.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

'Migrating teeth' Can Be Made to Stop Wandering

"Dear Doctor: Something funny's happening to my front teeth. I'm 47 and always had pretty good teeth. Now my teeth are moving apart, and there are spaces between them. One of my teeth, the left front one next to the two middle ones, has turned half around." — MRS. G. G.

It's not uncommon for a tooth or group of teeth to change position in the jawbone. Dentists refer to this phenomenon as "migration."

While not always so, it is most often associated with a condition known a periodontosis.

Periodontosis is a tongue twister, and I just can't resist adding that it's also a tooth twister.

For about 100 years the name most used to describe diseases of the gums and of the bone that holds the teeth in the jaw was the word "pyorrhea." Treatment of pyorrhea is now so highly developed and specialized that a whole new complex vocabulary has evolved.

Roots of teeth are covered by a soft, thin pad of tissue which cushions the teeth during biting and chewing. When these pads are healthy, teeth are healthy.

When they become infected and swollen, the bone around the roots rapidly shrinks, teeth become loose, and migration takes place. Again, this is periodontosis.

Because front teeth have a single, straight root, they are not as solidly fixed in the jawbone as the many-rooted molar teeth. They are often the first teeth to be affected by migration.

The condition is easy to spot because the spaces that develop are so obvious. In molar teeth, usually the first sign of movement is getting food caught between them.

There is no adequate home treatment for pyorrhea, although good mouth care slows down the progressive destruction of gums and bone.

Expert dental treatment is necessary. Root surfaces are scraped and polished, "pyorrhea pockets" are cut away and, of prime importance in migration, the bite is so adjusted that teeth fit together in proper balance.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Conservation Leaders Slate Denver Meeting

State and national leaders in the field of natural resource conservation and management will participate in the 20th annual meeting of the Colorado Association of Soil Conservation Districts which opens in Denver Monday.

The state association represents nearly 20,000 Colorado farmers and ranchers interested in improvement and preservation of soil and water resources. It is composed of 94 soil conservation districts throughout the state, according to Ross E. Chambers, Eagle, CASCD president.

Following an address of welcome by Denver Mayor Tom Currigan, Monday's session will feature meetings of the association's 12 standing committees.

"Colorado's Stake in Natural Resources" will be the topic of a Tuesday address by R. T. Eckles, coordinator of the state division of natural resources.

Other prominent speakers at the meeting will include Evan Green, national student secretary for the Future Farmers of America, and Gordon K. Zimmerman, executive secretary, National Association of Siol and Water Conservation Districts, Washington, D.C.

During the business session Wednesday, the group is expected to revise the association's by-laws, hear committee reports and pass resolutions. The three-day meeting concludes Wednesday night with the annual banquet.

Donkey Parade Staged By Protesting Indians

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indians demanding more to eat at lower prices staged a "donkey protest" outside the government food ministry building in New Delhi Saturday.

Owners drove 1,000 underfed donkeys to the building but were prevented from entering by 100 helmeted police.

"When beasts and their human masters begin starving together it is high time the head of state listen to us," said a spokesman for the demonstrators.

LITTLE RECREATION

CARSON CITY (AP) — Modernizing the Nevada State Prison can't be done overnight. Take the matter of gambling by inmates, for instance.

A firm hired to study the prison recommended authorities eliminate gambling behind the walls.

Gov. Grant Sawyer pointed out that gambling was not allowed at the new minimum security unit, opened this fall.

"As we are not allowing gambling there, it will go a long way to solving the problem," he said.

But it may be some time before officials halt gambling at the older main prison because there's little opportunity there for other forms of recreation.

Behind - the - walls gambling has been a tradition at the prison for many years.

First British Gin Is Sent to Russia

LONDON (UPI)—The first British gin for sale to Russians will leave London next Wednesday aboard the Soviet freighter "Kolpino."

Up to now, the only British liquor imported by the Soviet Union has been whisky—about a sixth of the quantity of Vodka exports to Britain.

The 400 cases are being shipped under an agreement concluded with Prodintorg, the Russian trading agency. It provides for cash payment instead of the usual barter deal involving Russian vodka.

British General Plans to Study Malaysia Crisis

By LOUIS NEVIN

LONDON (AP) — Gen. Sir James Cassels took off for Singapore today to study the Malaysia - Indonesian conflict at close range while Britain builds up its armed forces in Southeast Asia toward their highest level since the Korean War.

"I'll be taking a really close look at the Malaysian situation," said Cassels, who will take over next month as chief of the British general staff.

A Far East Command spokesman in Singapore announced Britain has moved a battalion of troops into Malaynian Borneo in the latest of a series of moves to bolster Malaysia's defenses against expected Indonesian attacks.

The battalion, belonging to the Scots Guards Regiment, began the shift to Borneo this week from its base camp at Terendak, near Malacca, in the southwest sector of the Malaysian mainland.

Approximately 1,000 paratroopers and infantrymen are being airlifted from Britain, starting today, to reinforce the 10,000 troops already taking part in the defense of Malaysia against Indonesia's campaign to crush that anti-Communist federation of former British colonies.

A spokesman for the Commonwealth Office called the airlift a prudent reinforcement in view of Indonesian troop concentrations in Sumatra, across the Strait of Malacca from Malaysia.

The government also ordered six warships — four minesweepers and two coastal defense craft — reactivated from the British mothball fleet at Singapore, which is one of Malaysia's states. And the commander of the aircraft carrier Eagle — Britain's most powerful — was ordered to speed repairs to a damaged turbogenerator and join the Far East fleet as soon as possible.

This will bring that fleet to more than 80 vessels.

Government sources said several squadrons of Javelin all-weather fighter planes will leave early next week for the Far East and jet V-bomber units have been alerted to fly to Singapore if needed. The V-bombers can be used for conventional or nuclear attack.

Two Southern Demos Stripped Of Seniority

Spearheading the disciplinary action was the Democratic Study Group, an informal organization of about 125 members who describe themselves as moderates or liberals. The group's chairman is Rep. John A. Blatnik of Minnesota.

The group had proposed originally to deny all party privileges and committee assignments to Williams and Watson but modified that at a session Saturday morning to the loss of seniority. Blatnik termed the revised plan "more benevolent and charitable."

He said the chief aim of his group is to remove from positions of authority Democrats who oppose the party's programs and candidates.

Since the Williams and Watson cases involve only party considerations, the caucus action is final and not subject to a vote by the entire House.

There are precedents for the action against Williams and Watson but not recent ones. In 1924 House Republicans stripped committee assignments from 13 members who supported the presidential candidacy of Sen. Robert M. La Follette, who ran as a Progressive.

On the other hand, there have been several cases in recent years in which House members suffered no penalty for refusal to support their party's national ticket.

Swiss Travelog On at Fine Arts Center Today

"Incomparable Switzerland" is the title of the fifth in a series of "Horizons Unlimited" travel films being shown at the Fine Arts Center Theater. The 90 minute film will be shown at 2:30 and 4:30 this afternoon.

Phil Walker, who has made two previous appearances at the Center, filmed the Alping adventure and will serve as its narrator. His previous appearances were for films entitled, "Hong Kong and Indonesia," and, "Mexico," both of which he shot and narrated.

"This film is not a commercially cut, canned Hollywood film," said Walker. It took parts of three years to film, on location in Switzerland.

Besides a trip through many Swiss cities and villages, Walker takes his audience on a never-before-filmed baloon trip over the Alps, from Switzerland to Italy. He was the first American to ever make the trip over the seven great ranges and has made the baloon voyage three times.

The actual flight takes some seven hours and includes some of the most breathtaking scenery in the entire world. The flight sequence closes the travelog.

Box offices at the Fine Arts Center will open at 1:30 p.m. for ticket sales. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students through college. Reservations may be made by calling, 634-5581.

Shootings, Beatings Mark New Year's Eve in Springs

Numerous persons were booked for investigation of drunkenness. Trouble continued through New Year's Day and night as falling snow brought a rash of "fender benders" and other auto accidents.

Police said the slug, found later on the floor, was 22-caliber. The window faces an open field.

After the Circle Drive Liquor Store, 1829 N. Circle Dr., closed before 11 p.m. Thursday, someone helped themselves to three half gallon bottles of liquor in the display window. The rock used to break the window was found on the sidewalk at 7:30 a.m. Friday.

A young father 79 times asked patrolmen to shoot him after he allegedly beat his 10-month-old son. He was booked assault on a minor child, drunkenness and noise and riotous conduct.

Police were called to his home shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday. They found a bloodsplattered bed. The baby had red marks on his forehead, arms, chest and face. The child was taken to Penrose Hospital, and was reported not to have broken bones or other serious injuries.

He was booked for drunkenness, noise and riotous conduct, discharging fire arms in the city and investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

When police apprehended the man, he was seated in the living room of his home, holding the couple's small baby. His wife told police he came home drunk about 6 p.m. Thursday. Police confiscated a 22-caliber German revolver with one live and three empty rounds in the chamber.

A woman was questioned in Memorial Hospital about injuries she received in a fight in front of Benny's Restaurant Lounge, 517 W. Colorado Ave.

The 23-year-old woman was cut on the right arm during the fight. Later, she said a friendly man offered to help stop the bleeding, then forced her to accompany him to a house near Walnut Street and Pikes Peak Avenue where he raped her. This happened shortly after 1 a.m. Friday, she said.

Police found another woman lying in a gutter in the 2000 block of East Dale Street about 12:30 a.m. Friday. She had head injuries and most of her clothes were torn off. Her husband was booked for being drunk and investigation of her assault. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Castro Displays Russian-Built Rockets, Planes

independence, regardless of the price, even to the point of subsisting without economic aid from any country.

But he defended the attention to military power because "We are the only Socialist country in this hemisphere and for that reason we need to be armed."

There was no official explanation of the nature of the missiles, nor whether they were nuclear equipped.

One of the Soviet Union's known ground-to-ground missiles which can carry nuclear or high explosive warheads could be similar to the devices displayed here Saturday.

(Military men in Washington showed no unusual concern about the Cuban weapons. Some sources pointed out the missiles appeared to be tactical, artillery-type rockets with a range far short of that needed to fire at the U.S., mainland.)

On Cuba's economic problems, Castro accused "imperialists" of speculating with sugar prices and said he had "misinformed the enemy" with respect to Cuba's sugar production in the face of price fluctuations.

Castro said: "Last year there was an increase in cane production, and this year everybody knows there is much cane, but they don't know the amount.

"Opportunely we will announce our sugar production. I am sure we will give a tremendous slap in the mouth to our enemies."

Cuba's 1964 sugar cane harvest has been estimated as low as 3.5 million tons, compared with a peak of seven million tons in some previous years.

President Khan Of Pakistan Wins Election

Since then he has kept Pakistan in the South East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) despite growing criticism in the country of U.S. policies.

Ayub's supporters claimed victory shortly after the polls closed. The backers of Miss Jinnah said "the situation looks grim but we have not given up."

The Radio Pakistan announcement was made when unofficial returns gave Ayub more than half the 80,000 votes cast. At that point, the count was 40,913 for Ayub and 21,044 for Miss Jinnah.

The 80,000 voters represent Pakistan's more than 45 million member electorate. Last month the nation chose the 80,000 who actually elect the president under Ayub's "basic democracy" plan.

Wayne King Sworn in as Fountain Chief

"All I ask is the cooperation of the citizens of the Town of Fountain," said Wayne King upon being sworn in as Fountain's new police chief. Michael A. Rasher, Fountain clerk and coordinator, administered the oath at a brief ceremony in the Town Hall Saturday morning.

King replaces former Police Chief William Soltwedel, who was fired by the Town Council, along with the other two members of the force, Dec. 21. The ousted chief has filed a petition of protest, claiming wrongful dismissal by the Council.

Bud Teich, who until the swearing-in was Fountain's lone police officer, was officially given the title of full-time patrolman at the ceremony. He had served as a relief patrolman since Oct. 10 and following Soltwedel's dismissal had been appointed a full-time officer to fill the three vacancies temporarily.

As it stands now, Fountain has two full-time law enforcement officers. A public examination is being held Jan. 8 to establish an eligibility list for filling the third vacancy. Testing is scheduled for 7 p.m., according to the new chief, and is open to anyone who wishes to apply for the job of patrolman.

King is no newcomer to the job of enforcing the law. Previous to his recent appointment, he served as a deputy in the El Paso County Sheriff's Office for a year. He left that job to fill the position in Fountain. He also spent two years as a patrolman on the Manitou Springs Police Dept.

Before being sworn in, King said, "There will be no immunity to the law of arrest, whether a person's name is Smith or Martinez."

business and residential public rose up to fight the move.

After a series of meeting and the circulating of petitions, council several weeks ago rescinded their action and killed the ordinance. Instead there was a slight increase in the millage.

Four points separated the number three story from the second top story. No. three as chosen by the G-T news staff was the new businesses which moved into Colorado Springs in 1964 giving a shot in the arm to the economy and casting a firm vote of confidence in the growth of the region.

These new businesses, included Neusteters, K-Mart and the Montgomery Ward Store among others.

The number four story in Colorado Springs during the past year was the Democratic victory in El Paso County. It was separated from the number three story by just one point.

The victory in a traditionally Republican stronghold saw Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth knocked from his firm seat in Congress by a young Pueblo lawyer, Frank Evans.

The fifth top story in 1964 was the record building boom in the region. Nearly $36 million in building permits were issued in Colorado Springs last year, more than at any other time in history.

—6. The gift of Cragmor Sanitarium to Colorado University for use as an extension center and graduate school in Colorado Springs.

—7. Ft. Carson announced it would add 80,000 acres to the post, insuring that the military reservation would remain part of the Pikes Peak economy for years to come.

—8. City Council leased the terminal building at Peterson Field to the Air Force and announced that the city could begin planning for a new civilian terminal building to be constructed on the west side of the field.

—9. A three day search for four-year old Thomas Schockey ended tragically Jan. 31, when the youngster's body was found in a water field ditch near his home. Hundreds of volunteers joined in the search for the youngster.

—10. On Nov. 21, Wasson High School rolled over Aurora Central here, 33-14, to win the right to go to the state high school football championship. A week later, spirits were dimmed as Lakewood crushed the Thunderbirds 20-6.

Other stories which were considered for the top 10 included the flash floods and hail storms in Manitou Springs that caused extensive damages to the community; the Colorado College Symposium on World War II which drew record crowds to every session; The announcement of construction on the U.S. Highway 24 by-pass through Ute Pass; the controversy over the closing of Airport Road through Memorial Park; the drought which moved into its third year; six persons died in a four-car crash near Green Mountain Falls.

pounds of weights to approximate the weight of the parachute-laden Allen. Otherwise, he said, Allen might have passed him up in the air.

They maneuvered their hands and arms until they were side by side, 4,000 feet below the plane. Allen handed Pack the reserve chute.

"He wouldn't let go of it until I gave him the nod," Pack said.

He got the parachute package under him, so that wind pressure pushed it up against his horizontal body, and fastened the chute's hooks to the two D rings at abdomen level on his harness. This maneuver ate up another 4,000 feet, he said.

Menwhile, free-lance photographers Doyle Fields, 30, and Bob Buquor, 29, falling free from the plane, were taking pictures with cameras strapped to their helmets.

Pack, white-clad against the blue sky, "looked around to see where everybody was. I smiled up at them — and pulled the ripcord."

Pack said he wasn't even scratched in landing.

Spearheading the disciplinary action was the Democratic Study Group, an informal organization of about 125 members who describe themselves as moderates or liberals. The group's chairman is Rep. John A. Blatnik of Minnesota.

The group had proposed originally to deny all party privileges and committee assignments to Williams and Watson but modified that at a session Saturday morning to the loss of seniority. Blatnik termed the revised plan "more benevolent and charitable."

He said the chief aim of his group is to remove from positions of authority Democrats who oppose the party's programs and candidates.

Since the Williams and Watson cases involve only party considerations, the caucus action is final and not subject to a vote by the entire House.

There are precedents for the action against Williams and Watson but not recent ones. In 1924 House Republicans stripped committee assignments from 13 members who supported the presidential candidacy of Sen. Robert M. La Follette, who ran as a Progressive.

On the other hand, there have been several cases in recent years in which House members suffered no penalty for refusal to support their party's national ticket.

Swiss Travelog On at Fine Arts Center Today

"Incomparable Switzerland" is the title of the fifth in a series of "Horizons Unlimited" travel films being shown at the Fine Arts Center Theater. The 90 minute film will be shown at 2:30 and 4:30 this afternoon.

Phil Walker, who has made two previous appearances at the Center, filmed the Alping adventure and will serve as its narrator. His previous appearances were for films entitled, "Hong Kong and Indonesia," and, "Mexico," both of which he shot and narrated.

"This film is not a commercially cut, canned Hollywood film," said Walker. It took parts of three years to film, on location in Switzerland.

Besides a trip through many Swiss cities and villages, Walker takes his audience on a never-before-filmed baloon trip over the Alps, from Switzerland to Italy. He was the first American to ever make the trip over the seven great ranges and has made the baloon voyage three times.

The actual flight takes some seven hours and includes some of the most breathtaking scenery in the entire world. The flight sequence closes the travelog.

Box offices at the Fine Arts Center will open at 1:30 p.m. for ticket sales. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students through college. Reservations may be made by calling, 634-5581.

Shootings, Beatings Mark New Year's Eve in Springs

Numerous persons were booked for investigation of drunkenness. Trouble continued through New Year's Day and night as falling snow brought a rash of "fender benders" and other auto accidents.

Police said the slug, found later on the floor, was 22-caliber. The window faces an open field.

After the Circle Drive Liquor Store, 1829 N. Circle Dr., closed before 11 p.m. Thursday, someone helped themselves to three half gallon bottles of liquor in the display window. The rock used to break the window was found on the sidewalk at 7:30 a.m. Friday.

A young father 79 times asked patrolmen to shoot him after he allegedly beat his 10-month-old son. He was booked assault on a minor child, drunkenness and noise and riotous conduct.

Police were called to his home shortly after 11 p.m. Thursday. They found a bloodsplattered bed. The baby had red marks on his forehead, arms, chest and face. The child was taken to Penrose Hospital, and was reported not to have broken bones or other serious injuries.

He was booked for drunkenness, noise and riotous conduct, discharging fire arms in the city and investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

When police apprehended the man, he was seated in the living room of his home, holding the couple's small baby. His wife told police he came home drunk about 6 p.m. Thursday. Police confiscated a 22-caliber German revolver with one live and three empty rounds in the chamber.

A woman was questioned in Memorial Hospital about injuries she received in a fight in front of Benny's Restaurant Lounge, 517 W. Colorado Ave.

The 23-year-old woman was cut on the right arm during the fight. Later, she said a friendly man offered to help stop the bleeding, then forced her to accompany him to a house near Walnut Street and Pikes Peak Avenue where he raped her. This happened shortly after 1 a.m. Friday, she said.

Police found another woman lying in a gutter in the 2000 block of East Dale Street about 12:30 a.m. Friday. She had head injuries and most of her clothes were torn off. Her husband was booked for being drunk and investigation of her assault. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Castro Displays Russian-Built Rockets, Planes

independence, regardless of the price, even to the point of subsisting without economic aid from any country.

But he defended the attention to military power because "We are the only Socialist country in this hemisphere and for that reason we need to be armed."

There was no official explanation of the nature of the missiles, nor whether they were nuclear equipped.

One of the Soviet Union's known ground-to-ground missiles which can carry nuclear or high explosive warheads could be similar to the devices displayed here Saturday.

(Military men in Washington showed no unusual concern about the Cuban weapons. Some sources pointed out the missiles appeared to be tactical, artillery-type rockets with a range far short of that needed to fire at the U.S., mainland.)

On Cuba's economic problems, Castro accused "imperialists" of speculating with sugar prices and said he had "misinformed the enemy" with respect to Cuba's sugar production in the face of price fluctuations.

Castro said: "Last year there was an increase in cane production, and this year everybody knows there is much cane, but they don't know the amount.

"Opportunely we will announce our sugar production. I am sure we will give a tremendous slap in the mouth to our enemies."

Cuba's 1964 sugar cane harvest has been estimated as low as 3.5 million tons, compared with a peak of seven million tons in some previous years.

President Khan Of Pakistan Wins Election

Since then he has kept Pakistan in the South East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) despite growing criticism in the country of U.S. policies.

Ayub's supporters claimed victory shortly after the polls closed. The backers of Miss Jinnah said "the situation looks grim but we have not given up."

The Radio Pakistan announcement was made when unofficial returns gave Ayub more than half the 80,000 votes cast. At that point, the count was 40,913 for Ayub and 21,044 for Miss Jinnah.

The 80,000 voters represent Pakistan's more than 45 million member electorate. Last month the nation chose the 80,000 who actually elect the president under Ayub's "basic democracy" plan.

Wayne King Sworn in as Fountain Chief

"All I ask is the cooperation of the citizens of the Town of Fountain," said Wayne King upon being sworn in as Fountain's new police chief. Michael A. Rasher, Fountain clerk and coordinator, administered the oath at a brief ceremony in the Town Hall Saturday morning.

King replaces former Police Chief William Soltwedel, who was fired by the Town Council, along with the other two members of the force, Dec. 21. The ousted chief has filed a petition of protest, claiming wrongful dismissal by the Council.

Bud Teich, who until the swearing-in was Fountain's lone police officer, was officially given the title of full-time patrolman at the ceremony. He had served as a relief patrolman since Oct. 10 and following Soltwedel's dismissal had been appointed a full-time officer to fill the three vacancies temporarily.

As it stands now, Fountain has two full-time law enforcement officers. A public examination is being held Jan. 8 to establish an eligibility list for filling the third vacancy. Testing is scheduled for 7 p.m., according to the new chief, and is open to anyone who wishes to apply for the job of patrolman.

King is no newcomer to the job of enforcing the law. Previous to his recent appointment, he served as a deputy in the El Paso County Sheriff's Office for a year. He left that job to fill the position in Fountain. He also spent two years as a patrolman on the Manitou Springs Police Dept.

Before being sworn in, King said, "There will be no immunity to the law of arrest, whether a person's name is Smith or Martinez."

business and residential public rose up to fight the move.

After a series of meeting and the circulating of petitions, council several weeks ago rescinded their action and killed the ordinance. Instead there was a slight increase in the millage.

Four points separated the number three story from the second top story. No. three as chosen by the G-T news staff was the new businesses which moved into Colorado Springs in 1964 giving a shot in the arm to the economy and casting a firm vote of confidence in the growth of the region.

These new businesses, included Neusteters, K-Mart and the Montgomery Ward Store among others.

The number four story in Colorado Springs during the past year was the Democratic victory in El Paso County. It was separated from the number three story by just one point.

The victory in a traditionally Republican stronghold saw Rep. J. Edgar Chenoweth knocked from his firm seat in Congress by a young Pueblo lawyer, Frank Evans.

The fifth top story in 1964 was the record building boom in the region. Nearly $36 million in building permits were issued in Colorado Springs last year, more than at any other time in history.

—6. The gift of Cragmor Sanitarium to Colorado University for use as an extension center and graduate school in Colorado Springs.

—7. Ft. Carson announced it would add 80,000 acres to the post, insuring that the military reservation would remain part of the Pikes Peak economy for years to come.

—8. City Council leased the terminal building at Peterson Field to the Air Force and announced that the city could begin planning for a new civilian terminal building to be constructed on the west side of the field.

—9. A three day search for four-year old Thomas Schockey ended tragically Jan. 31, when the youngster's body was found in a water field ditch near his home. Hundreds of volunteers joined in the search for the youngster.

—10. On Nov. 21, Wasson High School rolled over Aurora Central here, 33-14, to win the right to go to the state high school football championship. A week later, spirits were dimmed as Lakewood crushed the Thunderbirds 20-6.

Other stories which were considered for the top 10 included the flash floods and hail storms in Manitou Springs that caused extensive damages to the community; the Colorado College Symposium on World War II which drew record crowds to every session; The announcement of construction on the U.S. Highway 24 by-pass through Ute Pass; the controversy over the closing of Airport Road through Memorial Park; the drought which moved into its third year; six persons died in a four-car crash near Green Mountain Falls.

pounds of weights to approximate the weight of the parachute-laden Allen. Otherwise, he said, Allen might have passed him up in the air.

They maneuvered their hands and arms until they were side by side, 4,000 feet below the plane. Allen handed Pack the reserve chute.

"He wouldn't let go of it until I gave him the nod," Pack said.

He got the parachute package under him, so that wind pressure pushed it up against his horizontal body, and fastened the chute's hooks to the two D rings at abdomen level on his harness. This maneuver ate up another 4,000 feet, he said.

Menwhile, free-lance photographers Doyle Fields, 30, and Bob Buquor, 29, falling free from the plane, were taking pictures with cameras strapped to their helmets.

Pack, white-clad against the blue sky, "looked around to see where everybody was. I smiled up at them — and pulled the ripcord."

Pack said he wasn't even scratched in landing.

Human Brain Still Better Than the Mechanical Type

How much do you remember?

Just 10 million million things, says a current report comparing the human brain's capacity for remembering things—and storing information — with that of the electronic computer. And it appears the grapefruit-sized human memory plant still far outperforms its room-filling counterpart—

But nobody knows just how.

The report, appearing in January Popular Mechanics, puts the brain, and its 10 million million-unit capacity for storing "bits" of information, far ahead of today's most highly developed computer — said to store an estimated 16 million units.

Put another way, the human brain can store two and one half million times more information than the main memory section of a computer, the Popular Mechanics article states. Exactly how it does it is another question.

For example, scientists still know very little, says the report, about how and where memory records are stored in the brain. It appears storage is made in various areas, much the same as valuable records are stored at various sites for security. But no one has been able to pinpoint all of these various areas in the brain.

Further, it appears information stored in the human brain undergoes a kind of duplicating process. This is indicated, the PM piece says, by the fact that portions of the brain may be damaged or surgically removed without significant memory loss. How and where this duplicating process takes place remains a mystery.

Another puzzler: How is information recalled — by what process? The PM report says there is no special "recollection" center — "though certain areas of the brain do seem to play a role."

Perhaps the greatest mystery of all, says the PM report, is the speed with which the brain rearranges and classifies information—and can produce within seconds the right answer to the question, say, "Do you know John Smith?"

This and other things done routinely are among the most baffling phenomena known to science, says the PM article.

GENERAL PRESENTS COMMENDATION — Miss Dorothy Szczerba, 1501 E. Buena Ventura, is presented a Department of the Army award for "outstanding performance" of duty by Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command. Miss Szczerba, an ARADCOM employe since January, 1959, was commended, among other things, for "keen insight and outstanding ability" which contributed to efficient operation of the Reserve Components Section, where she is secretary.

91 New Faces To Be Seen In U.S. House

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 89th session of Congress features 91 new faces in the House of Representatives — a doorkeeper's nightmare.

The new lawmakers range from a just-old-enough-to-qualify representative to a Japanese housewife.

But for the harried doorkeeper there will be at least some shortcuts in the game of matching faces and names. One new lawmaker has a famous name. Another favors flamboyant vests.

There is a sample of what the House employes have to digest on a priority basis:

One new member, Rep. Jed Johnson Jr., D-Okla., is so young he might be mistaken for a page. Johnson, son of a former member who died last year, actually was a House page, and not too long ago. He comes to Congress just-turned-25 and the youngest member ever to serve in the House legally. The Constitution sets age 25 as the minimum qualification.

One Tennessee youth of 22 once made it however by falsifying his age. Johnson made it by beating Rep. Victor Wickersham, D-Okla., in an upset primary election, then defeating a Goldwater Republican in the general election, and finally—on Dec. 27—celebrating his 25th birthday.

Another relative youngster fresh on the capitol scene is Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., who is 30 and the son of former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney. The younger Tunney is a lawyer, not a prize fighter. He is a close friend of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., with whom he studied at the University of Virginia Law School. Gene Tunney stumped the district for his son, along with Jack Dempsey from whom he wrested the heavyweight title.

Rep. Eligio de la Garza D-Tex., adds a further Latin touch to the House, as well as a tendency to colorful dress. In 10 years as a state legislator the 37-year-old McAllen lawyer was noted for his good humor and his flamboyant vests. He likes to cook exotic dishes and considers himself an expert on Chinese food. He boasts a near-arsenal of hunting guns, and either cooks his kills or personally supervises their preparation. He is expected to vote conservatively.

Rep. James D. Martin, 46, is not only a new face in the House but a symbol of political change that shook the South in the recent election. He is one of five new Republican House members from Alabama. Martin narrowly missed winning a seat in the Senate two years ago. He is president of an oil distributing firm in Gadsden.

Rep. William R. Anderson, D-Tenn., takes the 6th District seat of Ross Bass who now is a senator. It is assumed he will establish among other congressional attainments a reputation for a calm, unruffled disposition, no matter how rough the legislative weather becomes.

Dear Ele and Walt: Please tell me why a man would fool around with another woman if he still loved his wife? — Stunned Son

Dear Son: As some men grow older, they lose their self-confidence along with their slim waistlines and thick hair. They feel youth is slipping away from them, and they panic!

These worried men often start flirting with other women just to prove to themselves that they're still attractive. They may love their wives, but they yearn for a new conquest to reassure themselves.

Men in this circumstance need their family's love and understanding more than ever. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: I've been having a big argument with my best friend. He says that everyone who doesn't go to his church is "unsaved." But I told him other religions are good, too. He doesn't believe me. What can I say? —No Expert.

Dear No: Ask him if he's accept the Golden Rule ("Do unto others as you would have them do unto you") as a foundation for his religious belief. If he says, "yes," point out that. . .

CHRISTIANS direct: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

BUDDHISTS say: "Hurt not others with that which pains yourself."

HINDUS instruct: "Do naught to others which if done to thee would cause thee pain."

JEWS teach: "What is hurtful to yourself do not to your fellow man."

TAOISTS order: "Regard your neighbor's gain as your own gain,, and regard your neighbor's loss as your own loss."

Perhaps then he'll see that truth can be found in more than just one place and phrased in more than one way. —Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: This kid likes me a lot, but I don't like him.. Several times when he's called he's been insulting. How should I got about getting rid of him? I'm afraid he might hold a grudge against me because he has a horrible temper. — Scared

Dear Scared: You're right to be afraid of this boy! Have nothing further to do with him in person or over the phone. Tell your parents what's happened and enlist their protection. A guy who has a hot temper holds grudges and talks that way over the phone may be psychologically unbalanced. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: My girl's parents have their wedding anniversary coming soon, and I'm wondering if it would be proper to give them a card or rsomething. I've been going steady with this girl since last April, and I've gotten to know her folks pretty well. Thanks for your help. — Josh

Dear Josh: As long as you and the parents are on good terms, an anniversary card or small gift would be quite proper. But if you failed to remember your own parents' last anniversary, you'd best not send anything to these outsiders. — Ele and Walt (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Dear Ele and Walt: Please tell me why a man would fool around with another woman if he still loved his wife? — Stunned Son

Dear Son: As some men grow older, they lose their self-confidence along with their slim waistlines and thick hair. They feel youth is slipping away from them, and they panic!

These worried men often start flirting with other women just to prove to themselves that they're still attractive. They may love their wives, but they yearn for a new conquest to reassure themselves.

Men in this circumstance need their family's love and understanding more than ever. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: I've been having a big argument with my best friend. He says that everyone who doesn't go to his church is "unsaved." But I told him other religions are good, too. He doesn't believe me. What can I say? —No Expert.

Dear No: Ask him if he's accept the Golden Rule ("Do unto others as you would have them do unto you") as a foundation for his religious belief. If he says, "yes," point out that. . .

CHRISTIANS direct: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

BUDDHISTS say: "Hurt not others with that which pains yourself."

HINDUS instruct: "Do naught to others which if done to thee would cause thee pain."

JEWS teach: "What is hurtful to yourself do not to your fellow man."

TAOISTS order: "Regard your neighbor's gain as your own gain., and regard your neighbor's loss as your own loss."

Perhaps then he'll see that truth can be found in more than just one place and phrased in more than one way. —Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: This kid likes me a lot, but I don't like him.. Several times when he's called he's been insulting. How should I got about getting rid of him? I'm afraid he might hold a grudge against me because he has a horrible temper. — Scared

Dear Scared: You're right to be afraid of this boy! Have nothing further to do with him in person or over the phone. Tell your parents what's happened and enlist their protection. A guy who has a hot temper holds grudges and talks that way over the phone may be psychologically unbalanced. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele and Walt: My girl's parents have their wedding anniversary coming soon, and I'm wondering if it would be proper to give them a card or rsomething. I've been going steady with this girl since last April, and I've gotten to know her folks pretty well. Thanks for your help. — Josh

Dear Josh: As long as you and the parents are on good terms, an anniversary card or small gift would be quite proper. But if you failed to remember your own parents' last anniversary, you'd best not send anything to these outsiders. — Ele and Walt (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

CITY HALL DEFEATED—You can't beat City Hall, they say, but businessmen and residents proved this was wrong in 1964 as they forced council to kill an ordinance calling for a two per cent city sales tax. But the fact that the local team went to the finals was rated as the tenth top story in the region during 1964. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

SEND AN SOS—Members of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Colorado Motel Association meet with Colorado Springs Police Detective Ben Lacy to plan an SOS program for motel owners. When formed the agency will alert police and other motel owners of tenants skipping, passing bad checks and will also serve as a locator for delivery of emergency information. The latter service will cut the time of locating a person for an emergency message to just a few minutes, if that person is staying at a local motel. Present at the meeting with Detective Lacy are (from left): Mrs. Joe Kopetsky, Mrs. Carl Brehm, Mrs. Earl Fletcher, Mrs. Gordon Gjovig and Mrs. Charles Rumph. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Arthur Koestler to Speak At CC Science Symposium

Marvin H. Pigg
Certified Hearing
Aid Audiologist

How Much May You Expect From a Hearing Aid

All people do not benefit to the same degree from the use of a hearing aid. Many will enjoy practically normal hearing. Others will still experience some difficulty because of the degree and type of hearing loss. Even to those who get the least help the improvement will be most gratifying.

Cal for a home appointment or come in for an electronic hearing test and evaluation.

Arthur Koestler, famed British author of some 20 books including "Darkness at Noon" and "The Act of Creation," will be one of the featured participants in a week - long symposium on The New Science at Colorado College here Jan. 10-16.

The controversial Koestler was trained as a scientist and began his writing career as a science writeer for newspapers prior to writing his famous political novels. In recent years his books have dealt with aspects of science.

Koestler is one of more than 30 leading scientists and scholars taking part in the symposium at Colorado College. He will discuss "Extra-Conscious Factors in Scientific Discovery" at 8 p.m. Jan. 12 in Shove Chapel on campus. At 9 the following morning he will take part in a panel discussion with several Colorado College professors in Tutt Library.

His latest book is a 751-page work called "The Act of Creation," published this fall. Regarded as a major work, it received a page-and-a-half review in The New York Times Book Review section Oct. 18.

"I have written 'The Act of Creation' for anybody interested in artistic and scientific creativity and how the mind of genius works, how the great discoveries are made — for everybody interestedin the human mind," Koestler told a reporter erybody interested in the human mind," Koestler told a reporter recently.

ARTHUR KOESTLER

Koestler has lead an adventurous life. Prior to publication of his first book in 1938, he was a farmer in Palestine, a weekly newspaper editor in Cairo, a lemon salesman in Haifa, an aide to an Arabian architect, and a foreign correspondent for German and British newspapers.

As a newspaper correspondent, covered the Middle East, Paris, Berlin, Russia, the Spanish Civil War (where he was imprisoned as an English spy), and was a member of the Graf Zeppelin (a German dirigible) Arctic expedition.

Spain to Build Five New Missile Bases

MADRID (AP) — Spain will build five new missile-firing frigates based on the plans of the "USS Charles F. Adams" with technical assistance from the United States, the Catholic daily "Ya" said today. They will be constructed in Spanish shipyards.

Selection of the U.S. model followed abandonment of negotiations with Britain for help in building frigates in Spain.

New frigates represent only one phase of a defense modernization program here involving sea, air, and land forces of Spain.

THANKSGIVING

North America has been blessed with a rich land that allows for diversified crops. Our output has increased tremendously even though the total of cropland has changed little since the 1920s. We have some problems caused by overproduction but they are minor compared with those experienced by peoples in countries with fewer natural resources. We can be thankful that we are able to share our bounty with the less fortunate.

Granted, we have the land and the soil for bumper crops, much of the credit for present day abundance must be given to technological advances. They include mechanization., chemicals, biological developments (such as hybrid seed corn and rust-resistant wheat), soil analysis, and the use of fertilizers. Insecticides and herbicides are keeping down the insect menace and management skills add to efficiency. Our agricultural and food researchers are working continuously to find better ways of processing, packaging, and marketing. All these advances add to our national strength and today is a good time to dwell on our blessings.

Yet certain groups take a hostile attitude toward progressive methods. Without pesticides, for example, instead of feasting, we might have the same food shortages encountered by the Pilgrim fathers. The commercial production of apples, peaches, oranges, and grapefruit would not be possible without such chemicals and these items would be luxuries rather than common foods. Potato and tomato growers would lose every second or third crop and the production of animal and dairy products would be decreased.

We realize the risks involved in using chemical agents. But we can be thankful that the benefits far exceed the harm that occurs when pesticides are misused or misplaced (a common cause of poisoning in children). Not following the directions on the label is another source of trouble.

We should thank the early Indians for teaching the white man how to grow plants indigenous to America. These include numerous foods on our table today — potatoes, beans, squash, cranberries, corn, chocolate, pineapple, and many of our nuts.

The turkey also made its debut as part of the holiday. The original was the small wild turkey which is thoroughly American but this cannot be said of the domesticated fowl. Europeans believed the bird originated in Turkey but the Turks call it an American bird.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

SHOULDER LOOSENING

M. T. writes: Can a frozen shoulder be loosened?

REPLY

This is difficult to do and depends upon the length of time the shoulder has been stiff. Manipulation under anesthesia is needed along with extensive physical therapy.

WINE WITH MEALS

M. T. writes: Is it safe for a person with high blood pressure to have wine with a meal once a day?

REPLY

Yes, especially if it relaxes but does not make him gain weight.

RARE IN WOMEN

P. E. P. writes: I know Buerger's disease is considered an affliction of youngish men. What about older women (in the sixties)?

REPLY

Their arteries narrow, too, but we call it arteriosclerosis.

SLIM LIMBS

J. S. writes: Will regular massage fatten thin legs?

REPLY

No. Fat comes through the stomach and not from massaging.

Rhone Retires After 22 Years In the Service

U. S. Air Force CM Sgt. Tom Rhone long time military public relations representative retired from the military service this week.

The 22 year military public relations veteran has been a member of the North American Air Defense Command Information office for the past 18 months.

He is the last of the original NORAD Information office staff to depart Colorado Springs. He arrived at the then CONAD headquarters here in 1954 prior to the entrance of Canada into the two nation defense effort.

At that time his boss was USAF Colonel Barney Oldfield, since retired, who then was the Continental Air Defense Command Information Officer for General Benjamin W. Chidlaw.

The longtime service public relations NCO departed Colorado Springs in November 1959 and was assigned to headquarters U. S. Forces Japan in Tokyo. During the following four years he operated a press office in downtown Tokyo for U. S. Forces.

He and his staff were caught up in the thick of the street demonstrations by leftist Japanese during the period prior to the aborted President Eisenhower visit. It was through the Rhone operated office that all foreign correspondents cleared prior to covering the two Korea military coups.

At the conclusion of nearly four years service Rhone was requested by the NORAD headquarters for duty back in Colorado Springs and arrived here in August of 1963. He has served in the NORAD information office since that time.

CMSgt Rhone, his wife Mary, daughter Sherry and son Scott have lived at 2411 Lafayette Road during their entire residence in the Pikes Peak area.

The family will remain in Colorado Springs until the completion of the school terms in June when they will join Rhone who at that time will be on a Litton corporative assignment in Phoenix, Ariz.

Two Are Charged With Stealing Star of India

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men accused of stealing the priceless Star of India Sapphire from a Nw York museum were arrested Friday night on charges of an attempted burglary from the home of a wealthy New York tevtilman, police said.

Two Miami Beach police detectives said they saw Jack — Murph th Surf — Murphy and Roger Clark cross the lawn of Edward Jacobs' home. After a brief chase the two were brought to the police station and later booked on charges of breaking and entring with intent to commit grad larceny.

Murphy, Clark and another man, Allan Kuhn, earlier were charged with stealing the sapphire and other gems from the Museum of Natural History in New York. The gems have not been recovered.

The Jacobs home was burglarized once before — on Dec. 19 when $100,000 worth of gems were reported stolen.

This time, Jacobs said, only costume jewelry was missing. None was found in the two men's possession.

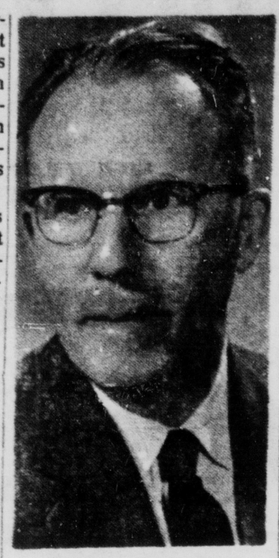
CC Prof Says Brecht Play Is a Symposium in Itself

A major play by Bertolt Brecht, one of Europe's leading contemporary dramatists, will be performed at Colorado College during the week-long symponium on The New Science.

The play, "Life of Galileo," will be staged in the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m. on Jan. 15, and at 2 p.m. on Jan. 16.

Dr. Thomas O. Brandt, professor of German and chairman of the college's department of German and Russian, says the play "is a symposium in itself with Galileo as the moderator of his own conscience which prefers comfort to unconditional pursuit of truth with all its consequences.

"There were three versions written before Bertolt Brecht came to the United States, 1938-39, the second, an English version, written n collaboration with Charles Laughton 1947, and a third revised in German in 1954," Professor Brandt said. The Colorado College players will present the second version.



THOMAS O. BRANDT

"This masterpiece deals with pursuit and authority," he explained. "In 1609 the 45-year-old Galileo earns a modest living in the service of the Republic of Venice by lecturing at the University of Padua. He sees nothing wrong in copying a Dutch telescope and passing it on as his own invention to gain money for his culinary desires. To pursue astronomy with leisure and in comfort he exchanges the freedom of Venice for the subservice to the Medici court in Florence, where his daughter Virginia, his housekeeper Mrs. Sarti and her son Andrea follow him.

"He succeeds in proving that the earth is not the center of the universe, but the Inquisition forbids him the publication of his findings," Professor Brandt said. "After years of silence he gains new hope when the enlightened Cardinal Bernet enlightened Cardinal Barberini becomes Pope Urban VIII. However, the latter allows himself to be persuaded by the Grand Inquisitor that the new teaching would undermine the authority of the Church. Galileo's followers are convinced that he will not recant. Yet, recant he does.

"For the rest of his life he lives in the country writing secretly his Discorsi," the Colorado College professor said. "Andrea's contempt for Galileo changes to admiration when he visits him before leaving the country, since he now believes that Galilo had recanted to gain time for completing his work. But Galileo rejects this praise, seeing himself as a criminal and a coward, since he has had science serve authority rather than having science change the world for the advancment of mankind."

He said "this version — in contrast to the first where Galileo's submissiveness and his recantation could be interpreted as a deliberat act of cunningness to save his life for the completion of his treatise — was provoked by the dropping of the atomic bomb in 1945. Brecht now wished 'to bring out the criminal element in the character of the hero,' since science had surrendered to non-scientific men in their pursuit of power politics. The implications are clear."

"Brecht one of the most remarkable writers of our age (he died in East Berlin in 1956) wrote his 'piece,' as he called all his plays, i a non-Aristotelian manner or — as he termed it — as 'epic theater,'" he said.

"He did not want the audience to identify itself with the 'hero' or with any other character of the play, rather did he suggest a critical attitude towards the characters on the part of the audience," Professor Brandt said. "The play then is a series of scenes very much like a chronicle on the stage, unsurpassable in dialectics, intellectual fencing, wit, and tension."

By ROBERT K. WALKER

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It's only a three-bedroom home in the suburbs, but obviously it makes Leo feel like a king again.

Leo is a lion who hasn't had much to roar about the past several years.

But Friday, he officially occupied new quarters built mainly by donations from thousands of youngsters who raised almost $10,000.

Leo, 8 years old and American-born, was down on his luck at this time two years ago.

Originally destined for a circus career, Leo made the mistake of injuring a trainer. The 300-pound lion was sold to another trainer, who eventually abandoned Leo at a farm near Phoenix.

Leo was turned over to the zoo, which took court action to get legal ownership. The zoo was not in financial shape to build quarters for a lion, however, and was ready to sell him.

Newspapers carried the story of Leo's plight, and this touched off a campaign among youngsters.

A bank account was opened in Leo's name, and money started trickling in.

School classes took up collections, cake sales were held and youngsters talked merchants into donating items that could be auctioned. The funds went to Leo. An Associated Press story brought contributions from around the nation.

A big boost came when a disc jockey raised $5,000 by broadcasting for 10 days in a partitioned-off corner of Leo's cage.

Last summer it was decided there was money enough in the bank and work was started on Leo's new home.

Leo actually moved into one bedroom of his home several months ago after spending two years in small cages. Recently, an 18-month-old Canadian-born lioness, Reina, joined him. Their concrete-block enclosure has three sleeping rooms.

Some 300 persons turned out to watch—from across a 25-foot-deep moat — as Leo and Reina made their first appearance in the open-air section of their new home.

Several cries of "We Want Leo" went up when the appearance ran a little late.

Finally, Leo stepped briskly out of the bedroom door, looked around at the crowd, then set out magestically to inspect his new rock garden, palm tree and swimming pool.

A small cheer rose from the crowd at his appearance.

Reina came out seconds later and promptly settled down to sun herself.

ANOTHER TENANT IN MOTOR CITY—Perkins Motor Company has made the big move to Motor City. Grand Opening festivities will begin at the new Fountain Creek Boulevard location, Thursday. The move is the high point of 30 years of business in Colorado Springs for Perkins, the oldest auto dealership in the region.

Perkins Motors to Hold Grand Opening This Week

By DAVE OSBORN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Perkins Motor Company has moved to Motor City and will hold its Grand Opening from Thursday through Saturday, according to Will Perkins, company president. The Chrysler, Plymouth, Valiant dealership, which is the oldest new car business in Colorado Springs, moved to its present location at 1205 Fountain Creek Blvd. from 115 Cascade Ave.

The move to the new, 23,500 square foot building is easily the biggest step forward the Perkins firm has made in its 30 years of existence. Perkins opened for business at its new location on Dec. 12, bringing the total of new car dealers in Motor City to three.

The three and a half acre site also includes, parking for some 400 new, used and customer's cars. Digman Construction Co. served as general contractors for the building project.

Three - fourths of the new structure is service area or parts storage space. The remaining quarter contains a 10-car showroom and the company's business offices.

Of Motor City, Perkins said, "This area presents one of the finest auto merchandising facilities of any place in the country." Perkins also said that in December, 1964, his company sold more new cars than during any other month in its history. In the auto industry, December is usually the slowest sales month of the year.

Architect Walt Burgess worked closely with officials of Chrysler Corp. in the design of the new building. It was built expressly for the sales and service of automobiles, to do a greater volume of business at a lower cost. Perkins attributes the high volume of business in December to the savings afforded customers on new cars.

Another move-prompting factor was the rapid growth of the community. The auto industry in Colorado Springs has kept pace with the population explosion.

"We feel that service, regardless of what you buy, is a very important aspect of any transaction," said Perkins. He also expressed pleasure in the number of years people have been with the company's service department. One of Perkins mechanics, Vic Reihbein, was with George Perkins, Will's father, when he owned a service station on Corona Street in 1943. The elder Perkins, incidentally, was president of the firm until his death in 1959.

Perkins has men who specialize in the various fields of repair work; alignment, tune-up, brakes and overhaul, plus others. Chrysler's use of visual aids in keeping service personnel up to date on new techniques was also cited as a big factor in the company's service reputation.

From its start in a small building on Pikes Peak Avenue 30 years ago, to the present and its brand new location in Motor City, Perkins Motor Company has grown along with the rest of Colorado Springs and the rest of the nation's auto industry — by leaps and bounds.

U.S. Freeway Network 45% Complete in '64

More than 18,500 miles of the 41,000-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways were opened to traffic by the end of 1964 according to an estimate made by the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

A recent report, issued by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, indicated that as of Sept. 30 more than 17,500 miles of the vast network were completed and construction underway on another 6,000 miles.

Approximately 1,000 miles were opened during the final quarter of 1964, according to the AMA, which bases its estimates on construction progress patterns established in previous years.

In the past three years an average of six miles of Interstate routes have been completed and opened to traffic each day.

The system, scheduled to be entirely open by 1972, is expected to be 45 per cent complte at the end of 1964. It is being built under the act passed by Congress in 1956 which authorized a long-term expansion of the federal-aid highway program.

Originally the 1956 act required that Interstate projects be designed to serve the traffic needs of 1975. Recent Congressional action, however, amended this provision and Interstate projects must now be designed to accommodate traffic anticipated 20 years in the future.

Financed entirely by taxes on motorists, the mammoth project will cost an estimated $41 billion. While representing only one per cent of all U.S. road mileage, the system when completed will carry 20 per cent of all highway traffic.

It will link virtually all U.S. cities of 50,000 or more in population with about 6,700 miles of the system located within urban areas.

Because practically every mile of the Interstate network is designed to freeway standards, the system when completed is expected to save as many as 8,000 lives yearly through reduced traffic accidents.

These same design features will result in savings of $5 billion yearly in motor vehicle operating costs.

FEARS KIDNAPING

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI)—Peter Gottwald, 32, a wealthy Austrian industrialist, has been missing since Monday and his 24-year-old wife, Giacinta, feared Thursday he had been kidnaped for ransom. Police investigating the mysterious disappearance, said Gottwald is a distant relative of Klement Gottwald, the late president of Communist Czechoslovakia.

High Level Industry Rise Forecast

In a year - end statement, noting factors supporting estimates of a bright outlook, Harr cited many "technical accomplishments" which are bringing new weapon systems, space hardware, and advanced commercial aircraft into operational inventories.

The industry spokesman also pointed out that many aerospace manufacturers are turning to other fields to augment sales and contribute to national growth.

"During the past year," Harr declared, "the aerospace industry continued its close cooperation with the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in seeking to further national progress in civil air transportation, defense capabilities and space advancements."

Harr added that, "despite rising costs, largely brought about by increased performance, the industry continues its search for means of limiting this escalation through company cost reduction programs for which 31 companies reported a combined saving of nearly $1 billion during the past year."

Harr's statement on 1964 figures and 1965 estimates follows:

Although total aerospace industry sales in 1964 remained at approximately the same level as the previous year, the period can be considered one of continuing technical accomplishment as an ever - increasing number of systems programs moved into production stages or were being introduced into aerospace inventories.

Deliveries of fighter aircraft were on the increase. Production of a limited number of Navy bombers continued. At the same time, deliveries of military transports were up and the same was true of other vehicles such as antisubmarine warfare aircraft.

Helicopter deliveries of all types, to both the military services and civil operators, continue to climb and further advances are being explored by the manufacturers. For example, with completion of the Army's evaluation of the LOH (Light Observation Helicopter), initial procurement contracts are expected to be let early in 1965 and estimated requirements are running as high as 6,000 units.

Vertical and short takeoff and landing vehicles of other than rotary - wing type have not yet reached the production stage. However, it is expected that about $90 million will be expended to further their development during the coming year.

Total numbers in the commercial aviation fleet will continue to increase during 1965 at about the same pace as in recent years. Additionally, the trend to larger percentages of subsonic passenger jets, replacing piston - driven aircraft, will continue as these fleets are modernized, and we will begin to see an increasing number of jet cargo aircraft added to airline inventories.

The sales of general aviation aircraft, meaning all those not flown by commercial airlines or the military, experienced its greatest recent growth in 1964 and that trend is expected to continue on into the new year. This assumption is based on the increased demand for swift, flexible travel, accelerated sales programs, and the continued introduction of new models which broaden the variety of uses.

Exports of aerospace products totaled approximately $1.3 billion during 1964, a level which has remained fairly constant for the last several years. Deliveries of helicopters, however, showed a magnificent increase — 29 per cent over last year. Manufacturers are looking forward to further increases in 1965, based on the announced Administration intention to provide fully competitive export financing for the industry.

Expenditures for the national space program will increase, although new obligational authority is expected to continue at about the same level as last year. Concentration will be on Gemini, Apollo, and their booster systems, as well as a defense communications satellite system and a number of scientific satellites. Stress will also be placed on further development of a nuclear engine.

A larger proportion of the NASA expenditures will be with aerospace manufacturers as the NASA facilities construction program tapers off.

The aim now is toward refinements of missile reliability, range and penetrability. Continued development of later models is anticipated through 1965. However, the total magnitude of sales will be down.

Funds for research, development, test and engineering are expected to continue at about the same level as in 1964. Exploratory programs will include a heavy logistics transport, the Manned Orbiting Laboratory, and transporable medium-range ballistic missile. Under current investigation in the helicopter field are the rigid rotor, hot cycle, turbine tip, thrust augmented and compound designs, all of which hold considerable promise for the future. Also receiving attention was the continuing study of the supersonic transport.

The aerospace industry continued its efforts to develop new markets for its expanding technological capabilities and increased diversification to provide a broader base for economic growth.

An interesting development came late in 1964 when Governor Edmund G. Brown requested several California aerospace firms to begin applying their technical and management talents to the solution of social problems within the state. Among the items which will be considered are a statewide transportation network, the managing of waste matter discharged into the air, institutional control of the mentally and criminally ill and information on the needs of the people of that state. Preliminary studies on these four major problems are expected to be completed in 1965 at a cost of about $[illegible].

Imported Cars To Exceed Highest Level

"We expect sales of imported cars in 1965 to exceed 550,000 vehicles, the highest level since the introduction of the compacts in 1960. Of that total, Volkswagens probably will account for about 350,009. This will mark the 16th consecutive year of rising sales in this country," J. Stuart Perkins, executive vice president of Volkswagen of America, Inc., said.

VW's increased sales during 1964 — from 277,000 in 1963 to more than 325,000 this year — are due to several factors. Among them are the sound expansion of our authorized dealer network and our organizations growing maturity in this competitive market.

"Our dealer network, which numbered 750 at the start of 1964, is now 841, with more than 23,000 employees in the United States. By the end of 1965, there will be about 950 authorized VW dealers in operation," he said.

Today's Volkswagen dealers and 15 regional distributors already have invested about $250,000,000 in their sales and service facilities. This investment — averaging more than $10,000 per VW employe in this country — assures owners of efficient service and helps explain why there now are about 1,600,000 VWs on American highways.

"During 1965, we estimate that VW dealers and distributors will invest an additional $35,000,000 in new or expanded facilities including new wholesale offices and warehouses now being completed in Jacksonbille, Fla.; Orangebury, N.Y.; Columbus, Ohio; Lanham, Md.; Culver City, Calif.; and Burlingame, Calif. New faciliteis were completed and placed in operation this year in New Orleans, La., and the distributorship in King of Prussia, Pa., was enlarged," Perkins said.

Volkswagen's success in America during 1964 has been much the same as in other countries. Sales in Germany increased from 445,000 in 1963 to 520,000 this year, an increase of over 15 per cent.

Sales gains in other countries ranged from 7 per cent in Brazil to 10 per cent in France, 13 per cent in Canada, 23 per cent in South Africa and 30 per cent in Australia.

As in the United states, these gains are the result of strong service and sales organizations.

Proprietors Will Oppose Work Laws

Although it is reputed that the major legislative drive by organized labor will be an amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act to prohibit states to enact and enforce "right to work" laws, the nation's independent business proprietors will be strongly opposed.

This is indicated by a just completed nationwide ballot conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business on the question of prohibiting industry-wide bargaining. C. Wilson Harder, president, announces that 78 per cent of the independent business proprietors are in favor of such a measure, 19 per cent opposed, with 3 per cent undecided.

Although so far only 20 states have enacted "right to work" laws which make it illegal to require union membership as a necessity to holding a job, the nation's independent business-this section of the Taft-Hartley men have strongly supported this section of the Taft-Hartley act.

In the last Congress when ex-Representative John Shelley, now mayor of San Francisco, introduced a bill to amend Taft-Hartley, 88 per cent opposed. When he introduced the same bill in 1961, 84 per cent opposed.

Third Partner Added to Auto Firm

A third partner has been added at one of Colorado Springs' oldest auto dealerships. Robert Hayes has joined his father, Richard Hayes and brother, Edward Hayes in the ownership of the Hayes Motor Company, 24 S. Walnut St.

Robert, who at 24 is the youngest of the two Hayes brothers, has been a partner in the Hayes and Hayes Finance Co. for the past year. His partnership in the automobile dealership also means a larger interest in the finance company.

Richard Hayes, who lives at 1226 E. Dale St., started the dealership some 26 years ago, with a lot in the 400 block of West Colorado Avenue. It was moved to its present location in 1957 when the freeway was constructed at the old location.

Hayes Motor Co. specializes in the sale of new and used cars, mostly from General Motors.

New Cosmotology School To Open Here Monday

A new addition to the city education scene is the Americana Beauty College of Colorado Springs, Inc., 21 S. Cascade Ave. The new school of cosmotology opens Monday.

Owned and operated by Rusty and Lola Jensen, husband and wife, and Vern Jensen, a brother, Americana has its main school in Denver. The Jensens have 105 students enrolled at employ eight instructors and the Denver school. In addition to the two beauty schools, they own three beauty salons in the Denver area.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jensen have been in the cosmotology field for a number of years and have owned beauty salons in Iowa and Colorado for the past 18 years.

Rusty Jensen trained at Madam Kenney's School of Beauty Culture in Des Moines, the American Institute of Hair Design in Chicago and the Comer-Doran School in Hollywood, Calif. Mrs. Jensen received her training at the Pitzes School of Beauty Culture in Waterloo, Iowa.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jensen are past winners of Colorado and Iowa State trophies of cosmotology, among others. Jensen and two of his instructors at the Denver school, Charles Dunham and Miss Geneva Twist, served as judges for the hair styling portion of the Mrs. Colorado Pageant. Jensen has also been a guest platform artist at numerous beauty shows throughout the country and has appeared in special New York beauty shows.

Personality is one of the main points stressed at Americana. Jensen says that in his years of experience as a shop owner, he has "recognized the importance of personality development and personal grooming along with the skills and requirements of the State Board of Cosmotology."

Consequently, a specialized personal improvement course will be taught at Americana along with general basic courses and advanced hair styling.

Jensen says he "feels a definite responsibility to the students and parents in not only teaching them the skills of the trade, but in preparing them to be employable and successful persons in the profession."

He went on to say, "We are very proud to open our new beauty college in Colorado Springs and extend a personal invitation to everyone to come by and see the school on opening day."

An avid horseman, Jensen is a member of the Arapahoe County Pheriff's Posse. He also holds membership with the National Assoc., National Association of Hairdressers & Cosmotologists Assoc., National Association of Cosmotology Schools, past officer and director of the Denver NHCA and the Optimist Club.

The Jensens, who live in Littleton, are active members of the Church of the Holy Spirit (Lutheran).

Earl Anderson, a former owner of several local beauty shops and a beauty college instructor, will manage the Americana school in Colorado Springs.

WAR ON 'CRACKERS

ROME (UPI)—Police throughout Italy continued their annual losing war Thursday against dangerous New Year's firecrackers. They seized tens of thousands of illegally manufactured fireworks over the past few weeks, but new year's firecracker noise and injuries are expected to be as widespread as ever.

Music Industry Sales Up 14 Percent in '64

Music instruments sales increased by 14 per cent in 1964 to reach the highest level in the history of the music industry, reported William R. Gard, executive vice - president of the National Association of Music Merchants.

Total sales exceeded $700,000,000 in 1964 and probably will go over the $750,000,000 in 1965, continuing industry gains chalked up every year in the past decade. "Music had an excellent year in 1964, again posting a greater gain than all retailing," reported Gard.

The NAMM executive expects the music industry to benefit in 1965 from predicted elimination of the excise tax on music instruments. The biggest plant expansion in the postwar years and a record number of new store openings is also expected to help push the music industry to new records in 1965.

The annual Music Show, in which home entertainment and music instrument manufacturers display their lines for the year, will be the biggest ever, for the first time occupying two Chicago hotels, the Conrad Hilton and Pick-Congress, and reflecting the "tremendous industry growth and the boom in musical interest," Gard stated.

Projections by the music and home entertainment industry for 1965 include expected sales of 2,000,000 color TV sets and 32 million radios.

"Any way you view it — given the present conditions and circumstances — can 1965 be other than good?" declared the NAMM executive. "Continuing prosperity is reflected in what amounts to a culture boom in the U.S. More people are playing and listening to music than ever before and they are willing to spend more money than ever to pursue their interest.

There is every indication that the trend in the future will accelerate rather than diminish."

Mail Order Sale Of Guns Denounced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., will seek stiff laws curbing what he calls the wide open mail-order sale of handguns to teen-agers, criminals, drunkards and drug addicts.

A Dodd proposal calling for restrictions on mail order gun sales died last year in the Senate Commerce Committee.

In the new Congress, Dodd plans to renew this proposal. But he says he also wants a study of why no federal law prevents the sale of heavier weapons, such as the antitank cannon which some New Jersey teenagers recently fired at a bar, or the bazooka from which a shell was fired at the United Nations' headquarters on Dec. 11.

U.S. Freeway Network 45% Complete in '64

More than 18,500 miles of the 41,000-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways were opened to traffic by the end of 1964 according to an estimate made by the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

A recent report, issued by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, indicated that as of Sept. 30 more than 17,500 miles of the vast network were completed and construction underway on another 6,000 miles.

Approximately 1,000 miles were opened during the final quarter of 1964, according to the AMA, which bases its estimates on construction progress patterns established in previous years.

In the past three years an average of six miles of Interstate routes have been completed and opened to traffic each day.

The system, scheduled to be entirely open by 1972, is expected to be 45 per cent complte at the end of 1964. It is being built under the act passed by Congress in 1956 which authorized a long-term expansion of the federal-aid highway program.

High Level Industry Rise Forecast

The aim now is toward refinements of missile reliability, range and penetrability. Continued development of later models is anticipated through 1965. However, the total magnitude of sales will be down.

Funds for research, development, test and engineering are expected to continue at about the same level as in 1964. Exploratory programs will include a heavy logistics transport, the Manned Orbiting Laboratory, and transporable medium-range ballistic missile. Under current investigation in the helicopter field are the rigid rotor, hot cycle, turbine tip, thrust augmented and compound designs, all of which hold considerable promise for the future. Also receiving attention was the continuing study of the supersonic transport.

The aerospace industry continued its efforts to develop new markets for its expanding technological capabilities and increased diversification to provide a broader base for economic growth.

An interesting development came late in 1964 when Governor Edmund G. Brown requested several California aerospace firms to begin applying their technical and management talents to the solution of social problems within the state. Among the items which will be considered are a statewide transportation network, the managing of waste matter discharged into the air, institutional control of the mentally and criminally ill and information on the needs of the people of that state. Preliminary studies on these four major problems are expected to be completed in 1965 at a cost of about $[illegible].

Imported Cars To Exceed Highest Level

"We expect sales of imported cars in 1965 to exceed 550,000 vehicles, the highest level since the introduction of the compacts in 1960. Of that total, Volkswagens probably will account for about 350,009. This will mark the 16th consecutive year of rising sales in this country," J. Stuart Perkins, executive vice president of Volkswagen of America, Inc., said.

VW's increased sales during 1964 — from 277,000 in 1963 to more than 325,000 this year — are due to several factors. Among them are the sound expansion of our authorized dealer network and our organizations growing maturity in this competitive market.

"Our dealer network, which numbered 750 at the start of 1964, is now 841, with more than 23,000 employees in the United States. By the end of 1965, there will be about 950 authorized VW dealers in operation," he said.

Today's Volkswagen dealers and 15 regional distributors already have invested about $250,000,000 in their sales and service facilities. This investment — averaging more than $10,000 per VW employe in this country — assures owners of efficient service and helps explain why there now are about 1,600,000 VWs on American highways.

"During 1965, we estimate that VW dealers and distributors will invest an additional $35,000,000 in new or expanded facilities including new wholesale offices and warehouses now being completed in Jacksonbille, Fla.; Orangebury, N.Y.; Columbus, Ohio; Lanham, Md.; Culver City, Calif.; and Burlingame, Calif. New faciliteis were completed and placed in operation this year in New Orleans, La., and the distributorship in King of Prussia, Pa., was enlarged," Perkins said.

Volkswagen's success in America during 1964 has been much the same as in other countries. Sales in Germany increased from 445,000 in 1963 to 520,000 this year, an increase of over 15 per cent.

Sales gains in other countries ranged from 7 per cent in Brazil to 10 per cent in France, 13 per cent in Canada, 23 per cent in South Africa and 30 per cent in Australia.

As in the United states, these gains are the result of strong service and sales organizations.

Proprietors Will Oppose Work Laws

Although it is reputed that the major legislative drive by organized labor will be an amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act to prohibit states to enact and enforce "right to work" laws, the nation's independent business proprietors will be strongly opposed.

This is indicated by a just completed nationwide ballot conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business on the question of prohibiting industry-wide bargaining. C. Wilson Harder, president, announces that 78 per cent of the independent business proprietors are in favor of such a measure, 19 per cent opposed, with 3 per cent undecided.

Although so far only 20 states have enacted "right to work" laws which make it illegal to require union membership as a necessity to holding a job, the nation's independent business-this section of the Taft-Hartley men have strongly supported this section of the Taft-Hartley act.

In the last Congress when ex-Representative John Shelley, now mayor of San Francisco, introduced a bill to amend Taft-Hartley, 88 per cent opposed. When he introduced the same bill in 1961, 84 per cent opposed.

Third Partner Added to Auto Firm

A third partner has been added at one of Colorado Springs' oldest auto dealerships. Robert Hayes has joined his father, Richard Hayes and brother, Edward Hayes in the ownership of the Hayes Motor Company, 24 S. Walnut St.

Robert, who at 24 is the youngest of the two Hayes brothers, has been a partner in the Hayes and Hayes Finance Co. for the past year. His partnership in the automobile dealership also means a larger interest in the finance company.

Richard Hayes, who lives at 1226 E. Dale St., started the dealership some 26 years ago, with a lot in the 400 block of West Colorado Avenue. It was moved to its present location in 1957 when the freeway was constructed at the old location.

Hayes Motor Co. specializes in the sale of new and used cars, mostly from General Motors.

New Cosmotology School To Open Here Monday

A new addition to the city education scene is the Americana Beauty College of Colorado Springs, Inc., 21 S. Cascade Ave. The new school of cosmotology opens Monday.

Owned and operated by Rusty and Lola Jensen, husband and wife, and Vern Jensen, a brother, Americana has its main school in Denver. The Jensens have 105 students enrolled at employ eight instructors and the Denver school. In addition to the two beauty schools, they own three beauty salons in the Denver area.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jensen have been in the cosmotology field for a number of years and have owned beauty salons in Iowa and Colorado for the past 18 years.

Rusty Jensen trained at Madam Kenney's School of Beauty Culture in Des Moines, the American Institute of Hair Design in Chicago and the Comer-Doran School in Hollywood, Calif. Mrs. Jensen received her training at the Pitzes School of Beauty Culture in Waterloo, Iowa.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jensen are past winners of Colorado and Iowa State trophies of cosmotology, among others. Jensen and two of his instructors at the Denver school, Charles Dunham and Miss Geneva Twist, served as judges for the hair styling portion of the Mrs. Colorado Pageant. Jensen has also been a guest platform artist at numerous beauty shows throughout the country and has appeared in special New York beauty shows.

Personality is one of the main points stressed at Americana. Jensen says that in his years of experience as a shop owner, he has "recognized the importance of personality development and personal grooming along with the skills and requirements of the State Board of Cosmotology."

Consequently, a specialized personal improvement course will be taught at Americana along with general basic courses and advanced hair styling.

Jensen says he "feels a definite responsibility to the students and parents in not only teaching them the skills of the trade, but in preparing them to be employable and successful persons in the profession."

He went on to say, "We are very proud to open our new beauty college in Colorado Springs and extend a personal invitation to everyone to come by and see the school on opening day."

An avid horseman, Jensen is a member of the Arapahoe County Pheriff's Posse. He also holds membership with the National Assoc., National Association of Hairdressers & Cosmotologists Assoc., National Association of Cosmotology Schools, past officer and director of the Denver NHCA and the Optimist Club.

The Jensens, who live in Littleton, are active members of the Church of the Holy Spirit (Lutheran).

Earl Anderson, a former owner of several local beauty shops and a beauty college instructor, will manage the Americana school in Colorado Springs.

WAR ON 'CRACKERS

ROME (UPI)—Police throughout Italy continued their annual losing war Thursday against dangerous New Year's firecrackers. They seized tens of thousands of illegally manufactured fireworks over the past few weeks, but new year's firecracker noise and injuries are expected to be as widespread as ever.

Music Industry Sales Up 14 Percent in '64

Music instruments sales increased by 14 per cent in 1964 to reach the highest level in the history of the music industry, reported William R. Gard, executive vice - president of the National Association of Music Merchants.

Total sales exceeded $700,000,000 in 1964 and probably will go over the $750,000,000 in 1965, continuing industry gains chalked up every year in the past decade. "Music had an excellent year in 1964, again posting a greater gain than all retailing," reported Gard.

The NAMM executive expects the music industry to benefit in 1965 from predicted elimination of the excise tax on music instruments. The biggest plant expansion in the postwar years and a record number of new store openings is also expected to help push the music industry to new records in 1965.

The annual Music Show, in which home entertainment and music instrument manufacturers display their lines for the year, will be the biggest ever, for the first time occupying two Chicago hotels, the Conrad Hilton and Pick-Congress, and reflecting the "tremendous industry growth and the boom in musical interest," Gard stated.

Projections by the music and home entertainment industry for 1965 include expected sales of 2,000,000 color TV sets and 32 million radios.

"Any way you view it — given the present conditions and circumstances — can 1965 be other than good?" declared the NAMM executive. "Continuing prosperity is reflected in what amounts to a culture boom in the U.S. More people are playing and listening to music than ever before and they are willing to spend more money than ever to pursue their interest.

There is every indication that the trend in the future will accelerate rather than diminish."

Mail Order Sale Of Guns Denounced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., will seek stiff laws curbing what he calls the wide open mail-order sale of handguns to teen-agers, criminals, drunkards and drug addicts.

A Dodd proposal calling for restrictions on mail order gun sales died last year in the Senate Commerce Committee.

In the new Congress, Dodd plans to renew this proposal. But he says he also wants a study of why no federal law prevents the sale of heavier weapons, such as the antitank cannon which some New Jersey teenagers recently fired at a bar, or the bazooka from which a shell was fired at the United Nations' headquarters on Dec. 11.

National's '65 Forecast Sees Progress, Profit

The continuing uptrend in business activity was characterized as "progress with profit" today by National Securities & Research Corporation.

In The 1965 Forecast, the managers of the $630 million National Securities Series of mutual funds predict new records in the economy for the coming year. Corporate profits, after taxes, of $34 billion are forecast for 1965, compared to an estimated $32 billion for 1964.

The investment company singles out marked increases in depreciation accruals which have accompanied rising profits as evidence that the quality of corporate earnings has more than kept pace with quantitative growth in recent years.

Total corporate dividends are expected to show an almost 10 per cent gain to $22 billion in 1965, from approximately $20.1 billion this year.

The fund managers estimate gross national product in 1965 will reach $659 billion, up from about $624 billion in 1964. Total retail trade is seen rising approximately $12 billion to $273.6 billion. Plant and equipment outlays of $49 billion are forecast, against an estimated $44.7 billion this year.

Domestic car production of 7.9 million units is predicted by National, following this year's total of about 7.7 million. Another good auto year is seen benefitting makers of auto parts and tires as well as car manufacturers.

Other industry groups expected to show strong overall increases in sales revenue include: household furnishing and other consumer durables such as appliances; retail trade, vending food service, amusements, textiles, apparel, drugs cosmetics and containers.

Also building material companies, makers of machinery, machine tools, railroad equipment, office equipment and electrical equipment.

Also, producers of aluminum, copper, paper, chemicals and petroleum. New peaks in volume and earnings are predicted for airlines.

The forecast now in its 18th year, contains tabular presentations of estimated 1965 earnings and dividends of 65 industrials, 25 utilities and 20 railroads. The following is a partial list of companies covered in the study which are expected to show a 10 per cent or better increase in earnings in 1965:

Aluminum Co. of America, American Airlines, Anaconda Co., Automatic Retailers of America, Consolidated Edison, Eastman Kodak, Firestone Tire & Rubber, Ford Motor Co., General Electric Company, General Motors Corp., Goodyear Tire & Rubber, Illinois Central Industries, International Paper, Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. Merck & Co. Minnesota Mining & Mfr., Phelps Dodge, Radio Corporation of America, Sinclair Oil, J. P. Stevens Co., Swift & Co., Union Carbide Corp. United States Steel, Westinghouse Electric.

National Securities & Research Corporation believes the Forecast is the most widely distributed of its kind in the Free World. It is available without charge from investment dealers throughout the country.

National's '65 Forecast Sees Progress, Profit

The continuing uptrend in business activity was characterized as "progress with profit" today by National Securities & Research Corporation.

In The 1965 Forecast, the managers of the $630 million National Securities Series of mutual funds predict new records in the economy for the coming year. Corporate profits, after taxes, of $34 billion are forecast for 1965, compared to an estimated $32 billion for 1964.

The investment company singles out marked increases in depreciation accruals which have accompanied rising profits as evidence that the quality of corporate earnings has more than kept pace with quantitative growth in recent years.

Total corporate dividends are expected to show an almost 10 per cent gain to $22 billion in 1965, from approximately $20.1 billion this year.

The fund managers estimate gross national product in 1965 will reach $659 billion, up from about $624 billion in 1964. Total retail trade is seen rising approximately $12 billion to $273.6 billion. Plant and equipment outlays of $49 billion are forecast, against an estimated $44.7 billion this year.

Domestic car production of 7.9 million units is predicted by National, following this year's total of about 7.7 million. Another good auto year is seen benefitting makers of auto parts and tires as well as car manufacturers.

Other industry groups expected to show strong overall increases in sales revenue include: household furnishing and other consumer durables such as appliances; retail trade, vending food service, amusements, textiles, apparel, drugs cosmetics and containers.

Also building material companies, makers of machinery, machine tools, railroad equipment, office equipment and electrical equipment.

Also, producers of aluminum, copper, paper, chemicals and petroleum. New peaks in volume and earnings are predicted for airlines.

The forecast now in its 18th year, contains tabular presentations of estimated 1965 earnings and dividends of 65 industrials, 25 utilities and 20 railroads. The following is a partial list of companies covered in the study which are expected to show a 10 per cent or better increase in earnings in 1965: Aluminum Co. of America, American Airlines, Anaconda Co., Automatic Retailers of America, Consolidated Edison, Eastman Kodak, Firestone Tire & Rubber, Ford Motor Co., General Electric Company, General Motors Corp., Goodyear Tire & Rubber, Illinois Central Industries, International Paper, Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., Merck & Co. Minnesota Mining & Mfr., Phelps Dodge, Radio Corporation of America, Sinclair Oil, J. P. Stevens Co., Swift & Co., Union Carbide Corp. United States Steel, Westinghouse Electric.

National Securities & Research Corporation believes the Forecast is the most widely distributed of its kind in the Free World. It is available without charge from investment dealers throughout the country.

Railroad Outlays Climb To Record 39 Per Cent

Railroad outlays for new train equipment and other modern facilities climbed 39 per cent to a record $1.4 billion level in 1964, according to year-end reports by the Association of American Railroads. The AAR added that continued national prosperity should bring equal or even greater railroad modernization spending in 1965.

These results in other areas were also recorded by the nation's railroads, indicating a continued comeback for most of the industry from the traffic recession of 1958 - 61:

Freight traffic ton-mileage rose 7 per cent over 1963 to 665 billion ton - miles as freight loadings increased by some 500,000 cars to more than 29 million.

—Total operating revenue came to $9.9 billion, up 4 per cent.

—Net earnings from railroad operations increased 7 per cent to an estimated $865 million.

—Rate of return on net investment rose to 3 1-3 per cent, up from 3 1 per cent in 1963.

—Net income from all sources, after deductions of fixed charges, increased 11 per cent to about $725 million.

Passenger traffic, with the exception of commuter travel, continued downward for the 14th consecutive year as total passenger mileage dropped about 1 per cent from the 1963 level. Total passengers carried increased, owing to gains in commuter travel.

And in the first nine months of 1964, 23 of the nation's Class I railroads failed to earn enough to cover their fixed charges.

Freight traffic gains stemmed largely from plant modernization efforts and from the increasing influence of such new services as piggyback, cut-rate shipping by high-volume unit trains, and multi-level rack-car movements of automobiles.

Piggyback kept more than two million revenue highway trailers or containers off crowded highways — an increase of 12 per cent over 1963.

Unit train movements of coal expanded to the point where one recent estimate found this and other transport efficiencies trimming the fuel bills of electric power generating plants by about $50 million a year.

And bi-level and tri-level auto rack cars hauled more than 3 million new motor vehicles or one third of the nation's production in 1964 — a 25 per cent increase over 1963 and the railroads' highest share of this market since 1947.

AAR Prehident Daniel P. Loomis, commenting on the year-end reports, characterized 1964 as "a good year for traffic but only a moderate one for earnings."

"And even earnings forecasts," he said, "must be viewed in perspective against the background of retroactive wage settlements and unresolved wage cases."

A labor milestone was reached early in the year when the Supreme Court in April upheld a Federation Arbitration Board award on the diesel fireman and crew "consist" issues in the work rules dispute. The ruling enabled railroads to begin eliminating 90 per cent of the 33,000 firemen's jobs on locomotives in freight and yard service, mostly by natural attrition and with multiple worker-benefits, and to negotiate and arbitrate on individual railroads the "consist" issue of the number of men in a train crew.

In other labor developments during the year (1) agreement was reached on April 22 with the aid of two Presidentially-appointed mediators on various other issues in the prolonged work rules dispute; (2) railroads signed contracts providing increased wages and other benefits for almost all the major rail unions; and (3) state excess - crew statutes were repealed in November by voters in Arizona, California and North Dakota (and by the Mississippi legislature earlier in the year).

A merger milestone was reached in October when six railroads were consolidated into one streamlined system. Merger of the Norfolk and Western Railway with the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, including the lease or control of four other railroads, was the third major merger approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission in two years.

At year - end, 12 unification proposals were pending before the ICC, including merger of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania and merger of the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington and lease of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle.

Capital spending for railroad modernization enabled the industry to continue in 1964 its drive toward more competitive rates and improved freight services. Installation at an average price of $14,000 each of 65,000 new freight cars — including piggyback, rack and king-sized hoppers and box cars — was almost double the 34,000 installations of 1963. Significantly, the average capacity of new freight cars is 76 tons compared with 50 tons for those being retired.

Further efficiency gains were realized in freight train performance. Gross ton-miles per train-hour — an over-all indicator of both train load and train speed — reached a new record high for the 19th consecutive year. And the average revenue received by railroads for hauling one ton of freight a mile continued downward for the sixth straight year, dropping 13 per cent below the 1958 level while consumer prices rose 7 per cent in this period.

Major legislative results affecting railroads in the 88th Congress were scant, with the exception of passage of the $375-million mass transit aid bill.

A modified version of the Administration's "fair competition" legislation to relax freight rate regulation over selected commodities cleared the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, but was blocked by the House Rules Committee.

Also stymied in the legislative process was action on the issue of applying adquate user charges to commercial beneficiaries of government - developed airways and inland waterways. The Administration proposed draft legislation,, submitted by Treasury Secretary Dillon in April, to set a tax of two cents a gallon on fuels used by inland waterway vessels, and maintain or add to existing commercial and general aviation excise and fuel taxes.

House hearings were also held on a bill to prohibit unjust discrimination in property tax assessment of common carrier property by state and local governments.

The legislative outlook for 1965 will be affected by the undisclosed work of an 11 - man transportation task force — one of nearly a dozen such groups named by President Johnson last summer to study various domestic problems — and by any White House recommendations it may produce in budgetary and legislative proposals to the new Congress.

But a more certain key transport issue for the new 89th Congress was spotlighted before the 88th Congress had left Washington. In August, Secretary of Commerce Hodges sent Congress a report recommending increases in Federal size and weight limits for trucks using the 41,000 - mile Interstate Highway system. He promised to submit early in 1965 legislation on his recommendations, together with a revised estimate of costs of the Interstate system.

These, he said, will "form the basis for a review of the financial needs of the Federal-aid program, both with respect to total needs and the equity of the user tax system."

Ford Foundation Tops $2 Billion Mark in '64

The Ford Foundation last year passed the $2 billion mark in its grants and other commitments for support of work toward educational, cultural, and community progress, according to its 1964 Annual Report published today.

Since it was established in 1936, the Foundation has committed $2.2 billion in underwriting efforts—by institutions, talented individuals, and communities—toward the solution of problems of national importance.

In a introduction to the 1964 Annual Report, Henry T. Heald, president of the Foundation, discusses the worldwide dimensions of one of the Foundation's main current fields of interest—"efforts to deal with the somber arithmetic of population growth."

Since 1954, when the Foundation made its first important grant in the field of population, Heald notes, the world's population has increased by 600 million people, the equivalent of the combined populations of the United States, all of South America, and the Soviet Union.

"Particularly in the poorer two-thirds of the world, where the greatest increases have occurred, the rising tide of population threatens to frustrate hopes for a better life," he says. (Even in the United States, Mr. Heald notes, "population is a factor in concern about problems of air pollution, educational facilities, urban deterioration, and the quality of modern life in general.")

"But significantly, widespread concern—if not alarm—also developed during the decade . . . . This concern was not crystallized until the unprecedented spread of expectations. . .that the mass of people might not merely survive but might live in some comfort and decency, with real hopes of betterment for themselves and their children.

"The hard facts of economic development and the compound interest of human fertility combine to frustrate these aspirations. Food production and industrialization in some of the newly developing countries have increased significantly, but gains in "per capita" income have been minimal. More people are surviving, but often under such wretched conditions that existence has little meaning.

"An increase in the food supply alone is not the answer, for the issue is not simply to prevent starvation. . . . For, like a growing organism, a country trying to lift iself by its bootstraps must have a double portion—one to exist on and one to grow on. To achieve higher levels of living a nation must develop its capital resources. It must invest in productive machinery agricultural technology, and technical and professional education.

But increased expenditures of income to provide mere subsistence for greater numbers of people leaves little to invest in the tools of economic progress.

"Only massive sustained action can apply the brakes to onrushing population," Heald says, "but nationwide family-planning efforts are still in their infancy . . . .Since time is of the essence and government response is still inadequate to the population challenge, private efforts will continue to play a major role."

Private American foundations have been active in population work since E. W. Scripps, a newspaper publisher, established a population research foundation in the 1920s, he notes.

Heald said the Ford Foundation efforts in population, to which a total of $34.5 million has been committed, is "a microcosm of the national and international efforts required to break the cycle of runaway population." Its objectives are "to assist research in reproductive biology that might lead to improved birth-control methods suitable for worldwide use; to help develop the manpower and institutions necessary to educate families toward fertility regulation and provide them with the means; and to help improve the analysis and collection of vital statistics and other population data."

Of the $2.2 billion the Foundation has committed for all philanthropic purposes since it was established, the bulk has been given since 1950, when control of the Foundation, which had been established by Henry Ford and Edsel Ford, passed from the family to a broadly representative board of trustees and the Foundation became a national institution.

The Foundation's greatest single field of concentration has been the advancement of American education. One tenth ($218.5 million) of the Foundation's grant total has been given in a special effort, launched in 1960, to advance the development of selected private colleges and universities as regional and national centers of excellence; fifty-seven institutions have received grants.

Other Foundation contributions to education include establishment of the National Merit Scholarship Program, Educational Facilities Laboratories, and the Fund for the Advancement of Education; expansion of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowships on a national basis; a nationwide program to raise college-faculty salaries; the development of educational television for school and college teaching; modernization of vocational education, engineering education, and higher education for business management; strengthening of rural schools; improvements in the preparation of school teachers; and a variety of experimental and demonstration programs ranging from preschool education for disadvantaged children to accelerated doctoral programs for talented students.

Other fields the Foundation has assisted include the arts, economic and social problems of the aging, juvenile delinquency, pilot programs in combating poverty, assistance to less-developed countries, the advancement of international understanding and cooperation, and problems of urbanization.

U.S. Auto Taxes Set Record in Fiscal 1964

Special federal automotive excise taxes poured a record amount of money into the nation's treasury in the fiscal year ending June 30, according to figures released by the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Taxes on the sale and use of automotive products resulted in the collection of nearly $5.7 billion, U.S. Treasury Department records show. This amount is more that twice the $2.2 billion collected in 1954.

Trucks and buses were important sources of federal vehicle tax revenues. Excise taxes on new trucks, buses and trailers amounted to $350 million. Diesel and special fuel taxes, primarily paid by commercial vehicles, were $128 million, while annual use taxes on larger trucks provided another $100 million.

Owners and operators of trucks and buses also paid a significant portion of the taxes collected on gasoline, parts and accessories, tires, tubes, and lubricating oil. The AMA estimates that commercial vehicles pay about 30 per cent of the gasoline taxes, or $780 million in the past fiscal year.

Firestone Co. Sees Banner Year Ahead

The year 1964 was our best year yet. Sales reached new highs. Profits continued to increase. I see no indication that the upturn the industry has enjoyed the past several years will not continue.

Replacement tire sales jumped by almost 11 million units over the previous year to a new high of about 103 million units. With retread sales included, the figure was almost 145 million tires. A five per cent increase in replacement sales is being forecast for 1965 by market researchers.

By 1969, the tire industry expects to sell at least 165 million new and retread replacement tires a year, or about 14 per cent more than were marketed in 1964.

With the automobile industry expressing optimism about the acceptance of its 1965 models, original equipment shipments of tires should remain strong.

We see many reasons for looking into the future with optimism. Continuing prosperity and the increasing number of families will reflect on the industry's sales. The number of multi - car families will increase. Interstate freeways and turnpikes will expand, allowing Americans to be more mobile than ever and to become more dependent on their motor vehicles.

Our industry will continue its research and development efforts, paving the way for the introduction of new and improved rubber products for the home, the farm, national defense, industry, and especially for the individual car owner.

The American rubber industry long ago saw the value of the world market. It has many facilities in foreign lands and those operations will be expanded during the coming year.

Two New Ambassadors Named by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has selected Maurice M. Bernbaum as ambassador to Venezuela and Wymberly DeR. Coerr as ambassador to Ecuador. Both are career diplomats.

Bernbaum now is ambassador to Ecuador. He will succeed C. Alan Stewart in Caracas. Stewart has been assigned duties in Washington. Coerr has been ambassador to Uruguay since 1962. No replacement was announced for him there.

Railroad Outlays Climb To Record 39 Per Cent

Railroad outlays for new train equipment and other modern facilities climbed 39 per cent to a record $1.4 billion level in 1964, according to year-end reports by the Association of American Railroads. The AAR added that continued national prosperity should bring equal or even greater railroad modernization spending in 1965.

These results in other areas were also recorded by the nation's railroads, indicating a continued comeback for most of the industry from the traffic recession of 1958 - 61:

Freight traffic ton-mileage rose 7 per cent over 1963 to 665 billion ton - miles as freight loadings increased by some 500,000 cars to more than 29 million.

—Total operating revenue came to $9.9 billion, up 4 per cent.

—Net earnings from railroad operations increased 7 per cent to an estimated $865 million.

—Rate of return on net investment rose to 3 1-3 per cent, up from 3.1 per cent in 1963.

—Net income from all sources, after deductions of fixed charges, increased 11 per cent to about $725 million.

Passenger traffic, with the exception of commuter travel, continued downward for the 14th consecutive year as total passenger mileage dropped about 1 per cent from the 1963 level. Total passengers carried increased, owing to gains in commuter travel.

And in the first nine months of 1964, 23 of the nation's Class I railroads failed to earn enough to cover their fixed charges.

Freight traffic gains stemmed largely from plant modernization efforts and from the increasing influence of such new services as piggyback, cut-rate shipping by high-volume unit trains, and multi-level rack-car movements of automobiles.

Piggyback kept more than two million revenue highway trailers or containers off crowded highways — an increase of 12 per cent over 1963.

Unit train movements of coal expanded to the point where one recent estimate found this and other transport efficiencies trimming the fuel bills of electric power generating plants by about $50 million a year.

And bi-level and tri-level auto rack cars hauled more than 3 million new motor vehicles or one third of the nation's production in 1964 — a 25 per cent increase over 1963 and the railroads' highest share of this market since 1947.

AAR Prehident Daniel P. Loomis, commenting on the year-end reports, characterized 1964 as "a good year for traffic but only a moderate one for earnings."

"And even earnings forecasts," he said, "must be viewed in perspective against the background of retroactive wage settlements and unresolved wage cases."

A labor milestone was reached early in the year when the Supreme Court in April upheld a Federation Arbitration Board award on the diesel fireman and crew "consist" issues in the work rules dispute. The ruling enabled railroads to begin eliminating 90 per cent of the 33,000 firemen's jobs on locomotives in freight and yard service, mostly by natural attrition and with multiple worker-benefits, and to negotiate and arbitrate on individual railroads the "consist" issue of the number of men in a train crew.

In other labor developments during the year (1) agreement was reached on April 22 with the aid of two Presidentially-appointed mediators on various other issues in the prolonged work rules dispute; (2) railroads signed contracts providing increased wages and other benefits for almost all the major rail unions; and (3) state excess - crew statutes were repealed in November by voters in Arizona, California and North Dakota (and by the Mississippi legislature earlier in the year).

A merger milestone was reached in October when six railroads were consolidated into one streamlined system. Merger of the Norfolk and Western Railway with the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad, including the lease or control of four other railroads, was the third major merger approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission in two years.

At year - end, 12 unification proposals were pending before the ICC, including merger of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania and merger of the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington and lease of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle.

Capital spending for railroad modernization enabled the industry to continue in 1964 its drive toward more competitive rates and improved freight services. Installation at an average price of $14,000 each of 65,000 new freight cars — including piggyback, rack and king-sized hoppers and box cars — was almost double the 34,000 installations of 1963. Significantly, the average capacity of new freight cars is 76 tons compared with 50 tons for those being retired.

Further efficiency gains were realized in freight train performance. Gross ton-miles per train-hour — an over-all indicator of both train load and train speed — reached a new record high for the 19th consecutive year. And the average revenue received by railroads for hauling one ton of freight a mile continued downward for the sixth straight year, dropping 13 per cent below the 1958 level while consumer prices rose 7 per cent in this period.

Major legislative results affecting railroads in the 88th Congress were scant, with the exception of passage of the $375-million mass transit aid bill.

A modified version of the Administration's "fair competition" legislation to relax freight rate regulation over selected commodities cleared the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, but was blocked by the House Rules Committee.

Also stymied in the legislative process was action on the issue of applying adquate user charges to commercial beneficiaries of government - developed airways and inland waterways. The Administration proposed draft legislation, submitted by Treasury Secretary Dillon in April, to set a tax of two cents a gallon on fuels used by inland waterway vessels, and maintain or add to existing commercial and general aviation excise and fuel taxes.

House hearings were also held on a bill to prohibit unjust discrimination in property tax assessment of common carrier property by state and local governments.

The legislative outlook for 1965 will be affected by the undisclosed work of an 11 - man transportation task force — one of nearly a dozen such groups named by President Johnson last summer to study various domestic problems — and by any White House recommendations it may produce in budgetary and legislative proposals to the new Congress.

But a more certain key transport issue for the new 89th Congress was spotlighted before the 88th Congress had left Washington. In August, Secretary of Commerce Hodges sent Congress a report recommending increases in Federal size and weight limits for trucks using the 41,000 - mile Interstate Highway system. He promised to submit early in 1965 legislation on his recommendations, together with a revised estimate of costs of the Interstate system.

These, he said, will "form the basis for a review of the financial needs of the Federal-aid program, both with respect to total needs and the equity of the user tax system."

Ford Foundation Tops $2 Billion Mark in '64

The Ford Foundation last year passed the $2 billion mark in its grants and other commitments for support of work toward educational, cultural, and community progress, according to its 1964 Annual Report published today.

Since it was established in 1936, the Foundation has committed $2.2 billion in underwriting efforts—by institutions, talented individuals, and communities—toward the solution of problems of national importance.

In a introduction to the 1964 Annual Report, Henry T. Heald, president of the Foundation, discusses the worldwide dimensions of one of the Foundation's main current fields of interest—"efforts to deal with the somber arithmetic of population growth."

Since 1954, when the Foundation made its first important grant in the field of population, Heald notes, the world's population has increased by 600 million people, the equivalent of the combined populations of the United States, all of South America, and the Soviet Union.

"Particularly in the poorer two-thirds of the world, where the greatest increases have occurred, the rising tide of population threatens to frustrate hopes for a better life," he says. (Even in the United States, Mr. Heald notes, "population is a factor in concern about problems of air pollution, educational facilities, urban deterioration, and the quality of modern life in general.")

"But significantly, widespread concern—if not alarm—also developed during the decade . . . . This concern was not crystallized until the unprecedented spread of expectations. . .that the mass of people might not merely survive but might live in some comfort and decency, with real hopes of betterment for themselves and their children.

"The hard facts of economic development and the compound interest of human fertility combine to frustrate these aspirations. Food production and industrialization in some of the newly developing countries have increased significantly, but gains in "per capita" income have been minimal. More people are surviving, but often under such wretched conditions that existence has little meaning.

"An increase in the food supply alone is not the answer, for the issue is not simply to prevent starvation. . . . For, like a growing organism, a country trying to lift iself by its bootstraps must have a double portion—one to exist on and one to grow on. To achieve higher levels of living a nation must develop its capital resources. It must invest in productive machinery agricultural technology, and technical and professional education.

But increased expenditures of income to provide mere subsistence for greater numbers of people leaves little to invest in the tools of economic progress.

"Only massive sustained action can apply the brakes to onrushing population," Heald says, "but nationwide family-planning efforts are still in their infancy . . . .Since time is of the essence and government response is still inadequate to the population challenge, private efforts will continue to play a major role."

Private American foundations have been active in population work since E. W. Scripps, a newspaper publisher, established a population research foundation in the 1920s, he notes.

Heald said the Ford Foundation efforts in population, to which a total of $34.5 million has been committed, is "a microcosm of the national and international efforts required to break the cycle of runaway population." Its objectives are "to assist research in reproductive biology that might lead to improved birth-control methods suitable for worldwide use; to help develop the manpower and institutions necessary to educate families toward fertility regulation and provide them with the means; and to help improve the analysis and collection of vital statistics and other population data."

Of the $2.2 billion the Foundation has committed for all philanthropic purposes since it was established, the bulk has been given since 1950, when control of the Foundation, which had been established by Henry Ford and Edsel Ford, passed from the family to a broadly representative board of trustees and the Foundation became a national institution.

The Foundation's greatest single field of concentration has been the advancement of American education. One tenth ($218.5 million) of the Foundation's grant total has been given in a special effort, launched in 1960, to advance the development of selected private colleges and universities as regional and national centers of excellence; fifty-seven institutions have received grants.

Other Foundation contributions to education include establishment of the National Merit Scholarship Program, Educational Facilities Laboratories, and the Fund for the Advancement of Education; expansion of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowships on a national basis; a nationwide program to raise college-faculty salaries; the development of educational television for school and college teaching; modernization of vocational education, engineering education, and higher education for business management; strengthening of rural schools; improvements in the preparation of school teachers; and a variety of experimental and demonstration programs ranging from preschool education for disadvantaged children to accelerated doctoral programs for talented students.

Other fields the Foundation has assisted include the arts, economic and social problems of the aging, juvenile delinquency, pilot programs in combating poverty, assistance to less-developed countries, the advancement of international understanding and cooperation, and problems of urbanization.

U.S. Auto Taxes Set Record in Fiscal 1964

Special federal automotive excise taxes poured a record amount of money into the nation's treasury in the fiscal year ending June 30, according to figures released by the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Taxes on the sale and use of automotive products resulted in the collection of nearly $5.7 billion, U.S. Treasury Department records show. This amount is more that twice the $2.2 billion collected in 1954.

Trucks and buses were important sources of federal vehicle tax revenues. Excise taxes on new trucks, buses and trailers amounted to $350 million. Diesel and special fuel taxes, primarily paid by commercial vehicles, were $128 million, while annual use taxes on larger trucks provided another $100 million.

Owners and operators of trucks and buses also paid a significant portion of the taxes collected on gasoline, parts and accessories, tires, tubes, and lubricating oil. The AMA estimates that commercial vehicles pay about 30 per cent of the gasoline taxes, or $780 million in the past fiscal year.

Firestone Co. Sees Banner Year Ahead

The year 1964 was our best year yet. Sales reached new highs. Profits continued to increase. I see no indication that the upturn the industry has enjoyed the past several years will not continue.

Replacement tire sales jumped by almost 11 million units over the previous year to a new high of about 103 million units. With retread sales included, the figure was almost 145 million tires. A five per cent increase in replacement sales is being forecast for 1965 by market researchers.

By 1969, the tire industry expects to sell at least 165 million new and retread replacement tires a year, or about 14 per cent more than were marketed in 1964.

With the automobile industry expressing optimism about the acceptance of its 1965 models, original equipment shipments of tires should remain strong.

We see many reasons for looking into the future with optimism. Continuing prosperity and the increasing number of families will reflect on the industry's sales. The number of multi - car families will increase. Interstate freeways and turnpikes will expand, allowing Americans to be more mobile than ever and to become more dependent on their motor vehicles.

Our industry will continue its research and development efforts, paving the way for the introduction of new and improved rubber products for the home, the farm, national defense, industry, and especially for the individual car owner.

The American rubber industry long ago saw the value of the world market. It has many facilities in foreign lands and those operations will be expanded during the coming year.

Two New Ambassadors Named by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has selected Maurice M. Bernbaum as ambassador to Venezuela and Wymberly DeR. Coerr as ambassador to Ecuador. Both are career diplomats.

Bernbaum now is ambassador to Ecuador. He will succeed C. Alan Stewart in Caracas. Stewart has been assigned duties in Washington. Coerr has been ambassador to Uruguay since 1962. No replacement was announced for him there.

Revenue Pressures Push State Taxes Higher in '64

Revenue pressures influenced the actions of legisaltive sessions held by more than half of the states in 1964—a year that saw state tax collections reach an all-time high of $24.2 billion, says Commerce Clearing House in its annual state tax roundup.

Legislatures, tax administrators and the courts continued to effect many important state tax changes. Those income tax states whose systems are directly linked to the federal income tax system moved to realign their state codes in the face of the massive new 1964 federal Revenue Act.

With regular legislative sessions convening in forty-seven states during 1965—42 in January—the state tax trend is expected to continue upward. More than 25 per cent of an estimated 89,500 bills introduced in the big odd-year sessions will involve taxes, with some 2,500 becoming law.

INCOME TAX

Corporate income taxes were increased in Georgia from 4 per cent to 5 per cent. Maryland provided for a 1 per cent hike in its personal income tax rates from 3 per cent to 4 per cent on ordinary income and on the first -500 of net investment income but later repealed the increase when it was found the additional revenue was not needed.

When the federal income tax rates went down earlier this year Alaska had to adopt new personal and corporate income tax bases, measured by taxable income—rather than a percentage of federal income tax paid in—to maintain its current level of income tax.

Other states had an income tax withholding rate tied to the amount of federal withholding. Thus, when the federal rate dropped from 18 per cent to 14 per cent a change in the withholding rates of these states was necessary to maintain their present level of revenue.

On this point, legislative action was generally not necessary and the remedy was provided administratively. But Colodado and Alaska had to correct the problem by legislation.

Alaska also raised its withholding rate from 16 per cent to 20.5 per cent of the amount of federal taxes withheld to compensate for the reduction in federal withholding. Colorado, on the other hand, abandoned its method of typing its statutory withholding rate to a percentage of federal, and, instead, required the state Director of Revenue to adopt withholding methods which come nearest to the income tax due the state.

Colorado also amended its income tax law to bring it into closer agreement with the federal law beginning in 1965.

New Hampshire voters in the November election defeated a proposal which would have empowered their legislature to levy graduated taxes such as income and inheritance taxes.

California's governor signed two bills approved by that state's legislature which substantially conform the state's personal income, bank and corporation income taxes to the 1964 changes in the Internal Revenue Code.

Kentucky enacted a law allowing an additional first-year depreciation deduction and Pennsylvania repealed its deduction for the amount of the federal investment tax credit, according to the CCH Review.

SALES AND USE TAXES

During the year, sales and use taxes were increased in Mississippi and Rhode Island from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent. Mississippi also made permanent its additional sales tax rates applicable to certain items, and West Virginia extended to June 30, 1965, its one cent additional consumers' sales and use taxes.

Wisconsin restricted applicability of its sales and use tax on certain items, including laundry services.

In Louisiana, school boards, subject to voter approval, may levy sales taxes, while wholesalers, manufacturers, jobbers and suppliers are now responsible for the advance collection of the 2 per cent sales and use tax.

PROPERTY TAXES

During the year, Alabama, Delaware, Mississippi and New York enacted condominium laws wherein such horizontal property regimes are treated as separate dwellings for assessment and taxation purposes. Their actions brought to 41 the number of states—plus the District of Columbia—which have enacted such laws.

CIGARETTE TAXES

Two separate developments sparked state cigarette tax legislation during 1964. First, Mississippi hiked its tax-per pack rate to 9 cents—a national high. And Colorado—long one of only three states which didn't tax cigaretes began levying a new 3-cents-a-pack tax. Colorado's action leaves only Oregon and North Carolina as states without a cigarette tax.

Georgia and Rhode Island raised their rates to 8-cents-a-pack. With these two states, no fewer than 14 states now impose the high 8-cents-a-pack figure. Beginning January 1, 1965, there will be 15 states when the Massachusetts rate goes from 6 cents to 8 cents per pack.

Kansas raised its cigarette tax rate from 4 cents to 6 cents per pack, the CCH review said. The 3-cents-a-pack Virginia tax—formerly scheduled to expire last June—was extended for two more years.

LIQUOR TAXES

GASOLINE TAXES

Alaska made permanent its additional 1 cents tax per gallon which means drivers will continue to pay 8 cents on every gallon of gasoline bought there. Maryland's gasoline tax went up June 1 from 6 to 7 cents per gallon.

Wisconsin voters defeated a proposal to hike that state's per gallon levy from 6 to 7 cents. Virginia extended its gasoline tax liability to bulk importers and Mississippi added two exemptions to its oil excise tax but limited the gas tax exemption granted to U.S. Armed Forces. In Louisiana, wholesalers were allowed to pay the gasoline tax directly to the collector of revenue.

SPECIAL LEGISLATION

Alaska and California provided immediate property tax relief legislation for victims of the March 27 Alaskan earthquake and subsequent California tidal wave. Also, alcoholic beverage retailers, jobbers and wholesalers in both states were allowed excise tax relief for goods damaged by the quake or tidal wave.

California voters approved a constitutional amendment calling for property tax relief in sections determined disaster areas by the governor.

In Louisiana real estate transactions made between January 1 and June 30, 1965 will be taxed at 30 cents per $100 of consideration involved.

INTERSTATE INCOME LAW

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to rule on the controversial Interstate Income Law, thus leaving intact the Louisiana Supreme Court decision upholding its validity.

But the Oregon Tax Court has declared the law unconstitutional, with an appeal of this ruling pending before the Oregon Supreme Court. Also, the Missouri Supreme Court has upheld the law.

In 1959, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a state net income tax fairly apportioned could be collected on profits earned exclusively in interstate commerce. Business reacted vigorously to this tax threat with the knowledge that no less than 37 states plus the District of Columbia tax corporate income.

As a result, Congress passed the Interstate Income Law, the first Congressional attempt to limit state power to tax interstate business. This law prohibits a state from imposing a net income tax on foreign corporations whose only contact with the state is the solicitation of orders.

This law was intended to serve as a stopgap measure pending further study of the underlying difficulties by a Congressional Committee. The first findings of the three-year study—made public in mid-year—indicate that state income tax systems are wroking ineffectively for both interstate business, numbering some 120,00 companies, and the states.

STATE TAX PROPOSALS AND THE ELECTION

Returns from the November general election generally showed that voter reaction favored tax exemption proposals but rejected tax expansion issues.

Property tax exemptions were approved in California and Nebraska, and in Kansas voters adopted a proposition calling for a tax exemption for all household goods and personal effects not used in the production of income.

But North Dakotans rejected a proposal exempting all personal property owned by resident individuals and corporations doing business in the state, and all personal property located in the state.

Bond issues—to be funded if necessary by the levy of property taxes—were approved in New Jersey, New Mexico, Rhode Island, Washington and West Virginia.

Askansas voters balked at increasing the municipal and county property tax limitation to 1 per cent of the assessed value of property, and Wyoming voters reacted likewise to a proposed increase to 12 mills of the tax levy limit of cities and towns. A local support levy for school districts not to exceed 15 mills was defeated by Oklahoma voters, according to the CCH Annual State Tax Review.

Stock Market Produces Rally at Year's End

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (AP) — In the final week of 1964 the stock market managed to produce one of its usual year-end rallies, but not by a very wide margin.

The gains on average were posted on the last two trading days of the year when the market rallied sharply in heavy trading. The first two days of the four-day trading week, shortened by the New Year's holiday, were losers.

Heavy reinvestment demand accounted for strength in the market on the final two days, brokers said.

The popular market averages, however, were clearly higher on New Year's Eve than they were on Christmas Eve, and this is period of the usual "year-end rally." The market indicators, however, were a little lower as the year ended than they were at the close of trading in November. For the year as a whole, the market scored a big gain.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average this week advanced 5.97 to 874.13, leaving it well below the historic closing high of 891.71 reached Nov. 18.

Of 1,515 issues traded this week, 709 rose and 608 fell.

Volume for the four days was 20,560,810 shares compared with 17,080,260 million in the four-day trading week previous.

After six sessions of desultory action, most of it losing, the market rallied suddenly on Wednesday when 5.59 million shares were traded. The advance continued Thursday on volume of 6.53 million, the heaviest since Nov. 8.

On Monday and Tuesday prices slipped, Tuesday's loss being fairly sharp. The market seemed extremely uncertain about immediate prospects, clouded by Britain's financial difficulties and talk that devaluation of the pound sterling was a possibility. This fear brought strength to the old mining stocks but lack of confidence to the stock list as a whole.

Steels also showed some strength early in the week on news of price increases for galvanized sheet, but they wilted on reports that President Johnson was concerned about the price hikes.

With little change in the news, investment money came in from the "sidelines" on Wednesday and a brisk rally ensued. The gold mining stocks joined in the rise on Wednesday but they wilted Thursday on a report that the pound sterling is "on the way to improvement."

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Brunswick, up 1 at 9 on 523,600 shares; Benguet, up ¼ at 1¾; Sperry Rand, off ⅛ at 13⅞; Radio Corp., up 2¼ at 33⅜; and American Telephone, up 2 at 68¼.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Revenue Pressures Push State Taxes Higher in '64

Revenue pressures influenced the actions of legisaltive sessions held by more than half of the states in 1964—a year that saw state tax collections reach an all-time high of $24.2 billion, says Commerce Clearing House in its annual state tax roundup.

Legislatures, tax administrators and the courts continued to effect many important state tax changes. Those income tax states whose systems are directly linked to the federal income tax system moved to realign their state codes in the face of the massive new 1964 federal Revenue Act.

With regular legislative sessions convening in forty-seven states during 1965—42 in January—the state tax trend is expected to continue upward. More than 25 per cent of an estimated 89,500 bills introduced in the big odd-year sessions will involve taxes, with some 2,500 becoming law.

INCOME TAX

Corporate income taxes were increased in Georgia from 4 per cent to 5 per cent. Maryland provided for a 1 per cent hike in its personal income tax rates from 3 per cent to 4 per cent on ordinary income and on the first -500 of net investment income but later repealed the increase when it was found the additional revenue was not needed.

When the federal income tax rates went down earlier this year Alaska had to adopt new personal and corporate income tax bases, measured by taxable income—rather than a percentage of federal income tax paid in—to maintain its current level of income tax.

Other states had an income tax withholding rate tied to the amount of federal withholding. Thus, when the federal rate dropped from 18 per cent to 14 per cent a change in the withholding rates of these states was necessary to maintain their present level of revenue.

On this point, legislative action was generally not necessary and the remedy was provided administratively. But Colodado and Alaska had to correct the problem by legislation.

Alaska also raised its withholding rate from 16 per cent to 20.5 per cent of the amount of federal taxes withheld to compensate for the reduction in federal withholding. Colorado, on the other hand, abandoned its method of typing its statutory withholding rate to a percentage of federal, and, instead, required the state Director of Revenue to adopt withholding methods which come nearest to the income tax due the state.

Colorado also amended its income tax law to bring it into closer agreement with the federal law beginning in 1965.

New Hampshire voters in the November election defeated a proposal which would have empowered their legislature to levy graduated taxes such as income and inheritance taxes.

California's governor signed two bills approved by that state's legislature which substantially conform the state's personal income, bank and corporation income taxes to the 1964 changes in the Internal Revenue Code.

Kentucky enacted a law allowing an additional first-year depreciation deduction and Pennsylvania repealed its deduction for the amount of the federal investment tax credit, according to the CCH Review.

SALES AND USE TAXES

During the year, sales and use taxes were increased in Mississippi and Rhode Island from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent. Mississippi also made permanent its additional sales tax rates applicable to certain items, and West Virginia extended to June 30, 1965, its one cent additional consumers' sales and use taxes.

Wisconsin restricted applicability of its sales and use tax on certain items, including laundry services.

In Louisiana, school boards, subject to voter approval, may levy sales taxes, while wholesalers, manufacturers, jobbers and suppliers are now responsible for the advance collection of the 2 per cent sales and use tax.

PROPERTY TAXES

Kansas raised its cigarette tax rate from 4 cents to 6 cents per pack, the CCH review said. The 3-cents-a-pack Virginia tax—formerly scheduled to expire last June—was extended for two more years.

LIQUOR TAXES

GASOLINE TAXES

Alaska made permanent its additional 1 cents tax per gallon which means drivers will continue to pay 8 cents on every gallon of gasoline bought there. Maryland's gasoline tax went up June 1 from 6 to 7 cents per gallon.

Wisconsin voters defeated a proposal to hike that state's per gallon levy from 6 to 7 cents. California voters approved a constitutional amendment calling for property tax relief in sections determined disaster areas by the governor.

In Louisiana real estate transactions made between January 1 and June 30, 1965 will be taxed at 30 cents per $100 of consideration involved.

INTERSTATE INCOME LAW

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to rule on the controversial Interstate Income Law, thus leaving intact the Louisiana Supreme Court decision upholding its validity.

But the Oregon Tax Court has declared the law unconstitutional, with an appeal of this ruling pending before the Oregon Supreme Court. Also, the Missouri Supreme Court has upheld the law.

Stock Market Produces Rally at Year's End

CU Museum Diaramas Are Result of One Man's Work

A large buck mule deer grazes peacefully on a grassy meadow while a doe stands nearby. Over a ridge strolls a younger and smaller male who stops and surveys the situation.

This scene and others like it are recreated out of wood, paper, paint and other mundane materials for interested persons wandering through the University of Colorado Museum.

The life-like, three-dimensional displays, done on a ten-to-one scale and less, each represent a minimum of 175 hours of work. Almost all of it was done by museum technician, Lowell Swenson. Every detail of the diaramas, as the scenes are called, was done meticulously by hand, down to a single tree leaf.

The animals and many of the humans are carved from wood by Swenson. Most of the human figures were done with wax.

But the handiwork and materials are not the only elements which go into the displays — a great deal of thought also is included.

"Although violent action is undesirable," Swenson said, "you also must get attention. I always strive to get some element of tension in the displays, some electricity."

This is why he created the latent drama among the deer, or between a small prairie dog and a huge buffalo who is intruding on the little one's territory, threatening his home.

There are five wildlife situations in the Museum and six displays which illustrate adjacent exhibits of Indian artifacts. The wildlife exhibits are in the second floor hallway of the Museum, and the Indian displays are in the Hall of Man.

The first dispaly — the mule deer — was put up in the spring of 1947 at the end of Swenson's first year at CU. The last depicts elk and their habitat and was put up last spring after three years of sporadic work.

Each of the wildlife exhibits has above it a stuffed, real head of the subject animal. Included, along with the deer, elk and bison displays, are antelope and mountain sheep.

Swenson is limited by demands on his time from other duties in the Museum and around the CU campus and by lack of money and space. Therefore, he cannot do the life-size exhibits seen in some other museums. But he makes up for the limitations with quality.

Each of the 11 diaramas shows the habitat and some of the characteristics of the animals and Indians he said. The Indian displays, however, are done on a smaller scale and consequently lack the detail of the wildlife exhibits.

Swenson is limited by demands on his time from other duties in the Museum and around the CU campus and by lack of money and space. Therefore, he cannot do the life-size exhibits seen in some other museums. But he makes up for the limitations with quality.

Each of the 11 diaramas shows the habitat and some of the characteristics of the animals and Indians he said. The Indian displays, however, are done on a smaller scale and consequently lack the detail of the wildlife exhibits.

ARADCOM

Since its beginning in 1943 as the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, women have been assigned throughout the world in various jobs ranging from clerks to truck drivers.

Staff Sgt. Wilma P. Walworth, a chief accountant with the Comptroller Section of Army Air Defense Command headquarters, is one of 14 Wacs assigned to ARADCOM headquarters.

As a chief accountan, Sergeant Walworth is responsible for maintaining ledgers and preparing monthly reports for the ARADCOM headquarters funds. These funds are used to cover the headquarters operations and temporary duty travel of its personnel.

The sergeant entered the service from California in 1954 and completed her basic training at the WAC Training Center, Ft. McClellan, Ala. Following this she was sent to the Army Finance School at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Sergeant Walworth's first major assignment was to Ft. Sill, Okla. in March, 1955.

During her stay there, Sergeant Walworth went on temporary duty to Ft. Hood, Tex., to attend the Army cooking school. After returning from the school she was a cook in the WAC Detachment at Ft. Sill for almost two years. The last two and a half years of her stay at the Oklahoma post found her back as an accountant with the Post Finance and Accounting Office.

The sergeant left Ft. Sill in 1960 and was assigned to the G-1 (Personnel) Section of ARADCOM headquarters for a short period before being moved to the Comptroller Section.

A tour of duty in Japan was next. While there, in addition to her duties with the Comptroller Section of Headquarters U.S. Army Japan., Sergeant Walworth spent three months as acting first sergeant of the WAC Detachment.

After leaving Japan and before returning to ARADCOM headquarters, the sergeant spent six months at Ft. Sill, where her duties again included acting first sergeant of the WAC Detachment. Her present assignment in Colorado Springs began in September.

Prior to entering the service the sergeant was employed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Los Angeles as a personnel clerk.

Military service in Colorado was not the cause for Sergeant Walworth's first visit to the mountain state. In 1937 she attended the Midwest Business College in Pueblo for a year and a half.

A native of California, where she attended a Bible college for two years, the sergeant now owns her home at 413 E. Jefferson St. and plans to settle here after her retirement.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The luxury liner Independence has weathered one of the worst South Atlantic storms in memory and will reach New York Sunday, 24. hours late, the American Export Line announced Saturday.

LBJ'S Education Plan to Skirt Church Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson will ask Congress this month to adopt a broad education program, costing from $1 billion to $2 billion and "tailored to skirt the church-state issue," the New York Times reported today.

Th Timts quoted administration sources as confirming reports that the President had abandoned the idea of seeking general aid to elementary and secondary schools. Instead, his education program will embrace three principal proposals for elementary and secondary schools, the newspaper said.

The Times' Washington dispatch continued: "One will be the use of the share-time concept under which parochial and other private-school students attend some classes in public schools.

"Another proposal will involve support of community-oriented educational programs — such as remedial and pre-school centers — open to all children in need of specia instruction.

"The third will set up grants for purchase of instructional materials — such as laboratory equipment, teaching machines and other learning equipment for use i both public and private schools. State and local school funds t h a t otherwise would go into such purchases could then be chanelled into teacher salaries and school instruction."

Wasson Grapplers Cop Mat Tourney

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Favored Wasson was forced to fight off a late surge by a talented Boulder Fairview team but the Thunderbirds hung on to capture first place in a quadrangular wrestling match at the Wasson Gymnasium Saturday.

The Thunderbirds, who appeared to be in command early in the final round, experienced some anxious moments as Fairview won three out of four matches during a stretch in the middle weights to close the gap. But at the conclusion of the action Wasson had 38 points to 35 for the runner-up team. Fort Collins finished third with 23 and Palmer had 18.

George Kalber's team also led in individual titles as five T-Birds gained first place honors. Fairview won four first, Palmer two and Fort Collins one.

It was obvious that the tournament might have a tight finish after the opening round. Wasson, forced to forfeit at 95 due to illness of its wrestler at that weight, still advanced eight men to the finals. But Fairview sent seven through and Fort Collins six.

Nicks used a first period takedown and a late escape to post a 3-2 finals victory over Al Hamill of Fort Collins in the finals of the 95 pound division. Smith, after a scoreless first period, took command of his heavyweight finals with Dennis Schnorr of Fort Collins and held only 24 seconds remaining in the match.

Wasson's team triumph was fashioned by strong work in the lower weights, as has been the case often this season for the Thunderbirds who are unbeaten in dual competition. Remy, Sydow, and Ranals all posted impressive decisions in the three weights from 103 through 120 to open a sizeable lead for the Colorado Springs' team.

Possibly the key match was in the 133 pound championship where Briggs trailed Gene Erger of Fairview 4-0 early in the second period before launching a fine comback. Briggs escaped midway in the period and then was awarded a takedown late in the same stanza to cut the margin to 4-3. In the final two minutes he worked a reversal which moved him ahead 5-4 and the Wasson lad was in complete command at the end of the match.

Another key wins for the Thunderbirds came in the consolation match at 180 where junior Bud Hoffpauir won a 3-0 decision over Jessie Bragg of Palmer. Bragg had defeated Hoffpauir in an earlier meeting between the two.

Seminoles Pull Out 36-19 Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's dazzling battey of Steve Tensi and Fred Biltenikoff poured new wreckage on player-riddled Oklahoma with a record-shattering air attack that crushed the Sooners Saturday in the 20th Gator Bowl football game—36-19.

Tensi, a quarterback who fires the ball like a rifle shot, threw five touchdown passes and the All-America flanker, Biletnikoff, snatched four of them in a wild aerial display that kept a sellout crowd of 50,408 blinking in disbelief.

Game records were set in individual passing, receiving and scoring.

Oklahoma, which lost the heart of its offense when four key players were ruled ineligible for signing pro contracts prematurely, refused to surrender willingly to this kind of assault and added dramatics of its own.

The chief of these was a sparkling scoring pass in the fourth period from Ronnie Fletcher, a 157-pound sub, to Ben Hart for 95 yards—the longest single strike in Gator Bowl history.

There they had first down with four yards to go for a touchdown. Four times they sent their power men—Larry Brown and Jon Kennedy—smashing at the line. On the fourth try, Brown was smeared an inch from the goal.

Florida State's irrepressible passing team of Tensi and Biletnikoff broke Oklahoma's back with a three-touchdown spree in the second period, climaxing air marches of 90, 63 and 89 yards.

Tensi hit Biletnikoff with scoring passes of 15, 14 and 10 yards.

The last Florida State score came on a seven-yard pass, also from Tensi to Biletnikoff.

Tensi completed 23 of 36 passes for 303 yards and five touchdowns, all of them Gator Bowl records and Biletnikoff caught 13 of them for 192 yards and four scores.

Biletnikoff's 24 points were the most ever made by an individual in this post-season contest.

Florida State's other two scores came on a first period run of 69 yards with an intercepted pass by Howard Ehler, one of the Seminoles' "seven magnificents" of the defensive unit, and a 14-yard pass from Tensi to end Don Floyd late in the third period.

Oklahoma's first score came on a one-yard smash by Kennedy after a 38-yard drive and the other on a two-yard run by Tommy Pannell after a recovery of a Biletnikoff fumble at the goal line.

It was a significant triumph for the Seminoles, a onetime small football team now bidding for power. The Florida State record was 8-1-1.

The setback was a disappointment but hardly an unexpected turn for the Sooners, a 6-3-1 team which handed Nebraska, the Big Eight champion, its only defeat of the regular season.

Packers, Cards In Playoff Today

MIAMI (AP) — The old gag about an irresistible force meeting an immovable object has a football version coming up Sunday in the National Football League's Playoff Bowl game between the Green Bay Packers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

The irresistible force is quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers, who throws a ball that nobody can intercept. The immovable object is Pat Fischer, the Cardinals' defensive back who hasn't seen a pass he couldn't steal.

The game is expected to draw 65,000 into the Orange Bowl with millions of others watching on Television N.B.C. Kickoff is at 2 p.m., EST.

Starr, the NFL's leading passer with a 59.9 percentage, has thrown 225 times without having the ball picked off by the other side.

Fischer is far ahead of all other defensive backs in the league in interceptions. He has grabbed off 10 and run two of them back for touchdowns.

The Packers, runner-up to the Baltimore Colts in the Western Division with an 8-5-1 record, rule a single touchdown favorite over the Cardinals, who were barely beaten out by the champion Cleveland Browns in the East. The Cards were 9-3-2.

Both the Browns and Cardinals have strong teams, good enough to beat the champion Browns during the regular campaign. St. Louis tied Cleveland 33-33 and later beat the Browns 28-19. Green Bay won over the Browns 28-21.

The Packers are essentially a running team, with big Jim Taylor the leading rusher with 1,169 yards. Paul Hornung, besides being the team's placement and extra-point specialist, is also a strong runner with 415 yards to his credit.

Brown Stops CC In Overtime, 6-5

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sophomore Jack Norwell's goal at 7:20 of a sudden death overtime gave Brown a 6-5 victory over defending champion Colorado College for the title in the Brown Holiday Hockey Tourney.

The Bruins overcame a 3-1 deficit in third period and went ahead 5-4, on Bobby Bruce's third goal of the game at 12:14.

Brown weathered a two-minute tripping penalty called on Norwell just before the hustling sophomore produced the winning goal. The score was set up when Terry Chapman dug the puck out of the corner and passed to Bruce Darling. Norwell bagged a rebound with goalie Mike Carter still out of position after saving on Darling's shot.

Both Carter and Brown goalie Dave Ferguson were called upon to make some spectacular saves. Carter wound up with 30 for the night and Ferguson had 33.

Bryant Gives Credit To Royal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Royal says he doesn't think Alabama should feel obliged to give away any trophies because of the upset Friday night in the Orange Bowl.

When asked how he rated the fifth-ranked Texas Longhorns now that they had beaten the first ranked Alabama Crimson Tidy, Royal said:

"I feel the same way I felt last year when we were No. 1 and going against Navy in the Cotton Bowl.

"We had a room full of trophies and not one of them said, 'mail to Navy in case you lose.' We bat Navy but we would have kept the trophies even if we had lost.

"And I imagine Alabama feels the same way. I bet won't mail us any trophies either."

"Coach Royal did a better job of getting his team ready so he deserved to win. If I had to lose, I'm glad it was to a man like him," Bryant said.

Royal said Alaama's great quarterback Joe Namath "was simply fantastic" pulling Alabama from behind and almost salvaging the game before being stopped on the one-foot line and losing 21-17.

Tensi Expected A Long Day

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —"I thought it was going to be a long day when the first pass I threw was intercepted," Steve Tensi said Saturday with a smile.

He could joke about it after the Gator Bowl game because five other passes he threw scored touchdowns and gave Florida State a 36-19 victory over Oklahoma.

Tensi and pass-snagging All-America Fred Biletnikoff had a lot to be happy about as they were besieged by sports writers in the dressing room.

Both signed two-year bonus contracts with American Football League clubs, Tensi with San Diego and Biletnikoff with Oakland. They wouldn't say how much money they got, but there was a "nice bonus" involved, they said.

When it came to giving awards, sports writers couldn't decide between the sensational pair who led FSU to an 8-1-1 season and into national prominence for the first time since former all-girls school took up football in 1947. They named Tensi and Biletnikoff co-winners of the most valuable player award.

In the Oklahoma dressing room across the field, Coach Gomer Jones said Tensi was as good as any quarterback the Sooners had met this year.

"I believe Tensi and Craig Fertig of Southern California are the best," Jones said. "They both had good days against us."

"He is really a halfback and runs well after receiving," Jones said. "Of course, FSU has a lot of good receivers. And they run the ball well."

Biletnikoff set four — 13 receptions, 192 yards gained, 4 touchdowns and 24 points.

"We gave them a show, didn't we," said FSU Coach Bill Peterson.

"It was tremendous prestige for us," he said. "We played well, outside of some mistakes in the kicking game.

"Steve showed everybody he is a great quarterback, and the line gave him tremendous protection as usual."

"Considering everything, I thought the Oklahoma morale was outstanding," Jones said.

He said he would rather not talk about his four players who didn't play because it was learned only a day earlier they had signed undated professional contracts in December.

FSU's Peterson likewise dodged questions about professional signings, except to say something has to be done about the problem created by early signings in the pro leagues' scramble for talent.

He said he had asked his players on the eve of the game if any had been among early signers. None had, but six signed contracts immediately after the game.

Ed McQuarters, Oklahoma guard, signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL.

11 Players Ink Pro Contracts

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Counting four who signed a little too early to make the Gator Bowl game, 11 players on the Oklahoma and Florida State football teams have joined the ranks of professional football.

It was learned Friday on the eve of the game that fullback Jim Grisham, halfback Lance Rentzel, tackle Ralph Neely and end West Skidgel of Oklahoma already had signed undated pro pacts.

After the game, guard Ed McQuarters of Oklahoma signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Minnesota of the NFL got Grisham, Rentzel and Skidgel. The Houston Oilers of the American Football League signed Neely.

Florida State's All-America flanker, Fred Biletnikoff, signed a two-year contract with the Oakland Raiders of the AFL.

Quarterback Steve Tensi, end Don Floyd, center Jack Edwards and placekicker Les Murdock went to San Diego Chargers of the AFL. Murdock also missed the game when his eligibility was questioned, but it didn't involve a pro signing.

St. John's Dumps Michigan

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's Redmen came from 16 last half Saturday night and upset mighty Michigan, the nation's top-ranked college basketball power, 75-74 in the title game of the Holiday Festival tournament.

Cincinnati, up by as many as 14 in the last half, just held on against a Princeton rally 71-69 and took third place, but Princeton's All America Bill Bradley, who had 33 points Saturday and 110 for the tourney, won the Most Valuable Player award.

About 100 of the sellout crowd of 18,499 flooded onto the floor when the buzzer sounded ending the title game, surrounded the St. John's players and carried them from the floor.

Special police were unable to control the surge and only after repeated pleas by the announcer did the mob go back to the sidelines.

Celtics Set Down Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Russell set a Cobo Arena record with 34 rebounds Saturday night and the Boston Celtics spurted in the final four minutes to whip the Detroit Pistons 101-89 in a National Basketball Association game.

It was the Celtics' seventh straight victory, 14th in their last 15 games and 32nd of the season against only seven defeats.

After leading by substantial margins most of the way, the Celtics were outscored 16-3 during the first eight minutes of the final quarter as Joe Caldwell hit three baskets and Dave DeBusschere and Dennis Butcher two each to bring the Pistons to within two points, 85-83.

Namath Signs $400,000 Contract

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Brawny Joe Namath, son of a struggling Beaver Falls, Pa., steelworker, signed the contract Saturday that made him the richest rookie in the history of pro football — and probably any other sport.

The Horatio Alger story of the former shoeshine boy who led Alabama to the national college championship was climaxed at a luxury hotel at Miami Beach. Here, he concluded a deal with the New York Jets of the American Football League that reportedly will bring him $400,000 for three years work.

This is said to include $100,000 a year in salary and some $100,000 in bonuses. There also were unconfirmed reports of a fringe benefit retirement plan giving Namath $5,000 a year for life after his playing days.

David A. Werblin, president of the Jets, said the details of the fabulous contract were considered privileged information but he added that, "I'm sure it pays the largest amount ever given to a young athlete in any sport."

And the cat-quick Namath, he said, was a bargain at the price.

"We feel that in getting Joe," Werblin told a news conference, "We got the No. 1 college football player in America, and with him we will give New York fans the finest football team in America.

Namath disclosed that the Jets and the St. Louis Cardinals, who drafted him in the American Football League, made "about the same" offers. It had been reported that St. Louis dropped out when the bidding reached $400,000.

"I took both teams into consideration,," said the 6-foot-2, 194-pound quarterback who is one of the most promising passers to enter pro ranks. "I wanted more than money. I was interested in the coach and the organization.

Ewbank was beaming as he announced the signing of a quarterback he believes has all the potential of Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts.

"I see in this young man the same qualities that are found in Unitas," Ewbank said. "He has size, quickness, a wonderful arm, a quick delivery, courage and the ability to make the big play.

Morton Leads West Team Over East Stars, 11-7

By DEREK SCHOEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's Craig Morton hit teammate Jack Schraub with a six-yard scoring pass with 1 minute, 4 seconds remaining and gave the West an 11-7 comeback victory over the East Saturday in the 40th East-West Shrine football game.

The margin of victory actually was represented by two safeties scored for the West when East center Dick Butkus of Illinois twice snapped the ball out of the end zone.

Navy's Roger Staubach had put the East ahead early in the third period on a 49-yard touchdown drive. His pass to Dick Gordon of Michigan State carried 37 yards to the 12. Two running plays put the ball on the five. Staubach then ran to the one where he was knocked cold. Pittsburgh's Fred Mazurek then carried it over and Tom Nowatzke of Indiana kicked the extra point.

A sell-out crowd of 60,000 waiched the charity game in a driving rain that turned the Kezar Stadium turf into a swamp.

After Staubach's great performance the West got two points on the first of Butkus' errant center snaps and added two more midway in the fourth period.

It looked like a substantial East victory until the West all-stars got the ball on the East 35 with 2½ minutes left. On a fourth-and-10 situation, still at the 35, Norton passed to Schraub 10 yards for a first down.

Wasson Grapplers Cop Mat Tourney

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Favored Wasson was forced to fight off a late surge by a talented Boulder Fairview team but the Thunderbirds hung on to capture first place in a quadrangular wrestling match at the Wasson Gymnasium Saturday.

The Thunderbirds, who appeared to be in command early in the final round, experienced some anxious moments as Fairview won three out of four matches during a stretch in the middle weights to close the gap. But at the conclusion of the action Wasson had 38 points to 35 for the runner-up team. Fort Collins finished third with 23 and Palmer had 18.

George Kalber's team also led in individual titles as five T-Birds gained first place honors. Fairview won four first, Palmer two and Fort Collins one.

It was obvious that the tournament might have a tight finish after the opening round. Wasson, forced to forfeit at 95 due to illness of its wrestler at that weight, still advanced eight men to the finals. But Fairview sent seven through and Fort Collins six.

Nicks used a first period takedown and a late escape to post a 3-2 finals victory over Al Hamill of Fort Collins in the finals of the 95 pound division. Smith, after a scoreless first period, took command of his heavyweight finals with Dennis Schnorr of Fort Collins and held only 24 seconds remaining in the match.

Wasson's team triumph was fashioned by strong work in the lower weights, as has been the case often this season for the Thunderbirds who are unbeaten in dual competition. Remy, Sydow, and Ranals all posted impressive decisions in the three weights from 103 through 120 to open a sizeable lead for the Colorado Springs' team.

Possibly the key match was in the 133 pound championship where Briggs trailed Gene Erger of Fairview 4-0 early in the second period before launching a fine comback. Briggs escaped midway in the period and then was awarded a takedown late in the same stanza to cut the margin to 4-3. In the final two minutes he worked a reversal which moved him ahead 5-4 and the Wasson lad was in complete command at the end of the match.

Another key wins for the Thunderbirds came in the consolation match at 180 where junior Bud Hoffpauir won a 3-0 decision over Jessie Bragg of Palmer. Bragg had defeated Hoffpauir in an earlier meeting between the two.

Seminoles Pull Out 36-19 Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's dazzling battey of Steve Tensi and Fred Biltenikoff poured new wreckage on player-riddled Oklahoma with a record-shattering air attack that crushed the Sooners Saturday in the 20th Gator Bowl football game—36-19.

Tensi, a quarterback who fires the ball like a rifle shot, threw five touchdown passes and the All-America flanker, Biletnikoff, snatched four of them in a wild aerial display that kept a sellout crowd of 50,408 blinking in disbelief.

Game records were set in individual passing, receiving and scoring.

Oklahoma, which lost the heart of its offense when four key players were ruled ineligible for signing pro contracts prematurely, refused to surrender willingly to this kind of assault and added dramatics of its own.

The chief of these was a sparkling scoring pass in the fourth period from Ronnie Fletcher, a 157-pound sub, to Ben Hart for 95 yards—the longest single strike in Gator Bowl history.

There they had first down with four yards to go for a touchdown. Four times they sent their power men—Larry Brown and Jon Kennedy—smashing at the line. On the fourth try, Brown was smeared an inch from the goal.

Florida State's irrepressible passing team of Tensi and Biletnikoff broke Oklahoma's back with a three-touchdown spree in the second period, climaxing air marches of 90, 63 and 89 yards.

Tensi hit Biletnikoff with scoring passes of 15, 14 and 10 yards.

The last Florida State score came on a seven-yard pass, also from Tensi to Biletnikoff.

Tensi completed 23 of 36 passes for 303 yards and five touchdowns, all of them Gator Bowl records and Biletnikoff caught 13 of them for 192 yards and four scores.

Biletnikoff's 24 points were the most ever made by an individual in this post-season contest.

Florida State's other two scores came on a first period run of 69 yards with an intercepted pass by Howard Ehler, one of the Seminoles' "seven magnificents" of the defensive unit, and a 14-yard pass from Tensi to end Don Floyd late in the third period.

Oklahoma's first score came on a one-yard smash by Kennedy after a 38-yard drive and the other on a two-yard run by Tommy Pannell after a recovery of a Biletnikoff fumble at the goal line.

It was a significant triumph for the Seminoles, a onetime small football team now bidding for power. The Florida State record was 8-1-1.

The setback was a disappointment but hardly an unexpected turn for the Sooners, a 6-3-1 team which handed Nebraska, the Big Eight champion, its only defeat of the regular season.

Packers, Cards In Playoff Today

MIAMI (AP) — The old gag about an irresistible force meeting an immovable object has a football version coming up Sunday in the National Football League's Playoff Bowl game between the Green Bay Packers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

The irresistible force is quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers, who throws a ball that nobody can intercept. The immovable object is Pat Fischer, the Cardinals' defensive back who hasn't seen a pass he couldn't steal.

Starr, the NFL's leading passer with a 59.9 percentage, has thrown 225 times without having the ball picked off by the other side.

Fischer is far ahead of all other defensive backs in the league in interceptions. He has grabbed off 10 and run two of them back for touchdowns.

The Packers, runner-up to the Baltimore Colts in the Western Division with an 8-5-1 record, rule a single touchdown favorite over the Cardinals, who were barely beaten out by the champion Cleveland Browns in the East. The Cards were 9-3-2.

Both the Browns and Cardinals have strong teams, good enough to beat the champion Browns during the regular campaign. St. Louis tied Cleveland 33-33 and later beat the Browns 28-19. Green Bay won over the Browns 28-21.

The Packers are essentially a running team, with big Jim Taylor the leading rusher with 1,169 yards. Paul Hornung, besides being the team's placement and extra-point specialist, is also a strong runner with 415 yards to his credit.

Brown Stops CC In Overtime, 6-5

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sophomore Jack Norwell's goal at 7:20 of a sudden death overtime gave Brown a 6-5 victory over defending champion Colorado College for the title in the Brown Holiday Hockey Tourney.

The Bruins overcame a 3-1 deficit in third period and went ahead 5-4, on Bobby Bruce's third goal of the game at 12:14.

Brown weathered a two-minute tripping penalty called on Norwell just before the hustling sophomore produced the winning goal. The score was set up when Terry Chapman dug the puck out of the corner and passed to Bruce Darling. Norwell bagged a rebound with goalie Mike Carter still out of position after saving on Darling's shot.

Both Carter and Brown goalie Dave Ferguson were called upon to make some spectacular saves. Carter wound up with 30 for the night and Ferguson had 33.

Fred Sullivan got the winning goal in the second overtime to give Providence a similar 6-5 victory over Michigan State in the consolation game.

St. John's Dumps Michigan

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's Redmen came from 16 last half Saturday night and upset mighty Michigan, the nation's top-ranked college basketball power, 75-74 in the title game of the Holiday Festival tournament.

Cincinnati, up by as many as 14 in the last half, just held on against a Princeton rally 71-69 and took third place, but Princeton's All America Bill Bradley, who had 33 points Saturday and 110 for the tourney, won the Most Valuable Player award.

About 100 of the sellout crowd of 18,499 flooded onto the floor when the buzzer sounded ending the title game, surrounded the St. John's players and carried them from the floor.

Special police were unable to control the surge and only after repeated pleas by the announcer did the mob go back to the sidelines.

Creighton Dumps Falcons

OMAHA (AP) — Creighton stopped the Air Force 80-69 for its third straight basketball victory Saturday night.

Creighton Coach Red McManus used only six players and five scored, all in double figures. Bobby Miles, Tim Powers and Elton McGriff each had 19 points for the Jays and sparked both teams with 19 rebounds.

Bryant Gives Credit To Royal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Royal says he doesn't think Alabama should feel obliged to give away any trophies because of the upset Friday night in the Orange Bowl.

When asked how he rated the fifth-ranked Texas Longhorns now that they had beaten the first ranked Alabama Crimson Tidy, Royal said:

"I feel the same way I felt last year when we were No. 1 and going against Navy in the Cotton Bowl.

"We had a room full of trophies and not one of them said, 'mail to Navy in case you lose.' We bat Navy but we would have kept the trophies even if we had lost.

"And I imagine Alabama feels the same way. I bet won't mail us any trophies either."

"Coach Royal did a better job of getting his team ready so he deserved to win. If I had to lose, I'm glad it was to a man like him," Bryant said.

Royal said Alaama's great quarterback Joe Namath "was simply fantastic" pulling Alabama from behind and almost salvaging the game before being stopped on the one-foot line and losing 21-17.

Tensi Expected A Long Day

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —"I thought it was going to be a long day when the first pass I threw was intercepted," Steve Tensi said Saturday with a smile.

He could joke about it after the Gator Bowl game because five other passes he threw scored touchdowns and gave Florida State a 36-19 victory over Oklahoma.

Tensi and pass-snagging All-America Fred Biletnikoff had a lot to be happy about as they were besieged by sports writers in the dressing room.

Both signed two-year bonus contracts with American Football League clubs, Tensi with San Diego and Biletnikoff with Oakland. They wouldn't say how much money they got, but there was a "nice bonus" involved, they said.

When it came to giving awards, sports writers couldn't decide between the sensational pair who led FSU to an 8-1-1 season and into national prominence for the first time since former all-girls school took up football in 1947. They named Tensi and Biletnikoff co-winners of the most valuable player award.

In the Oklahoma dressing room across the field, Coach Gomer Jones said Tensi was as good as any quarterback the Sooners had met this year.

"I believe Tensi and Craig Fertig of Southern California are the best," Jones said. "They both had good days against us."

"He is really a halfback and runs well after receiving," Jones said. "Of course, FSU has a lot of good receivers. And they run the ball well."

Tensi set five Gator Bowl records — 36 attempts, 23 completions, 4 interceptions, 303 yards gained and 5 touchdowns.

Biletnikoff set four — 13 receptions, 192 yards gained, 4 touchdowns and 24 points.

"We gave them a show, didn't we," said FSU Coach Bill Peterson.

"It was tremendous prestige for us," he said. "We played well, outside of some mistakes in the kicking game.

"Steve showed everybody he is a great quarterback, and the line gave him tremendous protection as usual."

"Considering everything, I thought the Oklahoma morale was outstanding," Jones said.

He said he would rather not talk about his four players who didn't play because it was learned only a day earlier they had signed undated professional contracts in December.

FSU's Peterson likewise dodged questions about professional signings, except to say something has to be done about the problem created by early signings in the pro leagues' scramble for talent.

He said he had asked his players on the eve of the game if any had been among early signers. None had, but six signed contracts immediately after the game.

Ed McQuarters, Oklahoma guard, signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL.

11 Players Ink Pro Contracts

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Counting four who signed a little too early to make the Gator Bowl game, 11 players on the Oklahoma and Florida State football teams have joined the ranks of professional football.

It was learned Friday on the eve of the game that fullback Jim Grisham, halfback Lance Rentzel, tackle Ralph Neely and end West Skidgel of Oklahoma already had signed undated pro pacts.

After the game, guard Ed McQuarters of Oklahoma signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Minnesota of the NFL got Grisham, Rentzel and Skidgel. The Houston Oilers of the American Football League signed Neely.

Florida State's All-America flanker, Fred Biletnikoff, signed a two-year contract with the Oakland Raiders of the AFL.

Quarterback Steve Tensi, end Don Floyd, center Jack Edwards and placekicker Les Murdock went to San Diego Chargers of the AFL. Murdock also missed the game when his eligibility was questioned, but it didn't involve a pro signing.

Namath Signs $400,000 Contract

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Brawny Joe Namath, son of a struggling Beaver Falls, Pa., steelworker, signed the contract Saturday that made him the richest rookie in the history of pro football — and probably any other sport.

The Horatio Alger story of the former shoeshine boy who led Alabama to the national college championship was climaxed at a luxury hotel at Miami Beach. Here, he concluded a deal with the New York Jets of the American Football League that reportedly will bring him $400,000 for three years work.

This is said to include $100,000 a year in salary and some $100,000 in bonuses. There also were unconfirmed reports of a fringe benefit retirement plan giving Namath $5,000 a year for life after his playing days.

David A. Werblin, president of the Jets, said the details of the fabulous contract were considered privileged information but he added that, "I'm sure it pays the largest amount ever given to a young athlete in any sport."

And the cat-quick Namath, he said, was a bargain at the price.

"We feel that in getting Joe," Werblin told a news conference, "We got the No. 1 college football player in America, and with him we will give New York fans the finest football team in America.

Namath disclosed that the Jets and the St. Louis Cardinals, who drafted him in the American Football League, made "about the same" offers. It had been reported that St. Louis dropped out when the bidding reached $400,000.

"I took both teams into consideration," said the 6-foot-2, 194-pound quarterback who is one of the most promising passers to enter pro ranks. "I wanted more than money. I was interested in the coach and the organization.

Ewbank was beaming as he announced the signing of a quarterback he believes has all the potential of Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts.

"I see in this young man the same qualities that are found in Unitas," Ewbank said. "He has size, quickness, a wonderful arm, a quick delivery, courage and the ability to make the big play.

Celtics Set Down Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Russell set a Cobo Arena record with 34 rebounds Saturday night and the Boston Celtics spurted in the final four minutes to whip the Detroit Pistons 101-89 in a National Basketball Association game.

It was the Celtics' seventh straight victory, 14th in their last 15 games and 32nd of the season against only seven defeats.

After leading by substantial margins most of the way, the Celtics were outscored 16-3 during the first eight minutes of the final quarter as Joe Caldwell hit three baskets and Dave DeBusschere and Dennis Butcher two each to bring the Pistons to within two points, 85-83.

Morton Leads West Team Over East Stars, 11-7

By DEREK SCHOEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's Craig Morton hit teammate Jack Schraub with a six-yard scoring pass with 1 minute, 4 seconds remaining and gave the West an 11-7 comeback victory over the East Saturday in the 40th East-West Shrine football game.

The margin of victory actually was represented by two safeties scored for the West when East center Dick Butkus of Illinois twice snapped the ball out of the end zone.

Navy's Roger Staubach had put the East ahead early in the third period on a 49-yard touchdown drive. His pass to Dick Gordon of Michigan State carried 37 yards to the 12. Two running plays put the ball on the five. Staubach then ran to the one where he was knocked cold. Pittsburgh's Fred Mazurek then carried it over and Tom Nowatzke of Indiana kicked the extra point.

A sell-out crowd of 60,000 waiched the charity game in a driving rain that turned the Kezar Stadium turf into a swamp.

After Staubach's great performance the West got two points on the first of Butkus' errant center snaps and added two more midway in the fourth period.

It looked like a substantial East victory until the West all-stars got the ball on the East 35 with 2½ minutes left. On a fourth-and-10 situation, still at the 35, Norton passed to Schraub 10 yards for a first down.

NCAA-AAU Feud on Against

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An amendment putting teeth into NCAA policy backing the U.S. Track and Field Federation in its battle with the AAU is certain of approval at the 59th annual NCAA convention Jan. 8-14 in Chicago.

Schools acting against NCAA policy in the AAU battle would be subject to the same severe penalties now imposed for recruiting violations. These include probation and bars from bowl games and national tournaments.

Another important amendment would establish an academic floor for NCAA meets, tournaments and NCAA certified bowl games. It would require the school to limit its scholarships to incoming students with a predicted minimum grade-point average of 1.6 out of a possible 4.0.

This minimum of 1.6 would have to be maintained by athletes for them to be eligible for NCAA meets, tournaments and bowl games. Most major conferences already have such a requirement, some a stiffer one.

The two biggest amendments are both to the NCAA by-laws. They require only a simple majority of those present and voting for passage. The key votes on the amendments will come sometime Wednesday, Jan. 13.

About 3,000 athletic officials, faculty administrators and coaches of the NCAA's 623 colleges, universities and various allied and affiliated groups will be on hand. The largest affiliate, the American Football Coaches Association, will draw about 1,700. The convention itself will come to order Jan. 11. Business meetings come first.

The fight between NCAA-backed federations and the AAU is certain to draw most of the national attention, regardless of other legislation.

A national track and field coalition designed to solve the bitter dispute likely will be proposed on the convention floor by the Eastern College Athletic Conference, which includes 131 NCAA members.

This likely will come in the form of a resolution that the NCAA and federation enter into negotiations with the AAU. It could bring a strong debate, but it's highly doubtful it would be passed.

Bob Kane of Cornell said the coalition was based on a similar coalition agreed to by the NCAA in 1962 but later rejected by the AAU because it didn't recognize AAU control of international events.

Sanctioning of international events is the AAU's biggest weapon in the battle. The Eastern Conference's coalition would keep this in AAU hands.

The conference plan also recommends that the pre-Olympic MacArthur truce would be in effect during negotiations. The NCAA opposes this, believing this would permit the AAU to stall until the next Olympics.

The coalition would give the NCAA-backed federation and the AAU 10 votes each, with seven others among the armed forces, church, recreation and youth organizations.

Other important legislation includes a Big Eight proposal to put all athletic scholarships under a one-year term, subject to renewal each year; plus proposals that would open up associate NCAA membership to schools in Canada, would require more notice for council permission to take part in State Department foreign tours and would consolidate cross-country administration under track and field.

The NCAA president, Robert F. Ray of Iowa, hailed the academic floor amendment as a "truly significant step in raising standards of competition and assuring that those competing in athletics are also competing in the classroom."

Look for Huskers Next Year

By HARLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Don't be surprised if Nebraska's football squad is back for the Cotton Bowl next season—that is, if the Cotton Bowl can get it.

The Cornhuskers took their 10-7 defeat by Arkansas like it was just another day's work Friday. The reason: Nebraska should be a powerhouse in 1965.

Actually, the Cornhuskers were in a rebuilding year and everybody was delighted when they earned their way to the Cotton Bowl. Next season is when they are due to shine.

Five offensive starters and 10 defensive regulars will be back. Also, there will be such fellows as Harry Wilson, the sophomore who turned in some of the finest running the Cotton Bowl has seen.

Among the offensive returnees are brilliant quarterback Bob Churchick and the little giant of the backfield—Frank Solich.

Nebraska already had one of the nation's best defenses and all except one of those fellows will be back, better because of a long season of experience.

Arkansas should have a good team but there will be only seven offensive starters and two defensive regulars.

Fred Marshall, who engineered the 80-yard touchdown drive in the fading minutes to bring Arkansas victory and an undefeated, untied season, will be gone.

So will All-America Ronnie Caveness, the power of the defense, and Ken Hatfield, the mighty punt returner and defensive genius.

One thing Arkansas won't lack for is tackles and also there will be such fine offensive backs as Jim Lindsey, Jack Brasbell and punter Bobby Nix.

Coaches Want Ban Lifted

By HERSCHEL NISSENON

Princeton, N.J. (AP) — The 71 track coaches of the IC4A have petitioned the National Collegiate Athletic Association to lift its ban against competing in open meets that are not sanctioned by the U.S. Track and Field Federation.

The appeal was contained in a letter from Pete Morgan, Princeton coach and head of the IC4A Track Coaches Association, to Dean Robert F. Ray of the University of Iowa, president of the NCAA.

In his letter, Morgan said: "The current ban on competition by college athletes in open meets has cut deep into the future of track in the Northeast."

The running battle between the U.S. Track and Field Federation, an affiliate of the NCAA, and the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur athletics has thrown a damper on most collegians for the indoor season.

"Individuals who want to represent the United States on teams we send out of the country will have to compete in the AAU nationals in June at San Diego," Morgan told The Associated Press.

Quarterbacks Key to Air Force Grid Season

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

In a way, the recently past football season for the Air Force Academy's Falcons actually started almost a year ago and will finish next year. And it all centers around the key mover of the AFA's offense — the quarterback.

Biggest plans for the 1964 season were being formed last spring because of the graduation of one of the most publicized players in the school's history, Terry Isaacson. The big question was who will replace the triple-threat star from Oak Park, Ill., as the triggerman of the Falcons attack.

It turned out that a slim Irishman named Tim Murphy took over controls of the team and molded an exciting season for the Academy's fans with a blistering passing game that was to rank nationally all fall. But Murphy was a senior with only one year playing time with the varsity . . . so at the last his role was taken over by a scampering junior in much the same style as Isaacson, and it undoubtedly will be Paul Stein's time to shine as quarterback of next year's team.

Although used extensively in the last four games, Stein was still playing second fiddle to Murphy in the finale as the Falcons wound up on a disappointing note by dropping a 28-23 melee to arch rival Colorado University on snow-trimmed Folsom Field in Boulder.

Of the 10 records set by this team, Murphy and his favorite target end Jim Greth were in on most of them. Murph ended the season with the best percentage of any AFA passer, most yardage in the air (225 against CU) and Greth hauled down eight of those passes in the same game to surpass another Air Force standard.

Records, however, are usually associated with a winning team — and the Air Force met Notre Dame's Fighting Irish on the gridiron many had dreamed of before the season began and with the AFA facing the most rugged schedule ever.

It was quite appropriate that Murphy was at the helm for the Falcons through most of the season in a year in which the Irish were quite important. This year was the first time missed that distinction by a tie against Wyoming (7-7) and the loss to Colorado in the final game to finish with a 4-5-1 ledger. Still, that was better than the Air Force Academy people wanted more than any other, especially this being a record crowd of 44,384 for Falcon Stadium watched new coach Ara Parseghian weave his magic to the tune of 34-7 in a contest that was to help boost the famed school into the No. 1 ranking in the nation after several years of mediocre football.

That was the Big Game of the season, and the one the Academy people wanted more than any other, especially this being one of the years in which neither of the sister military schools (Army or Navy) were on the schedule. But the Cadets were caught up in the wave that swept the country in the comeback of Notre Dame to among the elite.

The tremendous physical strength of the Irish was a surprise to nearly everyone, but the Air Force also had a surprise for their fans. That came in the opening game of the fall as the AFA startled the Huskies of the University of Washington with a 3-2 setback in a great display of defense. The Cadet defenders actually held the West Coast favorites scoreless, giving up an intentional safety while Bart Holaday (later named to a Rhodes scholarship after serving as Wing Commander at the AFA) provided one of three field goals kicked during the season.

That defense was to be the trademark of this edition of Falcon football and it lasted until that exciting ending with Colorado in which both teams raced up and down the field like in a Chinese fire drill.

Besides Notre Dame, other powers on the slate were Rose Bowl-bound Michigan, the Big Ten champion; Washington, which didn't recover from that opening upset until late in the season; Missouri, a contender in the Big Eight; always colorful UCLA; and a stronger than expected Boston College.

Perhaps the best played game of the year, ranking along with the Washington win, was the 24-15 triumph over UCLA in Los Angeles in which the Air Force failed to complete a single pass but finally got its feet on the ground and rang up an astounding total of 382 yards in total offense — all via rushing.

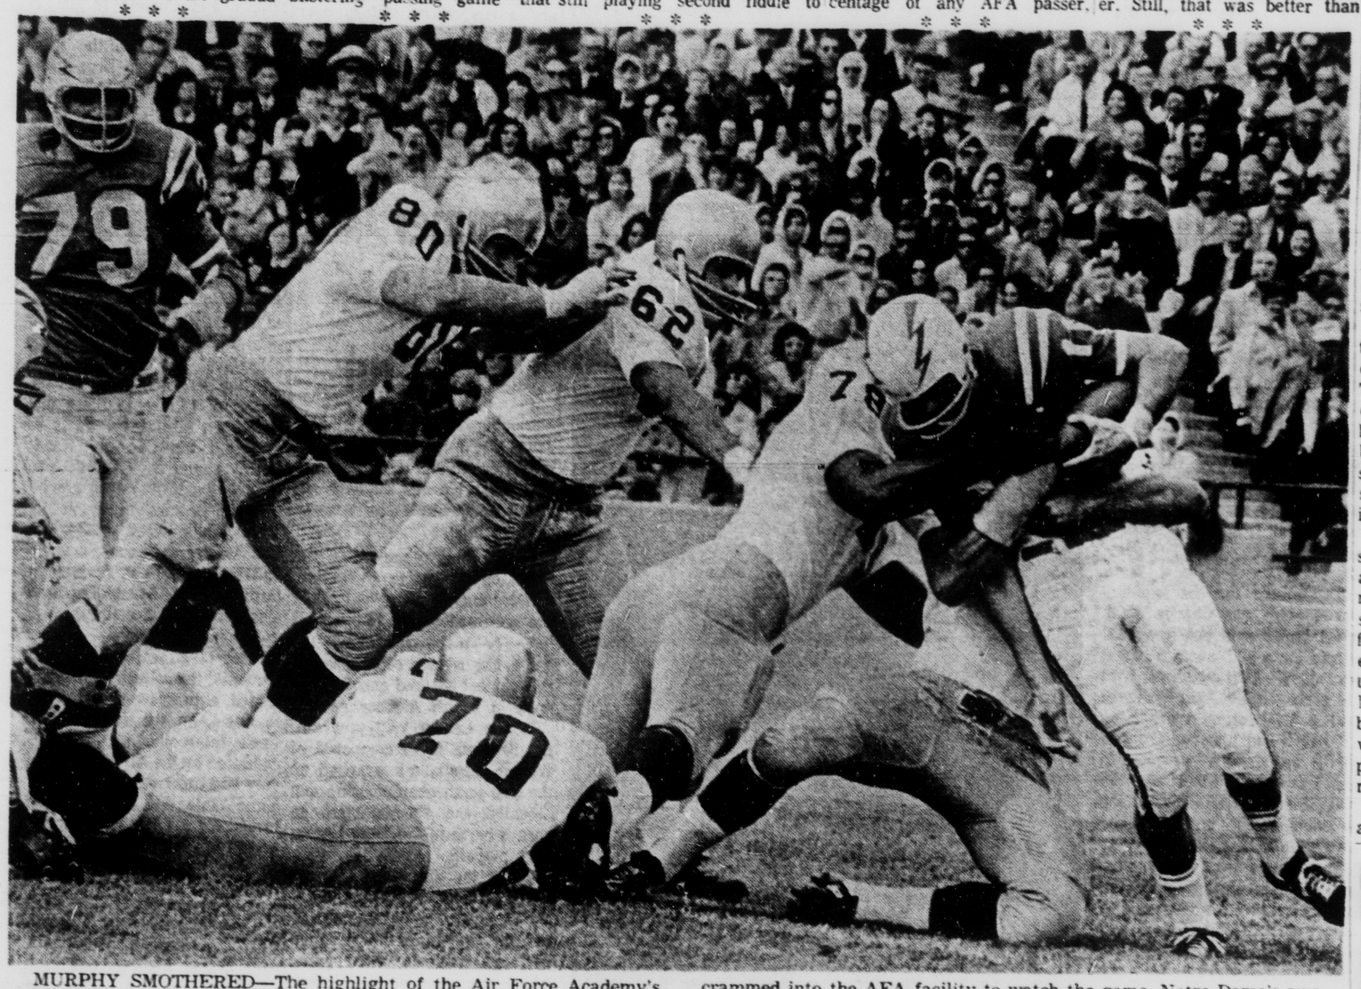
After Washington, the season progressed with a 24-7 loss to Michigan with the Wolverines' great All-America Bob Timberlake putting on a grand show of all-around play; the AFA slipped past a stubborn Colorado State University 14-6 following a 69-0 slaughter the previous year; and then came Notre Dame with quarterback John Huarte and end Jack Snow leading the Irish 34-7.

Missouri pounded in a third period touchdown to break up a tight game and defeat the Falcons 17-7 in the next outing, and then Boston College handed the AFA its third straight loss with another third period score 13-7. Defense played the key role for the Falcons in their 7-0 win over Arizona, the Cadets hit a high for the fall at UCLA, then came back to deadlock Wyoming with a touchdown each, and the season ended at Colorado.

The biggest factor of the year was the inability of the Air For offense to get untracked as in seven of the games the Falcons were only able to score one touchdown or less and in one other they could put across only two TDs. Thus the load was dropped on the defenders who stood up well under the strain.

Outside of Murphy, who completed 94 of 160 passes for 1154 yards, and Greth, who ended up with a team-leading 33 catches for 436 yards, there were several other standouts for the fall with many of them on the defensive unit.

Steve Amdor finished as the top runner with 117 carries (52 more than his closest rival) and 485 yards, and Dick Czarnota was next with 65 tries and 226 yards. Fritz Greenlee caught 23 passes. And Ken Jaggers set records for most punts and best average (41.0) for the season. Top defenders were linebacker Larry Tollstam, safety Lloyd Duncan, halfbacks Jaggers and Jeff Jarvis and ends John Puster and Joe O'Gorman.



MURPHY SMOTHERED—The highlight of the Air Force Academy's football season was the first meeting in history with the famed Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, and a Falcon Stadium record of 44,384 fans crammed into the AFA facility to watch the game. Notre Dame's awesome defense, is shown here as they smothered Falcon quarterback Tim Murphy, was too much to handle and the Irish won 34-7.

Conference-Less Tigers Come Up With One Victory

Escape from the Rocky Mountain Conference, which had been designed to accomodate the Tigers "no-scholarship" philosophy, did not turn out to be the humanitarian move that had been expected. CC still lost seven of eight games and absorbed some thorough shellings in the process.

Actually, the Colorado College season was ill-fated before it actually got underway. The already thin Tiger ranks were stripped of crucial personnel before the Tigers ever looked an enemy in the face. Included in the continuous tragedy was the loss for the season of quarterback Cubby Welch, a two-year veteran who was one of the few polished players CC had on its roster.

There were others, notably all-conference end, Lee Muller, who was sidelined for the first several games, taking a sizeable portion of the team's passing game with him. Stan Lathrop, a veteran tackle who had figured to carry a great deal of the leadership in the line, also never saw a single down of action.

But the true downfall of the Colorado College season was wrapped up in the loss of fullback Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol—who was in his own way the most famous player to ever attend the local school. Sabol had become a legend in a football program where most stories were in the form of jokes.

"Sudden Death" was self-named and self-publicized, but his star had infiltrated virtually every corner of the United States. He was the feature subject of stories in such publications as the Empire Magazine of the Denver Post, as recounted by highly-respected sports columnist, Harry Farrar. His exploits, although permeated with a strong hint of Sabol ingenuity, invaded Sport Magazine. His abilities, mostly other than football, were outlined in feature stories in the large Eastern newspapers, including one from his home area of Philadelphia.

Although Sabol's football exploits were incidental with the majority of journalists, he was actually a standout contributor in the CC system. As an all-conference fullback and one of the nation's leading small-college kickers, his captaincy of the 1964 Tiger team was expected to trigger far more tangible contributions than mere publicity.

But "Sudden Death", whose fame was nurtured by a self-planted advertisement in the CC football program when he was a junior, retired to the sidelines in a battle with hepititis. He departed the school before the footballs had actually been put in flight—his much-anticipated senior year erased by the illness.

With such a background of early season discouragment, Coach Jerry Carle was forced to send his team into action as early as Sept. 19. Concordia Lutheran and Hastings College, a pair of Nebraska visitors, inflicted the early injuries on the Tigers but five more followed before relief was to finally appear. Fort Lewis College, a new Colorado institution, pounded CC 28-0 and Nebraska Wesleyan followed with a 40-7 trouncing.

Then came a disappointing 29-6 setback at the hands of California Lutheran, one of the few teams the Tigers had really hoped to whip. Powerful Santa Clara followed with 42-0 blasting in a West Coast trip and Doane College of Nebrasks completed the blitz with a 32-18 conquest.

Just at the darkest hour, the Tigers stumbled on to the sweetest relief possible. Before a scanty crowd against their most bitter rivals, CC's gridders avoided constant mayhem between the two spectating factions to whip Colorado Mines 13-7 and end the drouth. A 21 yard run by speedy sophomore Ray Jones provided the winning points in the final quarter.

Jones was one of several bright spots in the Tiger picture at the end of the '64 campaign. CC frequently started an all-sophomore backfield and with the emergence of Mike Denson, a former Lakewood star, as quarterback during the last part of the campaign, the Tigers finally began to produce some offense. Denson's running and passing provided a spark which had long been absent and he and others such as Warner Reeser and Bob Stapp, another Lakewood teammate, figure to make the CC backfield an much more effective unit in the future.

But CC football, as is the case with other sports at the local school, has been in an era of decline. The revival, at best, will be slow—if it comes at all. And, sadly there are no "Sudden Deaths" on the horizon to salve the many wounds.

Bengals Finish Strong Despite Losing Season

Handed a pea-green squad that included only six lettermen and a dominating number of inexperienced sophomores, Coach Bob Johnson in his first year as head of the Colorado College hockey program startled the always tough Western Collegiate Hockey Association during the 1963-64 season by going down to the wire in the battle for a playoff berth.

A cellar finish was the only realistic approach for the Tigers, inherited by Johnson, who was fresh from high school coaching in Minnesota and who was taking over a team that had losing seasons four out of the last five years.

But with renewed vigor and discipline of a task-master, the youthful CC coach not only developed a team that caused trouble for all the league leaders, but also just missed the championship playoffs by a whisker and had the first All-America at the school in seven seasons.

The climax for the Tigers came in the final game of the schedule as they fought for one of the four top spots in the WCHA standings. They batted through 9-8 losing decision in overtime against Michigan Tech, which was typical of the excitement generated by these underdogs over the entire year.

Although the playoff berth decided the same night with North Dakota slipping into the post-season tournament via a win over Minnesota, the Bengals fought for their lives in the finale for a CC win and a North Dakota loss would have put the Springs' team into the league playoff.

Thus, the team just missed the "brass ring" but individual honors were in store for the Tigers' top winger, Johnny Simus, a senior from Minneapolis. Simus was the first CC player to make the All-America list since the celebrated Bill (Red) Hay, now one of the top scorers in the pro National Hockey League, and Bob McCusker off the 1958 team.

If nothing else, the fast finish by this CC squad brought new hopes of a comeback to hockey heights among the local following. They finished with an overal record of 12-15-1, but this was far better than expected considering some of the opposition and the small number of experienced hands available.

Included on the schedule was a pair of games against the U.S. Olympic team, and of course the powers of the WCHA which were the class of the nation's amateurs.

Among the highlights of the season were twin victories over third place Minnesota in their last go-around, four overtime games during the year, and the championship in the annual Brown University Invitational Tournament. While winning the Brown tourney on an eastern trip early in the season, the Bengals put together a six-game winning streak.

Simus, an ever-hustling winger who drew praise from observers throughout the country, and veteran Warren Fordyce shared the scoring leadership for the Tigers, each collecting 38 points during the season. Simus, the All-America, was the leader in goals with 21 and Fordyce had 18 goals and 20 assists.

But Johnson was still saddled with trying to compete with a squad made up of nearly all youngsters right out of U. S. high schools while the rest of the league (with the exception of Minnesota) was using Canadian players imported from semi-pro junior leagues north of the border.

Simus was an exception, but for the most part the fuzzy-cheeked CC players were obviously out - manned in most league games by the older Canadians on other teams. New rules, limiting age, ect., were going into effect and the trend of the league was in CC's direction, however.

The final WCHA standings had the University of Michigan at the top with a 12-2 mark, and Denver was second at 7-2-1, playing less games because of a boycott of the league members who were in disagreement with recruiting practices of the DU coach and his philosophy.

Denver, however, won the league playoff series, but Michigan came back to snap up the NCAA crown by beating Denvern in the finals. They were the favorites to repeat atop collegiate hockey again this season.

Fans Turn Out in So-So Year

By FRANK PITMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The past year in Colorado sports, to borrow a Chinese custom, might be defined best as "The year of the loyal fan."

There was not much else out-of-the-ordinary on the sports scene.

Except for some individual performances, the year 1964 will not be remembered for athletic feats of any great consequence by the state's major sports teams.

But 1964 surely will be recalled for the kind treatment of losing football coaches. Two of them, Eddie Crowder of University of Colorado and Mac Speedie of the Denver Broncos, were rewarded with new contracts and the lusty support of fans—those bill payers who are supposed to have a voracious appetite for non-winning coaches.

Crowder, finishing his second two-won, eight-lost season, was tapped to succeed Dean Harry Carlson, Colorado's director of athletics for the past 27 years who is retiring next June 30. Between now and then Carlson will school Crowder in his new responsibilities, which he will carry in addition to that of coaching football.

Speedie, who took over the coaching reigns of the beleaguered Denver Broncos of the American Football League in October, pumped new life into the sagging Flying Horses. The Broncs, in addition to winning a couple of games, played it close in the ones they lost under Speedie. That endeared him to the Denver fans, and especially the Bronco management, which gave him a two-year contract. He had been assistant under Jack Faulkner, who was fired after a miserable early season showing by the Broncos.

Colorado State University, struggling back from obscurity under effervescent Mike Lude, came through with a five-won, six-lost football season.

Air Force, experiencing the same fate as the state's other major football teams, finished 4-5 but gave the state a brief moment in the national spotlight when Notre Dame visited the academy and carried away a 34-7 victory before an Air Force record 44,000 fans.

The major collegiate basketball teams fared a little better than the football elevens but none garnered any national honors. Coach Jim Williams at Colorado State University, playing independently, produced the best record, 16-won, 9-lost. Colorado failed in a bid for a third straight Big Eight crown and Coach Sox Walseth's club wound up second with a 9-5 record. For the full season, the Buffs were 15-10. Coach Bob Spear at Air Force had his second losing season in eight years' coaching basketball at the academy as the Falcons finished 11-15.

The only national championship was captured by Denver University's ski team, which edged Dartmouth for the NCAA title. That was the fourth straight NCAA crown for Coach Willy Schaeffler, who has coached eight NCAA champs since 1954.

Colorado's other internationally famous ski coach, Bob Beattie of University of Colorado, added new laurels to his sparkling list of achievements by coaching the United States Alpine men's team in the Winter Olympics.

Beattie's skiers gave the U.S. its most renown ever in the Olympics as Jimmy Heuga, a CU junior now, won a bronze medal in the slalom at Innsbruck and Billy Kidd, a CU freshman this year, won a silver medal in the event.

Undefeated Western State captured the Rocky Mountain Conference football championship then lost 14-13 in the Mineral Water Bowl to North Dakota State.

Lou Klimchock of the Denver Bears won the Pacific Coast Baseball League batting crown with a .334 average but the Bears ran fourth in the Eastern Division, 16 games back of winning Arkansas. Jim Burris, widely known minor league executive resigned as Texas League president, to become general manager of the Bears for the 1965 season.

Denver University's hockey team lost 6-3 to Michigan in the championship finals of the NCAA Hockey Tournament after winning the Western Collegiate Hockey Association title.

Parimutuel betting enjoyed a boom year. Total wagering at the four dog and three horse tracks on the 333 days of operation was $57,984,006 compared with $54,785,574 for 335 days of racing in 1963. Attendance this year was up to 1,344,257 from 1,310,305.

Prosperity enveloped high school sports too. The annual Colorado High School Basketball Tournament at Denver in March drew 69,000 fans who paid a record $76,543 during the three-day event at the Coliseum, Auditorium Arena, Adams City and Aurora Central.

The $14,348 gate at the Class AAA football finals at Denver between Lakewood and Colorado Springs Wasson was a new high although paid attendance of 11,282 was slightly under the 12,715 paid fans at the 1961 finals in Pueblo between Pueblo Central and Lakewood.

Public high school sports champions in 1964 were:

Pentathlon—South Denver.

Gymnastics— Aurora Central.

Swimming — Denver George Washington.

Tennis—East Denver.

Cross-country — Division 1, East Denver; Division 2, Aurora Hinkley; Division 3, Johnstown Roosevelt.

Golf—Denver Thomas Jefferson.

Quarterbacks Key to Air Force Grid Season

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

In a way, the recently past football season for the Air Force Academy's Falcons actually started almost a year ago and will finish next year. And it all centers around the key mover of the AFA's offense — the quarterback.

Biggest plans for the 1964 season were being formed last spring because of the graduation of one of the most publicized players in the school's history, Terry Isaacson. The big question was who will replace the triple-threat star from Oak Park, Ill., as the triggerman of the Falcons attack.

It turned out that a slim Irishman named Tim Murphy took over controls of the team and molded an exciting season for the Academy's fans with a blistering passing game that was to rank nationally all fall. But Murphy was a senior with only one year playing time with the varsity . . . so at the last his role was taken over by a scampering junior in much the same style as Isaacson, and it undoubtedly will be Paul Stein's time to shine as quarterback of next year's team.

Although used extensively in the last four games, Stein was still playing second fiddle to Murphy in the finale as the Falcons wound up on a disappointing note by dropping a 28-23 melee to arch rival Colorado University on snow-trimmed Folsom Field in Boulder.

Of the 10 records set by this team, Murphy and his favorite target end Jim Greth were in on most of them. Murph ended the season with the best percentage of any AFA passer, most yardage in the air (225 against CU) and Greth hauled down eight of those passes in the same game to surpass another Air Force standard.

This year was the first time missed that distinction by a tie against Wyoming (7-7) and the loss to Colorado in the final game to finish with a 4-5-1 ledger. Still, that was better than many had dreamed of before the season began and with the AFA facing the most rugged schedule ever.

It was quite appropriate that Murphy was at the helm for the Falcons through most of the season in a year in which the Irish were quite important. team — and the Air Force the Air Force met Notre Dame's Fighting Irish on the gridiron and a memorable game it was.

A record crowd of 44,384 for Falcon Stadium watched new coach Ara Parseghian weave his magic to the tune of 34-7 in a contest that was to help boost the famed school into the No. 1 ranking in the nation after several years of mediocre football.

That was the Big Game of the season, and the one the Academy people wanted more than any other, especially this being one of the years in which neither of the sister military schools (Army or Navy) were on the schedule. But the Cadets were caught up in the wave that swept the country in the comeback of Notre Dame to among the elite.

The tremendous physical strength of the Irish was a surprise to nearly everyone, but the Air Force also had a surprise for their fans. That came in the opening game of the fall as the AFA startled the Huskies of the University of Washington with a 3-2 setback in a great display of defense. The Cadet defenders actually held the West Coast favorites scoreless, giving up an intentional safety while Bart Holaday (later named to a Rhodes scholarship after serving as Wing Commander at the AFA) provided one of three field goals kicked during the season.

That defense was to be the trademark of this edition of Falcon football and it lasted until that exciting ending with Colorado in which both teams raced up and down the field like in a Chinese fire drill.

Besides Notre Dame, other powers on the slate were Rose Bowl-bound Michigan, the Big Ten champion; Washington, which didn't recover from that opening upset until late in the season; Missouri, a contender in the Big Eight; always colorful UCLA; and a stronger than expected Boston College.

Perhaps the best played game of the year, ranking along with the Washington win, was the 24-15 triumph over UCLA in Los Angeles in which the Air Force failed to complete a single pass but finally got its feet on the ground and rang up an astounding total of 382 yards in total offense — all via rushing.

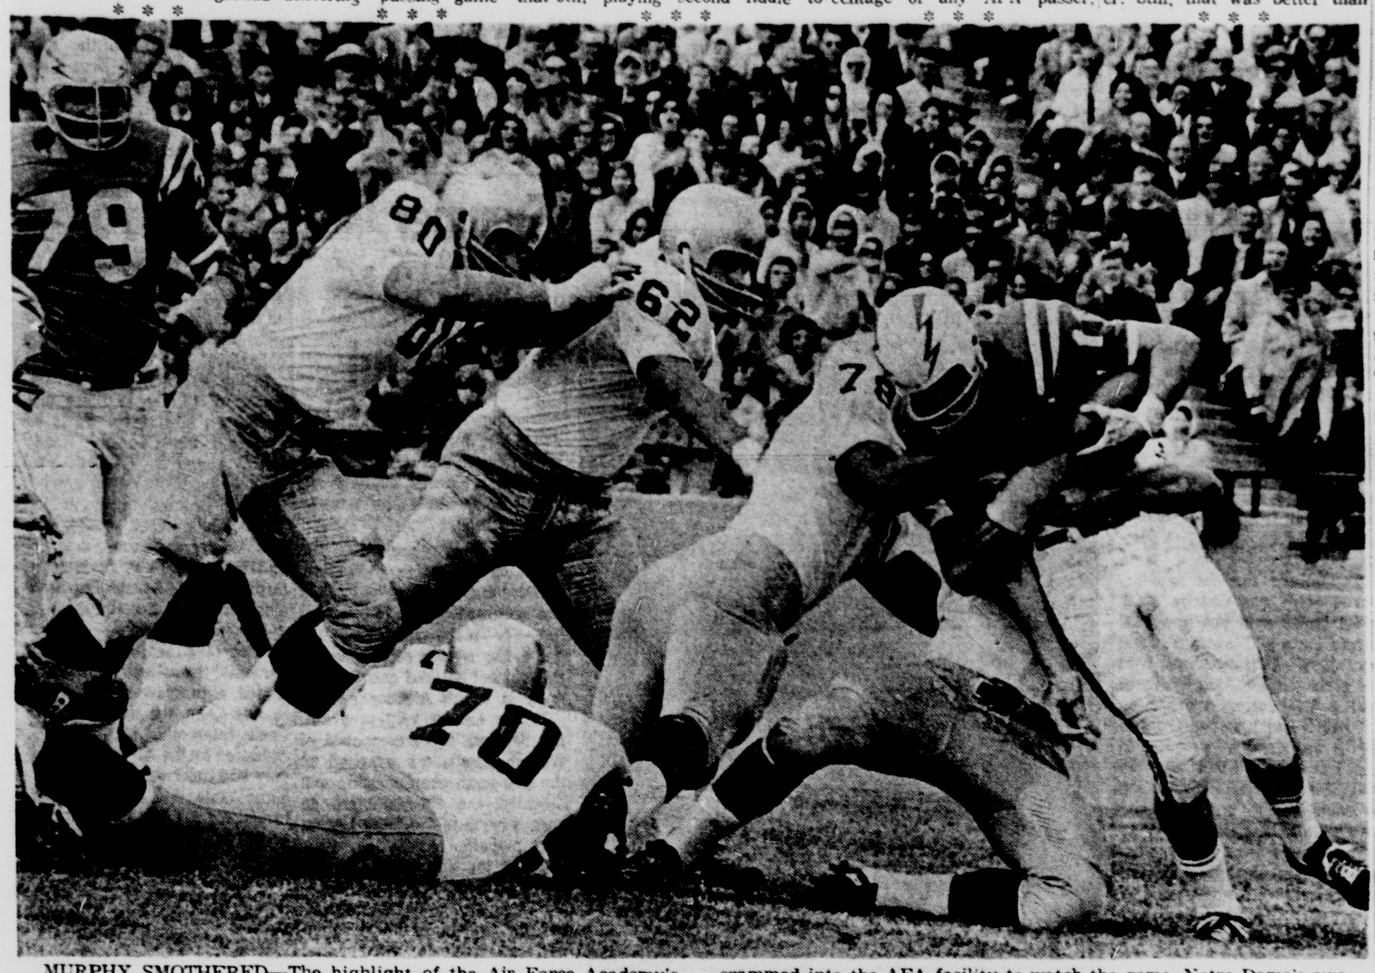
After Washington, the season progressed with a 24-7 loss to Michigan with the Wolverines' great All-America Bob Timberlake putting on a grand show of all-around play; the AFA slipped past a stubborn Colorado State University 14-6 following a 69-0 slaughter the previous year; and then came Notre Dame with quarterback John Huarte and end Jack Snow leading the Irish 34-7.

Missouri pounded in a third period touchdown to break up a tight game and defeat the Falcons 17-7 in the next outing, and then Boston College handed the AFA its third straight loss with another third period score 13-7. Defense played the key role for the Falcons in their 7-0 win over Arizona, the Cadets hit a high for the fall at UCLA, then came back to deadlock Wyoming with a touchdown each, and the season ended at Colorado.

The biggest factor of the year was the inability of the Air Force offense to get untracked as in seven of the games the Falcons were only able to score one touchdown or less and in one other they could put across only two TDs. Thus the load was dropped on the defenders who stood up well under the strain.

Outside of Murphy, who completed 94 of 160 passes for 1154 yards, and Greth, who ended up with a team-leading 33 catches for 436 yards, there were several other standouts for the fall with many of them on the defensive unit.

Steve Amdor finished as the top runner with 117 carries (52 more than his closest rival) and 485 yards, and Dick Czarnota was next with 65 tries and 226 yards. Fritz Greenlee caught 23 passes. And Ken Jaggers set records for most punts and best average (41.0) for the season. Top defenders were linebacker Larry Tollstam, safety Lloyd Duncan, halfbacks Jaggers and Jeff Jarvis and ends John Puster and Joe O'Gorman.



MURPHY SMOTHERED—The highlight of the Air Force Academy's football season was the first meeting in history with the famed Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, and a Falcon Stadium record of 44,384 fans crammed into the AFA facility to watch the game. Notre Dame's awesome defense, is shown here as they smothered Falcon quarterback Tim Murphy, was too much to handle and the Irish won 34-7.

Conference-Less Tigers Come Up With One Victory

Escape from the Rocky Mountain Conference, which had been designed to accomodate the Tigers "no-scholarship" philosophy, did not turn out to be the humanitarian move that had been expected. CC still lost seven of eight games and absorbed some thorough shellings in the process.

Actually, the Colorado College season was ill-fated before it actually got underway. The already thin Tiger ranks were stripped of crucial personnel before the Tigers ever looked an enemy in the face. Included in the continuous tragedy was the loss for the season of quarterback Cubby Welch, a two-year veteran who was one of the few polished players CC had on its roster.

There were others, notably all-conference end, Lee Muller, who was sidelined for the first several games, taking a sizeable portion of the team's passing game with him. Stan Lathrop, a veteran tackle who had figured to carry a great deal of the leadership in the line, also never saw a single down of action.

But the true downfall of the Colorado College season was wrapped up in the loss of fullback Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol—who was in his own way the most famous player to ever attend the local school. Sabol had become a legend in a football program where most stories were in the form of jokes.

"Sudden Death" was self-named and self-publicized, but his star had infiltrated virtually every corner of the United States. He was the feature subject of stories in such publications as the Empire Magazine of the Denver Post, as recounted by highly-respected sports columnist, Harry Farrar. His exploits, although permeated with a strong hint of Sabol ingenuity, invaded Sport Magazine. His abilities, mostly other than football, were outlined in feature stories in the large Eastern newspapers, including one from his home area of Philadelphia.

Although Sabol's football exploits were incidental with the majority of journalists, he was actually a standout contributor in the CC system. As an all-conference fullback and one of the nation's leading small-college kickers, his captaincy of the 1964 Tiger team was expected to trigger far more tangible contributions than mere publicity.

But "Sudden Death", whose fame was nurtured by a self-planted advertisement in the CC football program when he was a junior, retired to the sidelines in a battle with hepititis. He departed the school before the footballs had actually been put in flight—his much-anticipated senior year erased by the illness.

With such a background of early season discouragment, Coach Jerry Carle was forced to send his team into action as early as Sept. 19. Concordia Lutheran and Hastings College, a pair of Nebraska visitors, inflicted the early injuries on the Tigers but five more followed before relief was to finally appear. Fort Lewis College, a new Colorado institution, pounded CC 28-0 and Nebraska Wesleyan followed with a 40-7 trouncing.

Then came a disappointing 29-6 setback at the hands of California Lutheran, one of the few teams the Tigers had really hoped to whip. Powerful Santa Clara followed with 42-0 blasting in a West Coast trip and Doane College of Nebrasks completed the blitz with a 32-18 conquest.

Just at the darkest hour, the Tigers stumbled on to the sweetest relief possible. Before a scanty crowd against their most bitter rivals, CC's gridders avoided constant mayhem between the two spectating factions to whip Colorado Mines 13-7 and end the drouth. A 21 yard run by speedy sophomore Ray Jones provided the winning points in the final quarter.

Jones was one of several bright spots in the Tiger picture at the end of the '64 campaign. CC frequently started an all-sophomore backfield and with the emergence of Mike Denson, a former Lakewood star, as quarterback during the last part of the campaign, the Tigers finally began to produce some offense. Denson's running and passing provided a spark which had long been absent and he and others such as Warner Reeser and Bob Stapp, another Lakewood teammate, figure to make the CC backfield an much more effective unit in the future.

But CC football, as is the case with other sports at the local school, has been in an era of decline. The revival, at best, will be slow—if it comes at all. And, sadly there are no "Sudden Deaths" on the horizon to salve the many wounds.

Bengals Finish Strong Despite Losing Season

Handed a pea-green squad that included only six lettermen and a dominating number of inexperienced sophomores, Coach Bob Johnson in his first year as head of the Colorado College hockey program startled the always tough Western Collegiate Hockey Association during the 1963-64 season by going down to the wire in the battle for a playoff berth.

A cellar finish was the only realistic approach for the Tigers, inherited by Johnson, who was fresh from high school coaching in Minnesota and who was taking over a team that had losing seasons four out of the last five years.

But with renewed vigor and discipline of a task-master, the youthful CC coach not only developed a team that caused trouble for all the league leaders, but also just missed the championship playoffs by a whisker and had the first All-America, at the school in seven seasons.

The climax for the Tigers came in the final game of the schedule as they fought for one of the four top spots in the WCHA standings. They batted through 9-8 losing decision in overtime against Michigan Tech, which was typical of the excitement generated by these underdogs over the entire year.

Although the playoff berth decided the same night with North Dakota slipping into the post-season tournament via a win over Minnesota, the Bengals fought for their lives in the finale for a CC win and a North Dakota loss would have put the Springs' team into the league playoff.

Thus, the team just missed the "brass ring" but individual honors were in store for the Tigers' top winger, Johnny Simus, a senior from Minneapolis. Simus was the first CC player to make the All-America list since the celebrated Bill (Red) Hay, now one of the top scorers in the pro National Hockey League, and Bob McCusker off the 1958 team.

If nothing else, the fast finish by this CC squad brought new hopes of a comeback to hockey heights among the local following. They finished with an overal record of 12-15-1, but this was far better than expected considering some of the opposition and the small number of experienced hands available.

Included on the schedule was a pair of games against the U.S. Olympic team, and of course the powers of the WCHA which were the class of the nation's amateurs.

Among the highlights of the season were twin victories over third place Minnesota in their last go-around, four overtime games during the year, and the championship in the annual Brown University Invitational Tournament. While winning the Brown tourney on an eastern trip early in the season, the Bengals put together a six-game winning streak.

Simus, an ever-hustling winger who drew praise from observers throughout the country, and veteran Warren Fordyce shared the scoring leadership for the Tigers, each collecting 38 points during the season. Simus, the All-America, was the leader in goals with 21 and Fordyce had 18 goals and 20 assists.

But Johnson was still saddled with trying to compete with a squad made up of nearly all youngsters right out of U. S. high schools while the rest of the league (with the exception of Minnesota) was using Canadian players imported from semi-pro junior leagues north of the border.

Falcon Cagers Post Losing Season, 11-12

For only the second time in the short history of the Air Force Academy, the Falcon basketball team finished out with a losing season — but by the narrowest of margins.

In the eight years Coach Bob Spear has handled the Cadets at the AFA, all but the last two seasons were either winning ones or a breakeven for the schedule. Part of this is undoubtedly due to the increased tempo of competition in recent years and the continued trouble the AFA has had in keeping pace between recruiting the tall and talented and the increasing difficulty of the slate.

The 1964 season was a series of close calls, but this time the pendulum of fate swung away from the Falcons. Typical of the narrow decisions was the finale against visiting Oregon University in which the Air Force fell by a 62-59 margin. This game tipped the scales away from the AFA on their quest for a winning season again.

The Air Force finished with a 11-12 record, but furnished thrills aplenty for their following.

The three-point loss to Oregon was just one of seven games lost by three points or less. Winning these would have turned the winter into an excellent 18-4 and unquestionably the Cadets would have been placed in the NCAA playoffs.

And what made matters even worse for the Falcons was the fact that four of those close ones came at home, where the Fliers have been nearly invincible in past years.

It was also a year in which the Air Force basketball team absorbed its most lop-sided defeat in history — a 24-point 99-75 loss at Wyoming. But it was also sparkled with highlights such as the victory over Young University and the thrill-packed 48-46 triumph over Colorado State University on the Aggies' own court iin Ft. Collins.

Never was the Air Force able to put more than three victories back-to-back and this cut deeply into their expectations. Streaks of three were accomplished three times, however, the last one with a fine win over Marquette on the road sandwiched between twho home games.

The Cadets had a fine chance to finish out on a strong note after this last string, with four more games to go. But a three-point loss to CSU in the return battle at the Academy seemed to take the starch out of the Falcons and they followed with the humiliating thumping at Wyoming, then lost by 12 to a mediocre Denver University and dropped the finale to Oregon.

Closing out a brilliant career with the AFA was senior guard Johnny Judd, who drew praise as one of the finest players for his size in the country. At 5-8, Johnny was one of the smallest starters in major college ball, but he more than made up for his lack of height with hustle, scoring and ball-hawking.

Judd finished with 388 points for the 23 games and a 16.9 average over the season. He also ended his college career as the third highest scorer in AFA history with a mean of 14.2 points, topped only by Bob Beckel (1956-59) and Don Wolfswinkle (1956-60).

Behind Judd in the team scoring came a pair of other seniors in Mike Pavich and Roger Head. Other first classmen lost through graduation who held up the Falcons attack most of the season were Rich Porter and Nick Lacey, the latter from nearby Fountain High.

Again it was a year in which the Air Force was fighting a losing battle on the boards for the all-important rebounds. As has been the case every year, they have been out-manned in height against the majority of opponents.

But the scrappy Cadets, under Spear's superb guidance, used a tight defense with their ball-control tactics in the famed Spear shuffle patterns on offense to stay close to nearly every opponent. This has been the trademark of the Cadets over the years, and the style is expected to remain at the AFA as long as their fine coach stays or until more size is added to the team.

This past fall, the Air Force was forced into somewhat of a "building seasson" because of only one senior on the varsity squad, along with a half-dozen sophomore prospects and five juniors. However, they started farily strong in winning three of their first five, and already had one overtime loss to old nemesis CSU in the first round of the first annual Mile High Classic that involved Denver and Colorado U. The other loss was to CU in the Mile High, but they defeated Carroll College, Missouri and Iowa State in other contests.

The future was looking up with nearly the entire squad returning for next season.

City Becomes Golf Stronghold

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The year 1964 firmly established the Pikes Peak region as the Colorado headquarters of tournament golf! During a lengthy season that extended from mid-May until early September, the area's courses hosted five top national amateur competitions in addition to several attractive area tournaments.

With the death of the Denver Open in the Mile High City, professional golf drew its last gasp in Colorado. But the vacuum was filled, at least to an extent, by the appearance of many of the game's finest amateurs. The Broadmoor, the focal point of the majority of the activity, opened its lush fairways to four major events, the National Collegiate Athletic Association Championship, the Men's Trans-Mississippi, the World Seniors and the Pikes Peak Intercollegiate. In addition the Air Force Academy shared host duties for the Intercollegiate and also was the site of the Western Juniors Championship.

Those were the established national attractions, but there was at least one other tournament that equaled their caliber. The al, which has suddenly been Broadmoor Women's Invitational, which has suddenly been elevated to a status of rare importance, had a field that included many of the game's best women amateurs. There were also fine area stars gathered here for such attractions as the Broadmoor Men's Invitational, the Pikes Peak Invitational, and the N.C. (Tub) Morris State Medal Play Championship.

Even with this glittering tournament schedule, the highlight of the golf season locally did not occur on a Colorado Springs course. Instead it was recorded several hundred miles away in Kansas where the Broadmoor's adopted lady star, Barbara McIntire, captured her second National Amateur Championship.

Miss McIntire, who is already assured of a niche as one of the amateur game's all-time greats, did it the hard way too. Her 3 and 2 triumph in the finals was in combat with the most feared woman amateur of the day, three-time national champion, JoAnne Gunderson. Barbara was not even satisfied with the testimonial. She made the conquest still more sensational by coming from a deficit that had extended to four down after 20 holes. With that seemingly impossible barrier, Miss McIntire proceeded to win the next five holes without faltering and closed out the match at the 34th when Miss Gunderson hit into a trap and bogied. Following that extraordinary achievement, Barbara went on to play well as a member of the U.S. Curtis Cup team and in the International matches in France.

1964 was also the first full year for Dow Finsterwald, one of professional golf's top names, as the head pro at the Broadmoor. Finsterwald continued frequent appearances on the tour but also was on hand at the local club for the majority of its top tournaments.

Competitively, a "finest attraction" of 1964 would be difficult to single out but if the task were necessary, this vote would go to the NCAA championships which were decided over the Broadmoor's exacting course in mid-June.

The NCAA might accurately be described as a mirror of the future. The names of the majority of its top players are not universally familiar at present, but many will be before many more putts have dropped. In their week long visit to the Broadmoor, the collegiate stars put on a sensational show of power and exceptional skill that frequently left onlookers staggering with amazement.

The team championship returned to Houston, where it has found such a frequent home in the past decade. And the Cougars' seven stroke victory over annual foe, Oklahoma State, was all the more convincing in that the team's most consistent star, Wright Garrett, did not even count in the final totals. Marty Fleckman, an exciting sophomore with a explosive driver, led the Houston team with a 36 hole total of 141, just two strokes behind the total of tournament medalist, Jerry Potter of Miami.

The match play championship produced the anticipated number of surprises, in additional to a powerful new champion. With many of the bright young names scattered in his wake, muscular Terry Small of San Jose State concluded his week-long run by defeating Kansas State's Jim Colbert in the 36 hole finals, 2 and 1.

Many of the stars of that show were back at the Broadmoor just three weeks later for the Trans-Mississippi, another of the four top amateur championships in the nation. As if to prove that the NCAA spectacular was no accident, the college lads dropped a blanket of domination over the Trans. It started with Ron Cerrudo's six-under-par 136 which gained him medalist honors and reached a crest when three of the four semi-finalists turned out to be collegians.

In the semis, Dave Eichelberger of Oklahoma State prevented an all-Houston finals by defeating the Cougars' Randy Petri, 4 and 2. Garrett, who was obviously intent on atoning for his poor showing in the NCAA, hammered courageous Ron Moore of Denver, 6 and 5 and then made the reversal of form complete by spilling Eichelberger 3 and 2 and capturing the championship.

Prior to either of those tournaments, the collegians had presented a preview of what was to come. In the annual Pikes Peak Intercollegiate, which is co-hosted by the Air Force Academy and Colorado College, Oklahoma State and Houston deadlocked for the team title with a score of 912. The Cowboy's George Hixon edged Garrett for individual honors by one stroke with a total of 223.

Late in June, the Academy served as the site for the Colorado Medal Play championship where defending champion Hale Irwin came from behind on the final day to annex his second straight crown with 291 total. That was two strokes better than the 293 fired by Tom Reed of Broomfield.

Following the Trans came the Broadmoor Men's and with it a return to the winner's circle for Jim English, one of the area's most consistently excellent amateurs for many years. English made his big move in the quarter - finals with a great rally that ousted the seemingly unbeatable defending champion, John Liechty of Marshalltown, Ia. Liechty had a three hole lead with three to play but blew to three consecutive bogies and English then polished him off with an eight foot birdie putt at the 19th. He went on to whip Fran Bostock of Scottsdale, Ariz. in the semis and then bested Herb Pollock of Salt Lake City in the finals.

The following week the scene shifted to Patty Jewett for the Pikes Peak Invitational which returned to a match play format after a fling at medal play for its championship flight. Arnold Abel, a powerful young unknown from Denver, was the surprise winner by a 4 and 3 margin over defending champion, Gary Polumbus, in the finals.

Then came the Broadmoor Women's with its great field of lady stars, including Judy Bell, Jean Ashley, Carol Sorenson, Jeannie Butler, Barbara Fay White, and Miss McIntire. Miss White, who had been the sensation of the tour up to that point, showed why at the Broadmoor by moving to the finals in easy fashion and then pulling a stunning rally from a five hole noontime deficit to edge Miss McIntire one up in the finals. Both gals were six under par for the day.

Finally, as a climax, came a double dose. Late in August while the Broadmoor was hosting the World Senior championships, the Academy had the Western Junior in progress. That tournament was captured by Jim Wiechers of Atherton, Calif. for the second time with a 3 and 1 finals victory over Greg Pitzer.

In the Seniors, the championship of the International Team Matches went to the United States, led by the five under par shooting of Howard Creel. The tournament itself had its finest field ever, with a large representation from overseas and ended with its first foreign finalist. Jack Barkel, a youthful-appearing senior from Australia served as the tourney's medalist with a 71 and then marched through the bracket until the final day when popular Dorsey Nevergall of Pompano Bach, Fla. whacked out a 5 and 4 decision to become the fourth champion in the five year history of the event.

T-Bird, Palmer Basketball Suffers Great Misfortune

The 1963-64 campaign was one of hard luck and hard knocks for Palmer and Wasson basketball teams in the well-stocked South Central League. For only the second time since the conference expanded to eight schools in 1959, neither of the Colorado Springs representatives finished in the first division.

Top news of the year actually came following the campaign, when Gerry Schroder, head coach of the Terrors for only two seasons, announced his resignation. Schroder, a former All-Conference great at Colorado University, departed the coaching field altogether to enter dental school at the University of Nebraska. He was replaced by Roger O'Neil a young coach from Illinois who was to bring a flavor of Midwest basketball to the Rockies.

The season itself was one where a few points could have made an enormous difference for both local clubs, but especially for the Terrors. Palmer dropped seven contests by a total of just 20 points. Included was a one-pointer, 69-68, to Pueblo South and three two-pointers, 50-48 to Jefferson County, 62-60 to Pueblo East, and 55-53 to Wasson. Another one went by three points, 58-55, to Centennial and two others by five points.

The campaign opened auspiciously enough as the Tribe whacked North Denver 56-50 in the first round of the annual tournament at that school. But the next night served as a warning of things to come. Pueblo Central, eventual winner of the SCL and the runner-up in the AA state tournament, blistered the Terrors 75-57 in the finals. From that point on victories were few. The Tribe did clip South Denver before dropping the Jefferson game to enter the SCL race with a 2-2 record. But then the drouth set in and wins over Trinidad, Wasson, and Grand Junction were it for the rest of the winter.

The season was somewhat disappointing in that the Terrors had a basically veteran team, built around all-conference returnee, Bobby Joe Williams, and high-scoring Walt Hylton. Bill McCalvy, a sharp-shooting junior came on to add more punch but somehow the club never really jelled into a compact unit.

Hylton led the scorers with an 11.8 average on 213 points in the 18 games. McCalvy finished at 11.5 with 207 and Williams at 11.2 on 202. Williams easily topped the rebounders with 211. In league scoring Hylton ranked 10th with 12.4 and Williams 11th at 12.3 Hylton was selected to the all-conference team and both he and Williams were chosen on the All-City squad.

In contrast to the Tribe, Wasson had more-or-less expected to have a "down" season. Gone was all the brilliant talent from the team of the previous winter and Coach Dick Westbay was forced to undergo a complete rebuilding job. Still, the Thunderbirds started surprisingly well, defeating South Denver and Cherry Creek and losing to strong clubs from Lincoln and West Denver.

Then came a slump during which the team dropped its first three conference games before bouncing back with a solid performance against Pueblo East that netted a 73-66 victory. The pivotal point of the season arrived the next weekend and it was a heartbreaking one for Wasson. Well ahead in a contest with highly-favored Centennial, the Birds eventually blew an overtime decision, 63-57. The next afternoon, against Trinidad, another sizeable lead melted away and the Miners slipped off with a 51-50 decision on a last second basket. The Birds bounced back to defeat Grand Junction and Palmer in the next two starts but the damage had already been done.

The T-Birds wound up the campaign with another one point loss to Trinidad and thus, despite some outstanding efforts, were lodged in sixth place in the final SCL standings with a 5-9 record. They were 7-11 overall.

Top scorer for the well-balanced team was Charlie Steel, a 6-3 junior who put away 181 points for a 10.1 average. Steel was also the best rebounder with 154 grabs. Senior John Wickham had a 9.5 scoring average on 171 points and junior guard Jim Smith an identical average in one less game. Steel was the only Thunderbird among the top 20 league scorers and he ranked 17th with a 10.6 average.

The Thunderbirds were bypassed in the all-conference selections but Smith was named to the first All-City team and Steel earned a second team berth on the same unit.

Roelants Gets 10,000-Meter Triumph

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Gaston Roelants of Belgium, Olympic 3,000 meters champion, won the 10,000-meter race Saturday at an international meet in the municipal stadium.

His time was 29:46.1. Roelants on New Year's Eve won the annual St. Sylvester run around the houses from a mob of 400 which included about 40 foreigners.

Kokiti Tsuburaya of Japan was second in 30:15.3; Antonio Ambu, Italy, third, in 30:22.4; Valentin Robles of Mexico, fourth, in 30:32.6.

Mahmoud Ameur of Algeria was fifth, in 31:34.2. William Dellinger of the United States quit on the 14th lap.

AMATEUR CHAMPION—Barbara McIntire, who became a Colorado Springs resident three years ago, turned in the major accomplishment in a season crowded with excellent golf, by winning her second U.S. Amateur Championship. She defeated three-time former champion, JoAnne Gunderson, in the finals.

Summer Baseball Is Successful

Starting with the All-Star game last July, the local American Legion and City summer baseball programs enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in some time.

The All-Star game pitted the three city schools — Wasson, Palmer and St. Mary's—against the area schools. Although the city team dominated the game, the rivalry established at this contest assured good attendance in future All-Star games.

In the Legion "A" program, the Sertoma team composed of Wasson baseballers wrapped up the four-team championship and defeated the Pueblo team to earn a berth in the State Legion "A" playoffs.

Under the direction of Coach Chris Talbott, a former Western State College baseball standout, the Sertoma team went undefeated until the final game when the second-place team, Rotary, spoiled the Legion champs' record.

The Sertoma team lost two games in the Legion tournament. In overall competition, the Sertoma squad wrote a 12-5 won-loss record behind the strong pitching of Bob Kochis, Clay Chambers and Bob Torrie.

In league play, the Sertoma nine compiled an 8-1 record, losing that single outing to Rotary in the final game. Chambers, in addition to his pitching, was the top hitter on the Sertoma club and also played various other positions.

The A&M Tranmission team, coached by Dave Crabtree, captured the Legion "B" championship but they lost in the State Legion "B" tourney quarter-finals.

Cheyenne Mountain's Indians rallied in the final stages of the Junior Men's City League to capture the championship in the playoffs behind the strong arm of lefty Ted Garcia.

Overall, the summer baseball program was a success.

Nichols Named Top PGA Putter of the Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Nichols, who set four tourney records winning the 1964 National PGA title, was named putter of the year Saturday in the annual vote by the Golf Writers Association of America.

Nichols, who also used his second-hand $5 putter in winning 1964's top purse—$35,000, in the Detroit Open—thus became the only golfer ever to capture two awards by the writers' group.

The 28-year-old Kentuckian two years ago received the Ben Hogan Trophy, bestowed annually to the golfer persisting after a physical handicap. Nichols suffered multiple injuries in an auto accident when he was 16, spending 92 days in a hospital.

With a discarded putter he bought for $5 a week earlier, Nichols won the PGA tourney at Columbus, Ohio, last July with a rousing finish including a 35-foot eagle putt on the 64th hole, a birdie 18-footer on the 69th, and a birdie 52-footer on the 71st.

He finished with a 271 and a three-stroke winning margin, both PGA tourney records for 72-hole medal play.

Bobby's first-round 64 and his sailing through as undisputed leader all four rounds also were PGA meet marks.

Nichols' triumph in the rich Detroit Open came mainly on a third round in which he used only 29 putts, 13 on the front nine.

Wasson Track, Baseball Teams Suffer Setbacks

It was a spring of rare accomplishment and bitter disappointment for Wasson's major varsity teams in 1964.

Gib Funk put together another brilliant baseball team, one he himself termed as "possibly the best I've ever coached." Unfortunately it was also one of the unluckiest and the T-Birds, who had finished second in the state playoffs each of the two previous years, ended up 1964 by surrendering their South Central League championship and viewing the state tournament from the sidelines.

Jim Hartman's track team had several outstanding days during the campaign and one of the greatest individual performers to ever attend the school, but in mid-May a disappointing effort failed to pick off the prize that the Thunderbirds wanted most, the SCL championship.

Everything about Wasson's baseball team was impressive, including the majority of its individual personnel. That fact was reflected in the all-conference balloting at the conclusion of the season. Thunderbird players picked off six of the 11 first team positions. Mike Teague at third base, Jim Smith at shortstop, Clay Chambers as a utility player, John Wickham in the outfield, Hal Meller as catcher, and pitcher Bob Kochis were all named to the first team.

Smith, who is probably the most sensational all-around athlete in Wasson's abbreviated history, had a phenominal year as a junior. He set a new team hitting record with a mark of .500 on 28 safe blows in 55 trips to the plate. Included were six home runs and the 140 pounder propelled three of those out of Memorial Park, two in one afternoon.

Overall the club had a .339 batting average while other individual offensive leaders included Meller with 20 runs-batted-in and Wickham with 16 stolen bases.

The pitching staff was equally impressive. It compiled an earned-run-average of 1.27 in 18 games with Kochis (5-2) having a 1.00 mark, Bob Torrie (4-0) 1.26, and Clay Chambers (6-1) 1.54.

With such a set of statistics, it is difficult to imagine how the Thunderbirds could lose the SCL title — and it wasn't an easy feat. Early trouble cropped up when the Birds bowed 2-0 in their league opener against Pueblo East. Following that they swept through eight straight opponents and appeared almost a cinch to successfully defend their crown when the first of two crushing blows was delivered. Centennial, the only team remaining in contention, used three wind-blown homers which sailed out of Wasson's tiny home park to defeat Kochis and the Thunderbirds 5-4.

Still, Wasson appeared in a strong position to earn no worse than a tie — and then the second blow fell. Richard Martinez, a tiny southpaw, hurled Trinidad to a stunning 2-1 win on Wasson's home field and the T-Birds were finished. Despite a 9-3 conference record and a 15-3 overall mark, the Birds had to be content with the role of an also-ran.

The track story was also one of second places, except where Jeff Berven was concerned. The finest distance runner in South Central League history, Berven toured the prep circuit with the Wasson team, leaving records shsattered in his wake. Not only was he unbeaten in the mile, but when Hartman elected to switch him to the 880 for one meet, he ran a time of 1:58.2 that equaled the state record. The following week he was entered in the 440 and outdueled Alan Snyder of Palmer, the eventual conference champion.

Berven capped his remarkable spring by easily winning the SCL mile title in a time of 4:36 which established a new record and then thrilling a crowd of several thousand at Boulder with a brilliant burst of stretch speed that earned him the coveted state mile championship in the fast time of 4:28.1.

With Berven leading the way, the T-Birds were among the top contenders in almost every meet they entered, but unfortunately, usually as the bridesmaid. This was the case in the Pikes Peak Relays which was won by East Denver's great team with 82 points. Wasson was second with 74.

It was also true in the conference meet where the Thunderbirds had been favored. Palmer retained its title with 55½ points to 48¾ for the runner-up Thunderbirds. In addition to Berven, other individual winners for Wasson were Dominic Flacco in the 100 yard dash and low hurdles and Craig Gillette in the high jump.

Falcon Cagers Post Losing Season, 11-12

For only the second time in the short history of the Air Force Academy, the Falcon basketball team finished out with a losing season — but by the narrowest of margins.

In the eight years Coach Bob Spear has handled the Cadets at the AFA, all but the last two seasons were either winning ones or a breakeven for the schedule. Part of this is undoubtedly due to the increased tempo of competition in recent years and the continued trouble the AFA has had in keeping pace between recruiting the tall and talented and the increasing difficulty of the slate.

The 1964 season was a series of close calls, but this time the pendulum of fate swung away from the Falcons. Typical of the narrow decisions was the finale against visiting Oregon University in which the Air Force fell by a 62-59 margin. This game tipped the scales away from the AFA on their quest for a winning season again.

The Air Force finished with a 11-12 record, but furnished thrills aplenty for their following.

The three-point loss to Oregon was just one of seven games lost by three points or less. Winning these would have turned the winter into an excellent 18-4 and unquestionably the Cadets would have been placed in the NCAA playoffs.

And what made matters even worse for the Falcons was the fact that four of those close ones came at home, where the Fliers have been nearly invincible in past years.

It was also a year in which the Air Force basketball team absorbed its most lop-sided defeat in history — a 24-point 99-75 loss at Wyoming. But it was also sparkled with highlights such as the victory over Young University and the thrill-packed 48-46 triumph over Colorado State University on the Aggies' own court iin Ft. Collins.

Never was the Air Force able to put more than three victories back-to-back and this cut deeply into their expectations. Streaks of three were accomplished three times, however, the last one with a fine win over Marquette on the road sandwiched between twho home games.

The Cadets had a fine chance to finish out on a strong note after this last string, with four more games to go. But a three-point loss to CSU in the return battle at the Academy seemed to take the starch out of the Falcons and they followed with the humiliating thumping at Wyoming, then lost by 12 to a mediocre Denver University and dropped the finale to Oregon.

Closing out a brilliant career with the AFA was senior guard Johnny Judd, who drew praise as one of the finest players for his size in the country. At 5-8, Johnny was one of the smallest starters in major college ball, but he more than made up for his lack of height with hustle, scoring and ball-hawking.

Judd finished with 388 points for the 23 games and a 16.9 average over the season. He also ended his college career as the third highest scorer in AFA history with a mean of 14.2 points, topped only by Bob Beckel (1956-59) and Don Wolfswinkle (1956-60).

Behind Judd in the team scoring came a pair of other seniors in Mike Pavich and Roger Head. Other first classmen lost through graduation who held up the Falcons attack most of the season were Rich Porter and Nick Lacey, the latter from nearby Fountain High.

Again it was a year in which the Air Force was fighting a losing battle on the boards for the all-important rebounds. As has been the case every year, they have been out-manned in height against the majority of opponents.

But the scrappy Cadets, under Spear's superb guidance, used a tight defense with their ball-control tactics in the famed Spear shuffle patterns on offense to stay close to nearly every opponent. This has been the trademark of the Cadets over the years, and the style is expected to remain at the AFA as long as their fine coach stays or until more size is added to the team.

This past fall, the Air Force was forced into somewhat of a "building seasson" because of only one senior on the varsity squad, along with a half-dozen sophomore prospects and five juniors. However, they started farily strong in winning three of their first five, and already had one overtime loss to old nemesis CSU in the first round of the first annual Mile High Classic that involved Denver and Colorado U. The other loss was to CU in the Mile High, but they defeated Carroll College, Missouri and Iowa State in other contests.

The future was looking up with nearly the entire squad returning for next season.

The match play championship produced the anticipated number of surprises, in additional to a powerful new champion. With many of the bright young names scattered in his wake, muscular Terry Small of San Jose State concluded his week-long run by defeating Kansas State's Jim Colbert in the 36 hole finals, 2 and 1.

Many of the stars of that show were back at the Broadmoor just three weeks later for the Trans-Mississippi, another of the four top amateur championships in the nation. As if to prove that the NCAA spectacular was no accident, the college lads dropped a blanket of domination over the Trans. It started with Ron Cerrudo's six-under-par 136 which gained him medalist honors and reached a crest when three of the four semi-finalists turned out to be collegians.

In the semis, Dave Eichelberger of Oklahoma State prevented an all-Houston finals by defeating the Cougars' Randy Petri, 4 and 2. Garrett, who was obviously intent on atoning for his poor showing in the NCAA, hammered courageous Ron Moore of Denver, 6 and 5 and then made the reversal of form complete by spilling Eichelberger 3 and 2 and capturing the championship.

Prior to either of those tournaments, the collegians had presented a preview of what was to come. In the annual Pikes Peak Intercollegiate, which is co-hosted by the Air Force Academy and Colorado College, Oklahoma State and Houston deadlocked for the team title with a score of 912. The Cowboy's George Hixon edged Garrett for individual honors by one stroke with a total of 223.

Late in June, the Academy served as the site for the Colorado Medal Play championship where defending champion Hale Irwin came from behind on the final day to annex his second straight crown with 291 total. That was two strokes better than the 293 fired by Tom Reed of Broomfield.

Following the Trans came the Broadmoor Men's and with it a return to the winner's circle for Jim English, one of the area's most consistently excellent amateurs for many years. English made his big move in the quarter - finals with a great rally that ousted the seemingly unbeatable defending champion, John Liechty of Marshalltown, Ia. Liechty had a three hole lead with three to play but blew to three consecutive bogies and English then polished him off with an eight foot birdie putt at the 19th. He went on to whip Fran Bostock of Scottsdale, Ariz. in the semis and then bested Herb Pollock of Salt Lake City in the finals.

The following week the scene shifted to Patty Jewett for the Pikes Peak Invitational which returned to a match play format after a fling at medal play for its championship flight. Arnold Abel, a powerful young unknown from Denver, was the surprise winner by a 4 and 3 margin over defending champion, Gary Polumbus, in the finals.

Then came the Broadmoor Women's with its great field of lady stars, including Judy Bell, Jean Ashley, Carol Sorenson, Jeannie Butler, Barbara Fay White, and Miss McIntire. Miss White, who had been the sensation of the tour up to that point, showed why at the Broadmoor by moving to the finals in easy fashion and then pulling a stunning rally from a five hole noontime deficit to edge Miss McIntire one up in the finals. Both gals were six under par for the day.

Finally, as a climax, came a double dose. Late in August while the Broadmoor was hosting the World Senior championships, the Academy had the Western Junior in progress. That tournament was captured by Jim Wiechers of Atherton, Calif. for the second time with a 3 and 1 finals victory over Greg Pitzer.

In the Seniors, the championship of the International Team Matches went to the United States, led by the five under par shooting of Howard Creel. The tournament itself had its finest field ever, with a large representation from overseas and ended with its first foreign finalist. Jack Bartel, a youthful-appearing senior from Australia served as the tourney's medalist with a 71 and then marched through the bracket until the final day when popular Dorsey Nevergall of Pompano Bach, Fla. whacked out a 5 and 4 decision to become the fourth champion in the five year history of the event.

T-Bird, Palmer Basketball Suffers Great Misfortune

The 1963-64 campaign was one of hard luck and hard knocks for Palmer and Wasson basketball teams in the well-stocked South Central League. For only the second time since the conference expanded to eight schools in 1959, neither of the Colorado Springs representatives finished in the first division.

Top news of the year actually came following the campaign, when Gerry Schroder, head coach of the Terrors for only two seasons, announced his resignation. Schroder, a former All-Conference great at Colorado University, departed the coaching field altogether to enter dental school at the University of Nebraska. He was replaced by Roger O'Neil a young coach from Illinois who was to bring a flavor of Midwest basketball to the Rockies.

The season itself was one where a few points could have made an enormous difference for both local clubs, but especially for the Terrors. Palmer dropped seven contests by a total of just 20 points. Included was a one-pointer, 69-68, to Pueblo South and three two-pointers, 50-48 to Jefferson County, 62-60 to Pueblo East, and 55-53 to Wasson. Another one went by three points, 58-55, to Centennial and two others by five points.

The campaign opened auspiciously enough as the Tribe whacked North Denver 56-50 in the first round of the annual tournament at that school. But the next night served as a warning of things to come. Pueblo Central, eventual winner of the SCL and the runner-up in the AA state tournament, blistered the Terrors 75-57 in the finals. From that point on victories were few. The Tribe did clip South Denver before dropping the Jefferson game to enter the SCL race with a 2-2 record. But then the drouth set in and wins over Trinidad, Wasson, and Grand Junction were it for the rest of the winter.

The season was somewhat disappointing in that the Terrors had a basically veteran team, built around all-conference returnee, Bobby Joe Williams, and high-scoring Walt Hylton. Bill McCalvy, a sharp-shooting junior came on to add more punch but somehow the club never really jelled into a compact unit.

Hylton led the scorers with an 11.8 average on 213 points in the 18 games. McCalvy finished at 11.5 with 207 and Williams at 11.2 on 202. Williams easily topped the rebounders with 211. In league scoring Hylton ranked 10th with 12.4 and Williams 11th at 12.3 Hylton was selected to the all-conference team and both he and Williams were chosen on the All-City squad.

In contrast to the Tribe, Wasson had more-or-less expected to have a "down" season. Gone was all the brilliant talent from the team of the previous winter and Coach Dick Westbay was forced to undergo a complete rebuilding job. Still, the Thunderbirds started surprisingly well, defeating South Denver and Cherry Creek and losing to strong clubs from Lincoln and West Denver.

Then came a slump during which the team dropped its first three conference games before bouncing back with a solid performance against Pueblo East that netted a 73-66 victory. The pivotal point of the season arrived the next weekend and it was a heartbreaking one for Wasson. Well ahead in a contest with highly-favored Centennial, the Birds eventually blew an overtime decision, 63-57. The next afternoon, against Trinidad, another sizeable lead melted away and the Miners slipped off with a 51-50 decision on a last second basket. The Birds bounced back to defeat Grand Junction and Palmer in the next two starts but the damage had already been done.

The T-Birds wound up the campaign with another one point loss to Trinidad and thus, despite some outstanding efforts, were lodged in sixth place in the final SCL standings with a 5-9 record. They were 7-11 overall.

Top scorer for the well-balanced team was Charlie Steel, a 6-3 junior who put away 181 points for a 10.1 average. Steel was also the best rebounder with 154 grabs. Senior John Wickham had a 9.5 scoring average on 171 points and junior guard Jim Smith an identical average in one less game. Steel was the only Thunderbird among the top 20 league scorers and he ranked 17th with a 10.6 average.

The Thunderbirds were bypassed in the all-conference selections but Smith was named to the first All-City team and Steel earned a second team berth on the same unit.

Roelants Gets 10,000-Meter Triumph

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Gaston Roelants of Belgium, Olympic 3,000 meters champion, won the 10,000-meter race Saturday at an international meet in the municipal stadium.

His time was 29:46.1. Roelants on New Year's Eve won the annual St. Sylvester run around the houses from a mob of 400 which included about 40 foreigners.

Kokiti Tsuburaya of Japan was second in 30:15.3; Antonio Ambu, Italy, third, in 30:22.4; Valentin Robles of Mexico, fourth, in 30:32.6.

Mahmoud Ameur of Algeria was fifth, in 31:34.2. William Dellinger of the United States quit on the 14th lap.

AMATEUR CHAMPION—Barbara McIntire, who became a Colorado Springs resident three years ago, turned in the major accomplishment in a season crowded with excellent golf, by winning her second U.S. Amateur Championship. She defeated three-time former champion, JoAnne Gunderson, in the finals.

Summer Baseball Is Successful

Starting with the All-Star game last July, the local American Legion and City summer baseball programs enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in some time.

The All-Star game pitted the three city schools — Wasson, Palmer and St. Mary's—against the area schools. Although the city team dominated the game, the rivalry established at this contest assured good attendance in future All-Star games.

In the Legion "A" program, the Sertoma team composed of Wasson baseballers wrapped up the four-team championship and defeated the Pueblo team to earn a berth in the State Legion "A" playoffs.

Under the direction of Coach Chris Talbott, a former Western State College baseball standout, the Sertoma team went undefeated until the final game when the second-place team, Rotary, spoiled the Legion champs' record.

The Sertoma team lost two games in the Legion tournament. In overall competition, the Sertoma squad wrote a 12-5 won-loss record behind the strong pitching of Bob Kochis, Clay Chambers and Bob Torrie.

In league play, the Sertoma nine compiled an 8-1 record, losing that single outing to Rotary in the final game. Chambers, in addition to his pitching, was the top hitter on the Sertoma club and also played various other positions.

The A&M Tranmission team, coached by Dave Crabtree, captured the Legion "B" championship but they lost in the State Legion "B" tourney quarter-finals.

Cheyenne Mountain's Indians rallied in the final stages of the Junior Men's City League to capture the championship in the playoffs behind the strong arm of lefty Ted Garcia.

Overall, the summer baseball program was a success.

Lippman is among ten new appointments as chairmen of AAU groups for the new year. In all, there are 65 AAU committees. The other new chairmen are:

Junior Olympics — Robert Goehrs, Houston, Tex.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Nichols, who set four tourney records winning the 1964 National PGA title, was named putter of the year Saturday in the annual vote by the Golf Writers Association of America.

Nichols, who also used his second-hand $5 putter in winning 1964's top purse—$35,000, in the Detroit Open—thus became the only golfer ever to capture two awards by the writers' group.

The 28-year-old Kentuckian two years ago received the Ben Hogan Trophy, bestowed annually to the golfer persisting after a physical handicap. Nichols suffered multiple injuries in an auto accident when he was 16, spending 92 days in a hospital.

With a discarded putter he bought for $5 a week earlier, Nichols won the PGA tourney at Columbus, Ohio, last July with a rousing finish including a 35-foot eagle putt on the 64th hole, a birdie 18-footer on the 69th, and a birdie 52-footer on the 71st.

He finished with a 271 and a three-stroke winning margin, both PGA tourney records for 72-hole medal play.

Bobby's first-round 64 and his sailing through as undisputed leader all four rounds also were PGA meet marks.

Nichols' triumph in the rich Detroit Open came mainly on a third round in which he used only 29 putts, 13 on the front nine.

Wasson Track, Baseball Teams Suffer Setbacks

It was a spring of rare accomplishment and bitter disappointment for Wasson's major varsity teams in 1964.

Gib Funk put together another brilliant baseball team, one he himself termed as "possibly the best I've ever coached." Unfortunately it was also one of the unluckiest and the T-Birds, who had finished second in the state playoffs each of the two previous years, ended up 1964 by surrendering their South Central League championship and viewing the state tournament from the sidelines.

Jim Hartman's track team had several outstanding days during the campaign and one of the greatest individual performers to ever attend the school, but in mid-May a disappointing effort failed to pick off the prize that the Thunderbirds wanted most, the SCL championship.

Everything about Wasson's baseball team was impressive, including the majority of its individual personnel. That fact was reflected in the all-conference balloting at the conclusion of the season. Thunderbird players picked off six of the 11 first team positions. Mike Teague at third base, Jim Smith at shortstop, Clay Chambers as a utility player, John Wickham in the outfield, Hal Meller as catcher, and pitcher Bob Kochis were all named to the first team.

Smith, who is probably the most sensational all-around athlete in Wasson's abbreviated history, had a phenominal year as a junior. He set a new team hitting record with a mark of .500 on 28 safe blows in 55 trips to the plate. Included were six home runs and the 140 pounder propelled three of those out of Memorial Park, two in one afternoon.

Overall the club had a .339 batting average while other individual offensive leaders included Meller with 20 runs-batted-in and Wickham with 16 stolen bases.

The pitching staff was equally impressive. It compiled an earned-run-average of 1.27 in 18 games with Kochis (5-2) having a 1.00 mark, Bob Torrie (4-0) 1.26, and Clay Chambers (6-1) 1.54.

With such a set of statistics, it is difficult to imagine how the Thunderbirds could lose the SCL title — and it wasn't an easy feat. Early trouble cropped up when the Birds bowed 2-0 in their league opener against Pueblo East. Following that they swept through eight straight opponents and appeared almost a cinch to successfully defend their crown when the first of two crushing blows was delivered. Centennial, the only team remaining in contention, used three wind-blown homers which sailed out of Wasson's tiny home park to defeat Kochis and the Thunderbirds 5-4.

Still, Wasson appeared in a strong position to earn no worse than a tie — and then the second blow fell. Richard Martinez, a tiny southpaw, hurled Trinidad to a stunning 2-1 win on Wasson's home field and the T-Birds were finished. Despite a 9-3 conference record and a 15-3 overall mark, the Birds had to be content with the role of an also-ran.

The track story was also one of second places, except where Jeff Berven was concerned. The finest distance runner in South Central League history, Berven toured the prep circuit with the Wasson team, leaving records shsattered in his wake. Not only was he unbeaten in the mile, but when Hartman elected to switch him to the 880 for one meet, he ran a time of 1:58.2 that equaled the state record. The following week he was entered in the 440 and outdueled Alan Snyder of Palmer, the eventual conference champion.

Berven capped his remarkable spring by easily winning the SCL mile title in a time of 4:36 which established a new record and then thrilling a crowd of several thousand at Boulder with a brilliant burst of stretch speed that earned him the coveted state mile championship in the fast time of 4:28.1.

With Berven leading the way, the T-Birds were among the top contenders in almost every meet they entered, but unfortunately, usually as the bridesmaid. This was the case in the Pikes Peak Relays which was won by East Denver's great team with 82 points. Wasson was second with 74.

It was also true in the conference meet where the Thunderbirds had been favored. Palmer retained its title with 55½ points to 48¾ for the runner-up Thunderbirds. In addition to Berven, other individual winners for Wasson were Dominic Fiacco in the 100 yard dash and low hurdles and Craig Gillette in the high jump.

Wasson's Thunderbirds spanned the extremes of football fortunes during 1964 a year which saw them mired in their longest losing streak ever and eventually finish with the most honors ever gained by a T-Bird grid team in the state playoffs.

The story was one of an almost fantasic reversal of fortunes and although the principals in the swift turnabout from what started as the school's worst season were many, there were two who stood out. One was head coach Gib Funk, a veteran of many campaigns in Colorado's gridiron wars, who was credited by close observers with the finest coaching job of his career. The second was a 150-pound wizard named Jim Smith whose outstanding performance and leadership at quarterback was the inspiration that moved the team on the field.

In the was of contrasts, the 1964 Thunderbirds lost more games than any previous Wasson club, but also tied the record for wins. Three straight defeats at the start of the campaign had Wasson football wallowing in what appeared to be its worst state of depression, but 10 weeks later the Thunderbirds had won second place in the state AAA playoffs and in that respect had become the most successful T-Bird team ever. From a club that had problems sustaining any type of drive early in the fall, the Birds developed into the most versatile offensive unit ever fielded at the school and left a wave of records in their wake.

Although the leadership came from a small core of outstanding seniors, this was basically a junior club. When Funk gave 47 letters at the conclusion of the season, 29 of them went to juniors who will return to either Wasson or the new Billy Mitchell school next fall.

Smith, who established several individual offensive records with his brilliant all-around play, was afforded virtually every honor possible at the conclusion of the campaign, despite his limited size. He was chosen to both the offensive and defensive first teams on the South Central League All-Stars and the All-City team. He was also selected to the All-State teams and was awarded the Gazette - Telegraph — KRDO trophy as the area's Player of the Year.

Other standouts included co-captain Charlie Steel, an all-conference, all-city and first team all-state end; co-captain Bob Toof, who was both all-conference and all-city at fullback; and Yogi Grandcourt, who was awarded the same honors at tackle. Others among the top seniors included Mark Fleming, Dave Kendrick, Rod Wells, Mike Cillessen, Larry Grendreizig, Curtis Kraushaar, and Mike Martin.

Wasson's early season misfortunes were due in part to the fact that their non-league schedule included some of the state's finest teams. The opening two losses were to Aurora Central and Lakewood, the same clubs the Thunderbirds were to later meet in the final rounds of the state playoffs. The Aurora defeat was marred by a flood of fumbles and other errors that were simply too much for the 'Birds to overcome. But, in the 20-7 loss to Lakewood the following weekend, there emerged the clue that this Wasson team might be too hot for most to handle before the campaign was over.

That indication suffered a setback the next week, however, as the 'Birds dropped a 13-6 decision to Arvada West, a team ordinarily not even in the same class with Wasson. Still, through the darkness of that evening flickered the light that was to see the switch in Thunderbird fortunes. It was against West that Funk moved Smith to quarterback and a week later the Wasson offense began to move.

Smith directed masterly final quarter drives to post wins over both Pueblo South and Central in the team's first two league starts. Then came an explosive victory over West Denver, 33-7, and the team's confidence soared. The final solidification came the next weekend as the defense suddenly jelled to halt conference favorite, Pueblo East 14-0.

Wasson stumbled once more and that was in the first half against Pueblo Centennial, the only SCL team to defeat the T-Birds in the past three seasons. A flurry of mistakes gave the Bulldogs a 14-0 halftime advantage and although the 'Birds missed pulling the game out by a single point, it was in the final two quarters that the offense suddenly erupted into full bloom.

Palmer was the foe unfortunate enough to be next on the schedule and the Terrors received the full blast of a Wasson team that had now pulled everything together. The T-Birds scorched the Tribe, 33-7, and then sewed up its second SCL crown with a 26-6 thumping of Trinidad in the final week.

Wasson was still a question-mark around the state as the playoffs got underway — but not for long. The Birds burned Cheyenne Mountain 25-7 in the first battle ever between those two schools and then avenged the early loss to Aurora Central by destroying the unbeaten Trojans, 33-14.

But that was to be the end of the road. In the finals, despite a heroic performance by the much-smaller T-Birds, a brilliant Lakewood club again prevailed, this time 20-6. And so a state title, which had previously escaped two Wasson baseball teams that advanced to finals also eluded the first the first Thunderbird football club to reach that plateu. Bun in every other respect, this was truly a will go down in Wasson history as a club that didn't know it had been down until it had picked itself up.

Indians Win First WRL Football Pennant

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

For the second straight year, the Cheyenne Mountain football teams brought glory to the Colorado Springs school by winning the newly formed Triple-A Will Rogers League championship.

And the Tribesmen established a new rivalry with cross-town Wasson of the established South Central League when the Cheyenne gridders battled the Thunderbirds in the state quarter-finals. Despite the fact they went under to the bench-strong T-Birds, the Indians made a good showing in their initial year in the top state classification.

The Cheyenne team compiled an 8-3 won-loss record this past season, losing those three games to St. Mary's, 12-7; Lamar, 14-7; and Wasson, 26-6. Behind the strong running of ram-rod-fullback Greg Cramblit, who established himself as the finest fullback ever to don Cheyenne football gear and perhaps the best college fullback candidate in this area, the Indians were undefeated in WRL play.

This was the second straight year the Cheyenne teams were undefeated in league competition. During the 1963 season, the Indians captured the Pikes Peak League championship and went on to win the State Double-A crown.

Cramblit, who was voted to the WRL, All-City and second team All-State teams, established a new rushing record for Cheyenne when the 200-pound bone-crushing fullback lugged the pigskin 200 times for 1246 yards and a remarkable 6.2 yards per carry. Cramblit also set a scoring record posting 21 touchdowns and one PAT for a total of 127 points.

In the playoff game for a berth in the State AAA quarter-finals, Cramblit lugged the pigskin 30 times for 202 net yards rushing. And the big fullback scored the second touchdown and winning PAT to lead the Indians over LaJunta, 13-12. This was the Indians' finest outing of the year as they came from behind to win and contained the potent LaJunta passing attack of Dewey Harden.

The Indians lost the services of halfback Doug Heyliger, who injured his shoulder in the Trinidad game. Heyliger was the second leading ground gainer with 450 net yards rushing via 46 attempts for a sparkling 9.8 yards per carry.

Heyliger is scheduled to return next fall as the Cheyenne scat-back has another year of eligibility.

Rich McCurdy and Rusty Arnold were the regular halfbacks this past season with McCurdy picking up 424 yards via 81 carries. Arnold missed several games last season but he'll also be back next year.

Garcia applied the scocer-type techique in kicking the ball and his longest boot was a 69-yard bomb last year at Leadville. This season Garcia had several boots around 68 yards.

Cheyenne's aggressive line was anchored by All-City players including ends Bill Massarand and Mike Conley, and junior tackle Craig Fay. Massarand led the Indians in pass receptions, snatching 23 aerials for 396 yards and one TD. Fay was a two-way gridder and his aggressive play was outstanding. Conley was responsible for stopping the opponent teams from sweeping his side of the line.

The Cheyenne guards were the key to the Indians' offense and Barickman had four lads he could play at anytime including All-WRL Bill Kinner, Mike Keplinger, Bill Rhodes and Tom McDermott.

Somerset Paces Duquesne in Trouncing

Columbia jumped off to an early lead and had the Dukes 14-13 at the end of the first nine minutes of play, but Frank Miniotas' field goal put Duquesne ahead to stay.

Columbia threatened late in the period closing the gap to 28-23, but Somerset and Willard broke it open with a scoring binge. At the half Duquesne led 46-33.

Somerset was the game's high scorer with 28 points. Willard got 24 and Miniotas 17. Stan Felsinger paced Columbia with 17 followed by Neil Farber 14 and Ken Benoit 12.

The Dukes are now 7-2 for the season. Columbia is 2-4.

Pirate Tracksters Finish Second in Paroke Meet

The St. Mary's track and field team, spearheaded by the brilliant performance of Bruce Mangerich who scored 18 points in the State Parochial meet, won the runner-up slot in last year's state meet finishing behind the perennial champion, Regis.

Ed Kintz's thinclads also placed third in the Pikes Peak Relays and third place in the Pueblo Centennial Invitational to highlight St. Mary's track and field campaign last year.

The Pirates' baseball team, under the new direction of Dan Wright, wrote an 8-4 won-loss season. The St. Mary's baseballers played an independent schedule against the area teams and thus, were not active in the Denver Parochial League circuit.

George Walker was the top hitter on last year's baseball squad as the third baseman hit at an even .500 clip. The Pirates' team hitting average was over .300 for the year.

Center fielder Dave Grantz and catcher Pat McElderry were the strongest in the field for the Pirates and they both played in the All-Star baseball game last summer, which paired the players from Wasson, Palmer and St. Mary's against the area teams.

The Pirates' track team finished 10 points behind Regis in the State Parochial meet with Mangerich, who graduated last spring, winning the 440-yard dash. Mangerich also anchored the mile relay team which finished second.

Cliff Clark took first place in the shot-put and the 195-pound footballer will be back this season. Raymond Floyd placed second in high hurdles and third place in the low hurdles during the state meet.

Palmer's Record Marred By Ties to Loveland, Colts

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Just two points would have turned Palmer's 1964 football record into a respectable 6-4 record, instead of the 4-4-2 mark the Terrors finally claimed.

Bill Westbay's crew defeated the Miners for the first time at Trinidad and earned a shot at Wasson, which lost the same night to Pueblo Centennial. But the Thunderbirds were headed year, did manage to come out as one of the better teams in the SCL with an upset win over for state and stopped the Terrors cold.

Palmer lost only two games in a row. However both came at the end of the season to Wasson and Pueblo East).

The Terrors fumbled away a 7-0 contest to an outplayed Golden team and absorbed a 20-10 licking from Centennial for their only other losses.

They defeated Aurora Hinkley and Lamar in other non-league encounters.

Fullback Ben Bryant established himself quickly as the team's top runner, gaining over 100 yards in each of the first four games. Bryant finished with 837 net yards rushing, more than half the team's total of 1,662.

Palmer's passing was ineffective most of the year and the Tribe foes finally took a 2,311-1,845 advantage in total yards. But they had to go through the jir as Palmer allowed but 1,461 yards rushing.

Bryant earned laurels as the team's top scorer with 54 points. Halfback Dennis Bair had the best rushing average with 585 yards on 115 carries, a 5.1 average.

Claude Spears led in three categories. The tall end and kicker nabbed five passes for 35 yards. But his real talent lay at the end of his right foot as he booted 36 punts for a 37.7 average. Spears also had two of the three field goals kicked in the SCL this fall.

The tackle position was weakened by injuries early in the year and Westbay had to shuffle his lineup considerably to keep the hard-nosed forwards intact. Stalwarts in the line were guard John VanDruff and center-tackle Ron Smith. Smith started at center but had to play tackle due to injuries. Lee Moore performed capably as a replacement over the ball.

The defensive line held enemy running backs to an average of 146.1 yards a game. The big wall even stopped Wasson's inside plays, a feat few teams had been able to accomplish.

Westbay rated quarterback Larry Williams a fine signal-caller. Especially in the Golden loss, his judicious use of Bryant and Bair rocked the Demons throughout the contest. Williams completed 19 of 50 passes for 173 yards and one touchdown.

With seconds remaining, Pueblo South tried a field goal that would have given the Colts the victory. But Ken Heaton and Bill Schmidt, whose combined weights did not exceed 320 pounds, broke through to block the effort and preserve the tie.

Palmer loses a great deal of its weight to graduation this spring, but returns a solid corps of players, plus players up from the "B" team which, Westbay feels, could turn the Terrors into a serious championship contender.

Spartans Win State Cage Title

After finishing in a three-way tie for second place, Don Schmidli's tall and talented Spartans raced to the State Double-A championship.

The Salida team fought off a 5-3 won-loss record in the Pikes Peak League race to capture the state championship when the towering Spartans, paced by the gunning of E.J. Dunckhorst, dumped the run-gun Savages from Lamar.

Along with Manitou Springs and Air Academy High, the Spartans shared the second place berth in final PPL standings behind the undefeated Cheyenne champions.

In his first term at Cheyenne, Coach Don O'Hare led the Indians to the PPL championship last season. But the Tribe ran into Lamar in the state semi-finals and succumbed by a new state record margin, 104-80.

And to boot, the Indian's head coach O'Hare was defeated by his former players; O'Hare coached at Lamar for 12 years.

In the PPL pennant chase, the Indians managed to remain undefeated even though they had to pull a few games out of the fire. Widefield and Florence tied for fifth place via a 4-4 record, while Harrison was sixth via a 3-5 mark, followed by Fountain (2-6) and Leadville (0-8).

Cheyenne compiled a 14-2 over all mark as the Indians contained their opponents to 898 points while they scored 1102 points. Salida also won 14 games but the Spartans lost four games.

Salida defeated Cheyenne in the PPL District tourney finals to earn a berth in the state tournament. Cheyenne earned its state tourney berth by winning the PPL crown.

In the individual PPL scoring race, Fountain's ace guard Fred Ramero won the title with 167 points in eight games via 72 field goals and 23 free throws. Leadville's Jack Hosley was second with 164 points, followed by Lance Jensen of Academy High with 155.

Weather Hinders AFA Trip to World Series

A combination of some near fantastic team hitting plus the manipulation of a tissue-thin pitching staff by Coach Connie Sparks earned the Air Force Academy's baseball team another berth in the national playoffs and their furtherest advance toward the NCAA title last spring.

The fickle spring weather of Colorado, however, dealt the Falcons a killing blow when they were on the verge of making their first trip to Omaha and the NCAA College World Series.

After winning the home site for the District 7 finals against Arizona State University, and with elaborate plans being made to stage the playoff series at Memorial Park in Colorado Springs, the weather took hold of the situation and several days of steady rain forced the games to Arizona where the Sun Devils finally cut down the Cadets for the Series berth.

Air Force, in compiling a nifty 22-3 record into the set with Arizona State, had dominated regional opposition and the AFA was tabbed an even choice to go on to Omaha. In the first round of the playoffs, the Falcons had tripped their hottest rival in the area, Colorado State College of Greeley in two straight.

But in the playoff with Arizona State they were not only facing a club that had experience of 45 games under their belts, but also one of the top pitching prospects to come through the collegiate season. That was fireballing sophomore Skip Hancock, who hurled two of the three games against the Air Force.

The Falcons, however, had a pair of aces up the sleeve as senior lefty Fred Olmsted and junior Pete Bracci had carried the Fliers through most of the season and seemed set for the showdown with the Sun Devils. Through the final games, Bracci had compiled a neat 9-1 record and Omsted was unbeaten in eight straight. There was little help on the mound behind them, though.

Most of the help came from the hitters on this year's Air Force squad, and an impressive lineup it was. Depending on who was pitching, Sparks could send a complete list of .300 or better sluggers onto the field at one time.

Of the regulars, leading the way was sensational junior third baseman Jim Steed, who had a roaring .421 average and a team-leading 39 runs-batted-in for the first 25 games. Steed also paced the team in home runs with 10, and of course, total hits and official trips.

Right behind him was first baseman Bruce Huneke, another junior, who averaged .392 with seven homers and 28 RBI's, and also with lofty percentages were second baseman Blaine Brownlow (.360) and shortstop Darryl Bloodworth (.356).

As usual, the top games on way to the NCAA playoffs were against old rival, CSC. During the regular slate the teams split, with the Air Force taking the first meeting 8-2 and Colorado State coming back to even up for the season 11-2 at Greeley. But the 3-1 and 7-1 twin victories over CSC in the playoffs clearly showed which team deserved the series with Arizona.

At one time mid-way through the season, the Air Force Academy had won 10 straight until Brigham Young University ended the streak with a wild 12-7 setback. And at the close of the season the Cadets again won 10 straight, with a close call coming against Wyoming, 4-3, in the middle of this string.

It was Sparks' first year as mentor of the Falcons and he quickly established himself as a good judge of talent—especially the way he worked his thin pitching staff over the season. Of the 22 games won, Olmsted and Bracci won 17 and they combined for a like number of complete games without relief. Al McClure, a sophomore, also had four wins and as many complete games.

Sparks took over for departed Wendy Lawrence, who handled the Falcons for several seasons before being transferred to European military duty. Lawrence had also guided the Cadets as far as the first round of the NCAA playoffs, due in part to a lack of strong competition in the region, but he was never able to hurdle perennial Rocky Mountain Conference champion CSC which has captured 22 straight RMC titles and has made more trips to the College World Series than any other team.

The Air Force track season was purely hearsay for most area fans as the Falcons originally had but two home meets on the schedule—and that was cut to but a single meet before the season was over.

The only time the Cadet harriers performed at home was in a victory over Kansas State University of the Big Eight Conference, but they made good showings on the road.

Top individuals were distanceman Jim Murphy, only a sophomore and destined for great things before his career has finished, and the shuttle hurdles relay team of John Puster, Fritz Greenlee, Dave Dick and Bill Jones. The latter foursome established a new American record for clearing the barriers in 0:28.9 seconds.

However, it was Murphy's year in track. He just missed qualifying for the Olympics in Tokyo by inches and then went on this fall to take third place individually in the NCAA cross country championships.

Palmer Duo Grabs State Tennis Title

Palmer's Bob Pearson and Steve Sanchez won the 1964 state doubles championship to cap a year which marked growing tennis interest in the Pikes Peak Region.

The Pearson-Sanchez combination was made up just before the district meet, which it also won. Bill Pearce of Cheyenne Mountain went to state after winning the district singles title and losing his bid for third place.

Cheyenne Mountain had the most enviable team record as the Indians lost two matches, both to Fountain Valley.

Pearson and Sanchez rolled through the first three rounds with little difficulty, topping Boulder, 6-2, 6-0; George Washington, 8-6, 6-2; and Aurora Hinkley, 6-1, 6-2. In the finals the Terror netmen stopped Denver East's Jim Trotsky and Steve Jackson, 6-1, 3-6, 10-8.

Pearce was defeated in his bid for third place by Art Thompson of George Washington, 6-3, 6-1. He had beaten players from Abraham Lincoln and Aurora Central before falling in the semifinals to Denver's Art Borglund.

Palmer's state championship earned the Terrors third place in the team standings. Pearce gained a six-place tie for Cheyenne Mountain.

Wasson's Thunderbirds spanned the extremes of football fortunes during 1964 a year which saw them mired in their longest losing streak ever and eventually finish with the most honors ever gained by a T-Bird grid team in the state playoffs.

The story was one of an almost fantasic reversal of fortunes and although the principals in the swift turnabout from what started as the school's worst season were many, there were two who stood out. One was head coach Gib Funk, a veteran of many campaigns in Colorado's gridiron wars, who was credited by close observers with the finest coaching job of his career. The second was a 150-pound wizard named Jim Smith whose outstanding performance and leadership at quarterback was the inspiration that moved the team on the field.

In the was of contrasts, the 1964 Thunderbirds lost more games than any previous Wasson club, but also tied the record for wins. Three straight defeats at the start of the campaign had Wasson football wallowing in what appeared to be its worst state of depression, but 10 weeks later the Thunderbirds had won second place in the state AAA playoffs and in that respect had become the most successful T-Bird team ever. From a club that had problems sustaining any type of drive early in the fall, the Birds developed into the most versatile offensive unit ever fielded at the school and left a wave of records in their wake.

Although the leadership came from a small core of outstanding seniors, this was basically a junior club. When Funk gave 47 letters at the conclusion of the season, 29 of them went to juniors who will return to either Wasson or the new Billy Mitchell school next fall.

Smith, who established several individual offensive records with his brilliant all-around play, was afforded virtually every honor possible at the conclusion of the campaign, despite his limited size. He was chosen to both the offensive and defensive first teams on the South Central League All-Stars and the All-City team. He was also selected to the All-State teams and was awarded the Gazette - Telegraph – KRDO trophy as the area's Player of the Year.

Other standouts included co-captain Charlie Steel, an all-conference, all-city and first team all-state end; co-captain Bob Toof, who was both all-conference and all-city at fullback; and Yogi Grandcourt, who was awarded the same honors at tackle. Others among the top seniors included Mark Fleming, Dave Kendrick, Rod Wells, Mike Cillessen, Larry Grendreizig, Curtis Kraushaar, and Mike Martin.

Wasson's early season misfortunes were due in part to the fact that their non-league schedule included some of the state's finest teams. The opening two losses were to Aurora Central and Lakewood, the same clubs the Thunderbirds were to later meet in the final rounds of the state playoffs. The Aurora defeat was marred by a flood of fumbles and other errors that were simply too much for the 'Birds to overcome. But, in the 20-7 loss to Lakewood the following weekend, there emerged the clue that this Wasson team might be too hot for most to handle before the campaign was over.

That indication suffered a setback the next week, however, as the 'Birds dropped a 13-6 decision to Arvada West, a team ordinarily not even in the same class with Wasson. Still, through the darkness of that evening flickered the light that was to see the switch in Thunderbird fortunes. It was against West that Funk moved Smith to quarterback and a week later the Wasson offense began to move.

Smith directed masterly final quarter drives to post wins over both Pueblo South and Central in the team's first two league starts. Then came an explosive victory over West Denver, 33-7, and the team's confidence soared. The final solidification came the next weekend as the defense suddenly jelled to halt conference favorite, Pueblo East 14-0.

Wasson stumbled once more and that was in the first half against Pueblo Centennial, the only SCL team to defeat the T-Birds in the past three seasons. A flurry of mistakes gave the Bulldogs a 14-0 halftime advantage and although the 'Birds missed pulling the game out by a single point, it was in the final two quarters that the offense suddenly erupted into full bloom.

Palmer was the foe unfortunate enough to be next on the schedule and the Terrors received the full blast of a Wasson team that had now pulled everything together. The T-Birds scorched the Tribe, 33-7, and then sewed up its second SCL crown with a 26-6 thumping of Trinidad in the final week.

Wasson was still a question-mark around the state as the playoffs got underway — but not for long. The Birds burned Cheyenne Mountain 25-7 in the first battle ever between those two schools and then avenged the early loss to Aurora Central by destroying the unbeaten Trojans, 33-14.

But that was to be the end of the road. In the finals, despite a heroic performance by the much-smaller T-Birds, a brilliant Lakewood club again prevailed, this time 20-6. And so a state title, which had previously escaped two Wasson baseball teams that advanced to finals also eluded the first the first Thunderbird football club to reach that plateu. Bun in every other respect, this was truly a will go down in Wasson history as a club that didn't know it had been down until it had picked itself up.

Indians Win First WRL Football Pennant

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

For the second straight year, the Cheyenne Mountain football teams brought glory to the Colorado Springs school by winning the newly formed Triple-A Will Rogers League championship.

And the Tribesmen established a new rivalry with cross-town Wasson of the established South Central League when the Cheyenne gridders battled the Thunderbirds in the state quarter-finals. Despite the fact they went under to the bench-strong T-Birds, the Indians made a good showing in their initial year in the top state classification.

The Cheyenne team compiled an 8-3 won-loss record this past season, losing those three games to St. Mary's, 12-7; Lamar, 14-7; and Wasson, 26-6. Behind the strong running of ramrod-fullback Greg Cramblit, who established himself as the finest fullback ever to don Cheyenne football gear and perhaps the best college fullback candidate in this area, the Indians were undefeated in WRL play.

This was the second straight year the Cheyenne teams were undefeated in league competition. During the 1963 season, the Indians captured the Pikes Peak League championship and went on to win the State Double-A crown.

Cramblit, who was voted to the WRL, All-City and second team All-State teams, established a new rushing record for Cheyenne when the 200-pound bone-crushing fullback lugged the pigskin 200 times for 1246 yards and a remarkable 6.2 yards per carry. Cramblit also set a scoring record posting 21 touchdowns and one PAT for a total of 127 points.

In the playoff game for a berth in the State AAA quarter-finals, Cramblit lugged the pigskin 30 times for 202 net yards rushing. And the big fullback scored the second touchdown and winning PAT to lead the Indians over LaJunta, 13-12. This was the Indians' finest outing of the year as they came from behind to win and contained the potent LaJunta passing attack of Dewey Harden.

The Indians lost the services of halfback Doug Heyliger, who injured his shoulder in the Trinidad game. Heyliger was the second leading ground gainer with 450 net yards rushing via 46 attempts for a sparkling 9.8 yards per carry.

Heyliger is scheduled to return next fall as the Cheyenne scat-back has another year of eligibility.

Rich McCurdy and Rusty Arnold were the regular halfbacks this past season with McCurdy picking up 424 yards via 81 carries. Arnold missed several games last season but he'll also be back next year.

Garcia applied the scocer-type techique in kicking the ball and his longest boot was a 69-yard bomb last year at Leadville. This season Garcia had several boots around 68 yards.

Cheyenne's aggressive line was anchored by All-City players including ends Bill Massarand and Mike Conley, and junior tackle Craig Fay. Massarand led the Indians in pass receptions, snatching 23 aerials for 396 yards and one TD. Fay was a two-way gridder and his aggressive play was outstanding. Conley was responsible for stopping the opponent teams from sweeping his side of the line.

The Cheyenne guards were the key to the Indians' offense and Barickman had four lads he could play at anytime including All-WRL Bill Kinner, Mike Keplinger, Bill Rhodes and Tom McDermott.

Somerset Paces Duquesne in Trouncing

Columbia jumped off to an early lead and had the Dukes 14-13 at the end of the first nine minutes of play, but Frank Miniotas' field goal put Duquesne ahead to stay.

Columbia threatened late in the period closing the gap to 28-23, but Somerset and Willard broke it open with a scoring binge. At the half Duquesne led 46-33.

Somerset was the game's high scorer with 28 points. Willard got 24 and Miniotas 17. Stan Felsinger paced Columbia with 17 followed by Neil Farber 14 and Ken Benoit 12.

The Dukes are now 7-2 for the season. Columbia is 2-4.

Pirate Tracksters Finish Second in Paroke Meet

The St. Mary's track and field team, spearheaded by the brilliant performance of Bruce Mangerich who scored 18 points in the State Parochial meet, won the runner-up slot in last year's state meet finishing behind the perennial champion, Regis.

Ed Kintz's thinclads also placed third in the Pikes Peak Relays and third place in the Pueblo Centennial Invitational to highlight St. Mary's track and field campaign last year.

The Pirates' baseball team, under the new direction of Dan Wright, wrote an 8-4 won-loss season. The St. Mary's baseballers played an independent schedule against the area teams and thus, were not active in the Denver Parochial League circuit.

This season the Pirates will be guided by new head coach Bob Spencer, who last year assisted Wright.

George Walker was the top hitter on last year's baseball squad as the third baseman hit at an even .500 clip. The Pirates' team hitting average was over .300 for the year.

Center fielder Dave Grantz and catcher Pat McElderry were the strongest in the field for the Pirates and they both played in the All-Star baseball game last summer, which paired the players from Wasson, Palmer and St. Mary's against the area teams.

The Pirates' track team finished 10 points behind Regis in the State Parochial meet with Mangerich, who graduated last spring, winning the 440-yard dash. Mangerich also anchored the mile relay team which finished second.

Cliff Clark took first place in the shot-put and the 190-pound footballer will be back this season. Raymond Floyd placed second in high hurdles and third place in the low hurdles during the state meet.

Palmer's Record Marred By Ties to Loveland, Colts

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Just two points would have turned Palmer's 1964 football record into a respectable 6-4 record, instead of the 4-4-2 mark the Terrors finally claimed.

Bill Westbay's crew defeated the Miners for the first time at Trinidad and earned a shot at Wasson, which lost the same night to Pueblo Centennial. But the Thunderbirds were headed year, did manage to come out as one of the better teams in the SCL with an upset win over for state and stopped the Terrors cold.

Palmer lost only two games in a row. However both came at the end of the season to Wasson and Pueblo East).

The Terrors fumbled away a 7-0 contest to an outplayed Golden team and absorbed a 20-10 licking from Centennial for their only other losses.

They defeated Aurora Hinkley and Lamar in other non-league encounters.

Fullback Ben Bryant established himself quickly as the team's top runner, gaining over 100 yards in each of the first four games. Bryant finished with 837 net yards rushing, more than half the team's total of 1,662.

Palmer's passing was ineffective most of the year and the Tribe foes finally took a 2,311-1,845 advantage in total yards. But they had to go through the jir as Palmer allowed but 1,461 yards rushing.

Bryant earned laurels as the team's top scorer with 54 points. Halfback Dennis Bair had the best rushing average with 585 yards on 115 carries, a 5.1 average.

Claude Spears led in three categories. The tall end and kicker nabbed five passes for 35 yards. But his real talent lay at the end of his right foot as he booted 36 punts for a 37.7 average. Spears also had two of the three field goals kicked in the SCL this fall.

The tackle position was weakened by injuries early in the year and Westbay had to shuffle his lineup considerably to keep the hard-nosed forwards intact. The Pearson-Sanchez combination was made up just before the district meet, which it also won. Bill Pearce of Cheyenne Mountain went to state after winning the district singles title and losing his bid for third place.

Cheyenne Mountain had the most enviable team record as the Indians lost two matches, both to Fountain Valley.

Pearson and Sanchez rolled through the first three rounds with little difficulty, topping Boulder, 6-2, 6-0; George Washington, 8-6, 6-2; and Aurora Hinkley, 6-1, 6-2. In the finals the Terror netmen stopped Denver East's Jim Trotsky and Steve Jackson, 6-1, 3-6, 10-8.

Pearce was defeated in his bid for third place by Art Thompson of George Washington, 6-3, 6-1. He had beaten players from Abraham Lincoln and Aurora Central before falling in the semifinals to Denver's Art Borglund.

CC Baseball, Track Teams Flourish

Springtime at Colorado College completed a remarkable paradox in the school's 1964 athletic year. While Tigers teams which had once been well-above average in varsity sports such as basketball and football were plunging to the depths, a revolution was taking place in the spring.

CC baseball and track teams could usually be counted on for one thing—a lot of laughs. But they became progressively less funny as the spring of 1964 wore on. Rocky Mountain Conference foes, who were in the habit of fattening up on the Tigers while fetting in a few chuckles at the same time, were suddenly crazy about the idea of CC leaving the league (a fact which was realized at the end of the athletic year).

The renaissance was most drastic in baseball. In previous season, CC outfielders had had considerably more use for batting helmets than the hitters since beanings were decidedly more frequent defensively than when the players were at the plate.

But in 1964 Bob Johnson, a new coach who has more than a passing acquaintance with how the game should be played, took over the reins and suddenly the Tigers were the ones who were doing the laughing. From their usual residence at the bottom of the RMC, they shot up the standings to second, finishing only behind Colorado State College, one of the area's perennial powers.

The record for the season was a fine 12-7, an almost indescribeable improvement. It had been many years since a Tiger baseball team had seen the sunny side of .500—but the miracle occurred in 1964 and Johnson is convinced that more of the same is on the way.

Individually, Dave Peterson was the Tigers' top hitter with a fine .415 mark. But the team swatted the ball at an overall clip of .314 with Reno Van Putten leading a group of six hitters who finished in the .300 bracket. Van Putten's contribution was a healthy .375. Roger Williams was the home run leader with four and Carl Clay swiped the same number of bases.

It was on the pitching staff that the major revolution occurred. In past years Tiger hurlers had been one of two things—wild, or blasted. In 1964 the club had a 5.20 earned run average, not an eye-shattering mark, but a remarkable improvement for a team that had previously staffed pitchers whose ERA's exceeded 100. Warner Reeser, a freshman from Denver, was the leader with a 4.80 mark and a 4 and 3 record. Jeff Sauer was top winner with a 5 and 2 mark.

The track team was less busy than the baseballers and its feats less astounding, but nevertheless Frank Flood's runners captured third place in the Rocky Mountain Conference meet. It was not an unprecedented occurance, but it was praiseworthy, considering the increased caliber of competition in the league during 1964.

The Tigers won five individual titles while finishing behind Adams State and Colorado State College in the conference meet, but only three persons were involved. Tony McGinnis, the junior distance star, captured the mile in 4:30.6 and the two mile in 10:26.2. Ed Loosli won the high hurdles in 15.3 and the lows in 25.1 And Jay Schilder ran a swift 1:57.8 in picking up the 880 crown.

Actually, CC came very close to annexing a second place finish here also. Adams State was the runaway winner with 92 points but CSC edged the Tigers for the runner-up spot, 46 to 45. Mines finished fourth with 33 points and Western State brought up the rear with 31.

CC athdetes wore no roses at the end of the 1964 spring season but neither were they getting any rasberries.

Terror Thinclads Take South Cental Crown

Palmer's 1964 track team won the district championship with an upset victory over rival Wasson, and the Terror baseball team almost duplicated the league crown.

The Terror runners had to go to the final event, the mile run, to beat favored Wasson in the district track meet. Palmer finished with a time of 3:31.1 to take the crown with a total of 55½ points. Wasson was second at 48¾.

Palmer qualified eight individuals and two relay teams for the state meet but could finish with only four points at Boulder.

Terror thinclads set two district records in the South Central meet. The 880 relay quartet of Jim Glaskin, Dennis Rice, Dan Goldston and Bobby Joe Williams erased the old mark of 1:32 with a 1:31.2 clocking. Bob McCoy smashed the old pole vault record of 13-1¼ by soaring 13-7.

McCoy finished third in the state meet, Palmer's highest finish. The other finish came as Williams ran fifth in the high hurdles, an event he had won in district with a 14.8 time.

Other district champions from Palmer were Ralph Brown in the broad jump (21-8¼), Alan Snyder in the 440 (51.00, and the title-winning mile relay team of Jim Jewett, Rice, Goldston and Snyder.

The Terror baseball crew held the early lead in the SCL title chase, but lost to Centennial (eventual champion) and Wasson to finish third with a 9-3 record. But Palmer ended with a 13-5 season mark, only one of three teams to hit .500 in the SCL.

Phil Johnson, sophomore hurler, garnered top honors both on the mound and at bat. He allowed only 27 hits in 37 innings in running up an excellent 1.48 earned run average, and capped it with a team-leading .412 batting average.

Trojans, Tribe Win PPL Titles

Eldon Helm climaxed his 10th year at Cheyenne Mountain when he led the Indians to the Pikes Peak League championship last spring, and the Fountain tracksters wrapped up the District meet to highlight last year's PPL track season.

Helm's baseballers also made it to the State Double-A finals before succumbing to Delta. This was the eighth PPL championship for Helm during his 10 years of coaching at Cheyenne and his teams won four State AA titles.

Helm retired from coaching last summer to take over the job of principal of Cheyenne High School. During his 10 years at Cheyenne, Helm's baseball teams won 117 games, including 58 straight PPL victories.

Last year's track season was a two-team chase between John Schultz's fountain tracksters and the powerful defending champions from Cheyenne. Prior to the PPL District meet, the Indians held a slim edge over the Trojans in previous meets. But with their superstar, Bob Carter, the Fountain aggregation nipped the Cheyenne team for the PPL District championship.

Seven PPL District meet records were broken with Carter establishing a new mark in the broad jump via a leap of 21-5 feet. The Fountain relay team broke the 880-yard relay record when they posted a time of 1:32.1.

Manitou Springs' ace hurdler, John (The Jet) Moore, set two District meet records. Moore broke both the 120-yard high hurdles and 180-yard low hurdles via the time of 15.4 and 20.7 respectively. John Koster, also of Manitou, set a new mark in the 880-yard run when he was clocked at 2:05.7.

Cheyenne's 220-pound strongman, Rick Stowell, smashed the District shot-put record with a toss of 55-5 feet. Stowell was the only trackster from the PPL that won first place in the State AA meet. Stowell won the discus event and established a new state record. Stowell hurled the discus 155-¼ feet in the state meet.

The Indians finished in fourth place in the state meet with 16 points. Durango won the state crown, followed by Alamosa (31½ points), Canon City (22) and Cheyenne. Fountain and Manitou finished seventh and eighth respectively.

Bird Tank Team Gets State Rank

Minor sports teams from Palmer and Wasson had varying degrees of success during the 1963-64 school year.

The most successful was the Wasson swimming team which won its second straight district championship and went on to place second in the state meet.

The Thunderbird tankers rolled up 111 points in the district to easily outdistance second place Palmer's 70. Wasson captured eight of the 11 events while Palmer took two of the other three firsts in a meet which saw every record broken. Bruce Teschner of Wasson established marks in winning both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races.

At the state meet the Thunderbirds scored 61 points and won four individual events but finished second to Denver George Washington's 78½ points. Palmer came in fifth with 20 points.

Teschner added to his outstanding season by capturing the individual title in both the 50 and 100 freestyles while Scott Brown won the 200 yard individual medley and Warren Flaherty the 400 yard freestyle for the Wasson team.

It was an off year in wrestling for both schools. Wasson finished in a tie for fourth in the South Central League race with a 2-4 record and had a 4-8 mark overall in dual competition. Palmer had an 0-6 record in the SCL and was 1-9 overall.

In the district meet, three local wrestlers won individual championships. Clif Catron of Wasson took the 120 pound title and the Thunderbirds' Yogi Grandcourt copped the crown at 165. Heavyweight Ron Smith was Palmer's lone champion. Chip Summers of Wasson also won a trip to the state by placing second in the 138 pound division.

Summers was the lone casualty in the first round of the state as the other three local grapplers advanced to the quarterfinals. However, all three then fell in the second round.

The two schools also made an excellent showing in gymnastics. Wasson finished second in the district meet and Palmer fourth. The Thunderbirds got firsts in individual events from Schanburger in the horizontal bars, Martinez in the parallel bars, and Berg in tumbling. Palmer won no individual events.

CC Cagers Get Trapped at 3-19

Colorado College continued to be mired in its worst basketball depression since the mid-50's during the 1963-64 campaign — and the most discouraging part of the entire picture was the fact that no relief appeared to be in the offing.

Coach Leon "Red" Eastlack, who labors under the impossible task of attempting to put winning basketball teams on the floor with the most limited talent imaginable, returned several of his better players from the previous year's team — but so did every one else in the Rocky Mountain Conference, and considering the fact that CC's 1962-63 record had been 3-22, it was obvious that the Tigers were in for another long winter.

Still, it never figured to be as long as it was. Officially CC concluded the season with a 3-19 mark, but that came about with a little first aid from Greeley. The Bears, who were engaged in post season playoff activity, bowed out of their final two games with the Tigers and they went on the record as forfeits. In actual competition, CC won only one of 19 starts.

The Tigers' lone triumph came after the team had suffered 11 consecutive defeats. It was accomplished by a 64-62 score over Western State College of Gunnison, and it was appropriate that the triumph was recorded in combat with a team that had yielded two of the three Tiger victories the year before.

The record was sad, but the real indication of the incapability of CC to deal with its schedule became obvious through the fact that the Tigers could not defeat Colorado Mines, the one club that had been a relief mechanism in years past. The Miners, who had become almost a joke with their slow-down tactics, whipped CC four straight. Recalling that the Tigers had battered the Orediggers almost at will in happier days, it was this factor more than any which indicated that the local school had little realistic hope of escaping its present dilemma.

To compound the problems that confronted Eastlack at the start of the campaign, a returning starter, Bob Baker, was injured and removed from the scene before action even commenced. Elsewhere the firepower was slight. Bob Heiny, an aggressive senior who would have made an outstanding senior forward for a small school, had to shoulder the responsibility of operating the post. Despite the size handicap, he still finished as the top scorer with a 12.4 average on 257 points in the 20 games.

Heiny also led the rebounding with 187, outdoing 6-6 Steve Sabom, the Tigers' biggest man who was pressed by recurring injuries and never seemed to come around. Junior guard, Dave Herrington, a graduate of Palmer High's last state tournament team, followed Heiny with 201 points and a 10.0 average.

Heiny and Sabom were among the four seniors who departed the squad at the finish of the season. Bill Pelz, a sometimes sharp-shooting guard from Indiana, and Farrell Howell, a courageous 6-2 forward, were the others. The problem, which was being pointed out in the early stages of the current campaign, was not just one of replacements for these people. What the Tigers were sorely needing was replacements who were superior in ability to the ones departing.

Just when those will come is questionable — but until they do Colorado College basketball is trapped in a depression from which it will not escape.

Florence Nails Down PPL 1964 Football Crown

The departure of four larger high schools balanced the Pikes Peak League's football campaign last fall, and Florence took advantage to nail the district championship.

Cheyenne Mountain, Harrison, Air Academy High and Widefield moved up to form the AAA Will Rogers League, leaving Fountain, Manitou Springs, Salida, Florence and Leadville to form the basis of a revamped class AA circuit. Crowley County and Fowler joined from the Class B Arkansas Valley League and Buena Vista bounded up from the Class C West Central loop to round out the eight-team league.

Florence went through undefeated, tying Pueblo County, 13-13, and romping through the rest of a nine - team schedule. But the Huskies were not without close competition.

Salida, rated pre - season favorite to take the title, lost early to Florence and spent the rest of the year playing a futile catch - up game. Fountain, not expected to go anywhere as well as the leaders, lost a tie for the PPL crown when the Trojans fell to Florence in the final scheduled game, 20-0. But Fountain had lost only to Salida in knocking out a fine 7-2 record.

Manitou's Mustangs found themselves in the same depths of a year ago, winning against Leadville and Buena Vista, then finishing with five straight losses for a 2-7 mark.

The league's newcomers found the upgraded competition a bit rough. Crowley County had the best fortune with a 4-5 record, beating everyone but the top three PPL teams. Buena Vista opened with a non-league 19-0 victory over Leadville, but that was the Demons' only win with a tie and seven losses as they fell in the year's final set to the Panthers, 7-6. Fowler rocked through a long season, but took wins against Manitou Springs and Buena Vista to avoid being shut out.

Tribe Runs To Unbeaten Ice Season

Palmer capped an undefeated round - robin schedule with a pair of tournament wins to take the 1963 - 64 City Hockey League championship. The Terrors swept through 12 games in the regular season before stopping Wasson, 4-1, and Cheyenne Mountain, 4-2.

The Terrors were the only team to finish the season above the .500 mark. Cheyenne's Indians finished second at 7 - 7. Fountain Valley finished third in overall standings at 4 - 10 while Wasson was fourth at 3-11.

All - America Chuck Reinking broke Palmer's old scoring record but kept the mark in the family. His 50 - point effort during the regular season eclipsed the old record of 41 set by brother Bucky.

Palmer scored 73 goals to 16 for their opponents, mainly due to the efforts of defenseman Ray Cool, who was tabbed for honorable mention All - America.

Cheyenne got into the tournament finals by beating Fountain Valley, 7 - 1. The Danes then took third place with a 4-3 victory over Wasson in the consolations.

Pirates Cagers Get Third Place

Dan Wright, in his first term as St. Mary's head basketball coach, found the Denver Parochial League a rugged initiation into the DPL circuit, especially when considering the Pirates won their first league championship in over 50 years competition two years ago.

Under the direction of the late Ed Murphy, the Pirates captured the DPL championship the previous season but lost the State Parochial title to Annunication.

Wright was saddled with fielding a winning team without the services of the entire starting unit from the 1963-64 team. The Bucs lost their entire starting unit from the DPL championship team to graduation last spring.

However, the Pirates managed to finish their league slate with a third-place in the final DPL standings with Regis winning the title and Holy Family placing second.

The Pirates compiled a 17-6 won-loss record last season via the dependable play of Dick Pfalmer, who was the second Pfalmer to excel in basketball at St. Mary's. Pfalmer was the leading scorer and rebounder for the Pirates last season.

Wright also found two young guards taht proved themselves under fire. Tom McCarthy and Joe Jezek directed the Pirate attack from the backcourt.

Even though Chuck Haering's spirited St. Mary's football team recorded the best won-loss record ever posted at the local parochial school, the Pirates lost the Denver Parochial League championship!

The St. Mary's 1964 football edition registered a 9-1 won-loss record, losing that single outing to the DPL and co-state champion Mullen. The Mustangs handed the Pirates their only loss this past season, 13-6, in a hard fought contest.

This was also the year the Buccaneers managed to break the Regis jinx. St. Mary's defeated Regis, 28-7, to record their first victory over the perennial DPL kingpins on the gridiron. This was the first time the Bucs scored against the Raiders in three years of competition.

Haering's defensive specialists, the "Outlaws," played an important role in writing the successful season as the group contained their opponents to only 48 points in 10 games.

With only five returning lettermen, Haering and his coaching staff managed to construct a remarkable season. The Bucs gained 2173 yards while the "Outlaws" contained the opposition to 1216 yards. The Pirates picked up 1903 net yards rushing while the "Outlaws" stifled their 10 opponents to a mere 715 yards rushing.

In addition to his outstanding play on the "Outlaw" team at the middle linebacker slot, fullback Sam Zavatti led the St. Mary's offense in rushing with 559 net yards via 125 carries. Halfbacks Gary Dobson and Chris White rushed for 407 and 353 net yards respectively.

Haering faces another rebuilding year next season as the Pirate grid boss will lose 15 lettermen to graduation this spring. Haering completed his third term as St. Mary's head football coach and he led the Pirates to their first DPL championship two years ago.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The enthusiasm of the 50,408 persons attending the Gator Bowl football game between Florida State and Oklahoma Saturday caused the announcer to come on the public address system at halftime and ask the people not to make quite so much noise.

It seems that thousands of persons showed up at the game with musical horns about two feet long and made of plastic and continually blasted away on them during the game.

Colorado College continued to be mired in its worst basketball depression since the mid-50's during the 1963-64 campaign — and the most discouraging part of the entire picture was the fact that no relief appeared to be in the offing.

Coach Leon "Red" Eastlack, who labors under the impossible task of attempting to put winning basketball teams on the floor with the most limited talent imaginable, returned several of his better players from the previous year's team — but so did every one else in the Rocky Mountain Conference, and considering the fact that CC's 1962-63 record had been 3-22, it was obvious that the Tigers were in for another long winter.

Still, it never figured to be as long as it was. Officially CC concluded the season with a 3-19 mark, but that came about with a little first aid from Greeley. The Bears, who were engaged in post season playoff activity, bowed out of their final two games with the Tigers and they went on the record as forfeits. In actual competition, CC won only one of 19 starts.

The Tigers' lone triumph came after the team had suffered 11 consecutive defeats. It was accomplished by a 64-62 score over Western State College of Gunnison, and it was appropriate that the triumph was recorded in combat with a team that had yielded two of the three Tiger victories the year before.

The record was sad, but the real indication of the incapability of CC to deal with its schedule became obvious through the fact that the Tigers could not defeat Colorado Mines, the one club that had been a relief mechanism in years past. The Miners, who had become almost a joke with their slow-down tactics, whipped CC four straight. Recalling that the Tigers had battered the Orediggers almost at will in happier days, it was this factor more than any which indicated that the local school had little realistic hope of escaping its present dilemma.

To compound the problems that confronted Eastlack at the start of the campaign, a returning starter, Bob Baker, was injured and removed from the scene before action even commenced. Elsewhere the firepower was slight. Bob Heiny, an aggressive senior who would have made an outstanding senior forward for a small school, had to shoulder the responsibility of operating the post. Despite the size handicap, he still finished as the top scorer with a 12.4 average on 257 points in the 20 games.

Heiny also led the rebounding with 187, outdoing 6-6 Steve Sabom, the Tigers' biggest man who was pressed by recurring injuries and never seemed to come around. Junior guard, Dave Herrington, a graduate of Palmer High's last state tournament team, followed Heiny with 201 points and a 10.0 average.

Heiny and Sabom were among the four seniors who departed the squad at the finish of the season. Bill Pelz, a sometimes sharp-shooting guard from Indiana, and Farrell Howell, a courageous 6-2 forward, were the others. The problem, which was being pointed out in the early stages of the current campaign, was not just one of replacements for these people. What the Tigers were sorely needing was replacements who were superior in ability to the ones departing.

Just when those will come is questionable — but until they do Colorado College basketball is trapped in a depression from which it will not escape.

PACKER TIES A COLONEL

CORTEZ, Colo. (AP) — Lt. Col. E. S. Throckmorton set a world trapshooting record when he hit 100 straight targets from 27 yards last summer.

Nobody had been able to get a perfect score since the 27-yard line was established 10 years ago. But 11 days later, Dan Orlich of Reno, a former Green Bay Packer, did it.

Pirates Cagers Get Third Place

Dan Wright, in his first term as St. Mary's head basketball coach, found the Denver Parochial League a rugged initiation into the DPL circuit, especially when considering the Pirates won their first league championship in over 50 years competition two years ago.

Under the direction of the late Ed Murphy, the Pirates captured the DPL championship the previous season but lost the State Parochial title to Annunication.

Wright was saddled with fielding a winning team without the services of the entire starting unit from the 1963-64 team. The Bucs lost their entire starting unit from the DPL championship team to graduation last spring.

However, the Pirates managed to finish their league slate with a third-place in the final DPL standings with Regis winning the title and Holy Family placing second.

The Pirates compiled a 17-6 won-loss record last season via the dependable play of Dick Pfalmer, who was the second Pfalmer to excel in basketball at St. Mary's. Pfalmer was the leading scorer and rebounder for the Pirates last season.

Wright also found two young guards taht proved themselves under fire. Tom McCarthy and Joe Jezek directed the Pirate attack from the backcourt.

Vikings Sign Two Players After Criticism

(AP) — The Minnesota Vikings announced Saturday the signing of Walter (Sandy) Sands, a Texas end drafted on the 12th round as a future last year.

Sands was draftedbyKansas

Sands was drafted by Kansas City of the American Football League, also as a future last year.

The Vikings also confirmed signing of Frank McClendon, Alabama tackle who was their ninth round choice this year.He was sought by Oakland of the AFL.

The Vikings, criticized for the pre-bowl signing of three Oklahoma piayers, said they had completed their player search with 11 of 17 draftees signed from the 1964 draft and four of five signed among futures from 1963.

Even though Chuck Haering's spirited St. Mary's football team recorded the best won-loss record ever posted at the local parochial school, the Pirates lost the Denver Parochial League championship!

The St. Mary's 1964 football edition registered a 9-1 won-loss record, losing that single outing to the DPL and co-state champion Mullen. The Mustangs handed the Pirates their only loss this past season, 13-6, in a hard fought contest.

This was also the year the Buccaneers managed to break the Regis jinx. St. Mary's defeated Regis, 28-7, to record their first victory over the perennial DPL kingpins on the gridiron. This was the first time the Bucs scored against the Raiders in three years of competition.

Haering's defensive specialists, the "Outlaws," played an important role in writing the successful season as the group contained their opponents to only 48 points in 10 games.

With only five returning lettermen, Haering and his coaching staff managed to construct a remarkable season. The Bucs gained 2173 yards while the "Outlaws" contained the opposition to 1216 yards. The Pirates picked up 1903 net yards rushing while the "Outlaws" stifled their 10 opponents to a mere 715 yards rushing.

In addition to his outstanding play on the "Outlaw" team at the middle linebacker slot, fullback Sam Zavatti led the St. Mary's offense in rushing with 559 net yards via 125 carries. Halfbacks Gary Dobson and Chris White rushed for 407 and 353 net yards respectively.

Haering faces another rebuilding year next season as the Pirate grid boss will lose 15 lettermen to graduation this spring. Haering completed his third term as St. Mary's head football coach and he led the Pirates to their first DPL championship two years ago.

Edelen Scores Easy Victory in Essex Race

CHELMSFORD, England (AP) — Leonard (Buddy) Edelen of Sioux Falls, S. D., galloped to an easy victory in the Essex Cross Country championship Saturday.

Edelen, sixth in the Tokyo Olympics, took the lead before the halfway mark and won by 300 yards. Edelen teaches in a school for children of American servicemen stationed in England.

Florence Nails Down PPL 1964 Football Crown

The departure of four larger high schools balanced the Pikes Peak League's football campaign last fall, and Florence took advantage to nail the district championship.

Cheyenne Mountain, Harrison, Air Academy High and Widefield moved up to form the AAA Will Rogers League, leaving Fountain, Manitou Springs, Salida, Florence and Leadville to form the basis of a revamped class AA circuit. Crowley County and Fowler joined from the Class B Arkansas Valley League and Buena Vista bounded up from the Class C West Central loop to round out the eight-team league.

Florence went through undefeated, tying Pueblo County, 13-13, and romping through the rest of a nine-team schedule. But the Huskies were not without close competition.

Salida, rated pre-season favorite to take the title, lost early to Florence and spent the rest of the year playing a futile catch-up game. Fountain, not expected to go anywhere as weil as the leaders, lost a tie for the PPL crown when the Trojans fell to Florence in the final scheduled game, 20-0. But Fountain had lost only to Salida in knocking out a fine 7-2 record.

Manitou's Mustangs found themselves in the same depths of a year ago, winning against Leadville and Buena Vista, then finishing with five straight losses for a 2-7 mark.

The league's newcomers found the upgraded competition a bit rough. Crowley County had the best fortune with a 4-5 record, beating everyone but the top three PPL teams. Buena Vista opened with a non-league 19-0 victory over Leadville, but that was the Demons' only win with a tie and seven losses as they fell in the year's final set to the Panthers, 7-6. Fowler rocked through a long season, but took wins against Manitou Springs and Buena Vista to avoid being shut out.

Fans Blow Own Horns At Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The enthusiasm of the 50,408 persons attending the Gator Bowl football game between Florida State and Oklahoma Saturday caused the announcer to come on the public address system at halftime and ask the people not to make quite so much noise.

It seems that thousands of persons showed up at the game with musical horns about two feet long and made of plastic and continually blasted away on them during the game.

The horns made so much noise that a national television audience reported to the American Broadcasting Co. that it couldn't hear anything going on in the bowl.

The fans obliged and quieted down after the half.

Bird Tank Team Gets State Rank

Minor sports teams from Palmer and Wasson had varying degrees of success during the 1963-64 school year.

The most successful was the Wasson swimming team which won its second straight district championship and went on to place second in the state meet.

The Thunderbird tankers rolled up 111 points in the district to easily outdistance second place Palmer's 70. Wasson captured eight of the 11 events while Palmer took two of the other three firsts in a meet which saw every record broken. Bruce Teschner of Wasson established marks in winning both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races.

At the state meet the Thunderbirds scored 61 points and won four individual events but finished second to Denver George Washington's 78½ points. Palmer came in fifth with 20 points.

Teschner added to his outstanding season by capturing the individual title in both the 50 and 100 freestyles while Scott Brown won the 200 yard individual medley and Warren Flaherty the 400 yard freestyle for the Wasson team.

It was an off year in wrestling for both schools. Wasson finished in a tie for fourth in the South Central League race with a 2-4 record and had a 4-8 mark overall in dual competition. Palmer had an 0-6 record in the SCL and was 1-9 overall.

In the district meet, three local wrestlers won individual championships. Clif Catron of Wasson took the 120 pound title and the Thunderbirds' Yogi Grandcourt copped the crown at 165. Heavyweight Ron Smith was Palmer's lone champion. Chip Summers of Wasson also won a trip to the state by placing second in the 138 pound division.

Summers was the lone casualty in the first round of the state as the other three local grapplers advanced to the quarterfinals. However, all three then fell in the second round.

The two schools also made an excellent showing in gymnastics. Wasson finished second in the district meet and Palmer fourth. The Thunderbirds got firsts in individual events from Schanburger in the horizontal bars, Martinez in the parallel bars, and Berg in tumbling. Palmer won no individual events.

Tribe Runs To Unbeaten Ice Season

Palmer capped an undefeated round-robin schedule with a pair of tournament wins to take the 1963-64 City Hockey League championship. The Terrors swept through 12 games in the regular season before stopping Wasson, 4-1, and Cheyenne Mountain, 4-2.

The Terrors were the only team to finish the season above the .500 mark. Cheyenne's Indians finished second at 7-7. Fountain Valley finished third in overall standings at 4-10 while Wasson was fourth at 3-11.

All-America Chuck Reinking broke Palmer's old scoring record but kept the mark in the family. His 50-point effort during the regular season eclipsed the old record of 41 set by brother Bucky.

Palmer scored 73 goals to 16 for their opponents, mainly due to the efforts of defenseman Ray Cool, who was tabbed for honorable mention All-America.

Cheyenne got into the tournament finals by beating Fountain Valley, 7-1. The Danes then took third place with a 4-3 victory over Wasson in the consolations.

For the Pikes Peak Group of the Colorado Mountain Club

Within a short time a New Year will be ushered in and we all look forward to it anxiously. The passing year brought many unexpected things. It was a year of the greatest prosperity that out country has ever known, yet there was a great loss of life in some sections of our country. Victories have been won over our enemies which have brought great hope.

There will be many new inventions and discoveries which we never dreamed of. For instance, varieties of tweeds and scrubs are now being utilized in the production of rubber substitutes; wood has played a part that it never did before making articles. Somehow we seem to think everything will look different when the New Year comes in, but instead the town will look just the same.

When the clock strikes twelve, those flares on the peak light up the whole mountain and the sky above. They are a symbol of the bright and shining New Year that is coming in. Think of the many years that people of Colorado Springs have witnessed the fireworks on the peak!

There is always a certain thrill watching them and they give us new hope. So bright they shine forth at first, but they soon flicker and vanish. They are like the New Year coming with great gladness and new resolutions and when the year comes to a close, much of the glamour begins to disappear.

A new year will soon enter upon a new path which we must all tread. It may be strewn with roses, with beautiful scenery or it may be a difficult path, rough with no flowers or beautiful scenery. But whatever it is, we must walk along it. The years roll on gently at times and again with great turmoil, bringing disaster, war, death. But come what may, time runs through the roughest day and can very quickly lay a gentle hand on it all. Time gives us what it will but not what we crave. The dark hours of the night steal on and then the morning breaks fair and the landscape is flooded with a golden light.

Time must go forward, it cannot stop or go backward. We continually speak of time, time of wars; we speak of springtime, autumn and winter. We speak of this time last year, two years or even ten years ago. Whatever comes, time will tell.

The chimes and bells will ring on New Year's Eve and there is always a hushed feeling which settles over everybody at the hour of midnight. We all look forward to seeing the fireworks on the peak, no matter how many times we have seen them before.

The sun will shine just as bright in 1965, the moon and stars will be just as brilliant.

Heart Group Says Resolve To Save Your Heart in '65

Pointing out that more than 54 per cent of the deaths ocurring annually in the United States are due to diseases of the heart and circulatory system, the Colorado Heart Association today urged the public to adopt the following New Year's Resolution:

"Resolved that in 1965, I will guard my heart and take all possible precautions to reduce my risk of heart attack."

This is especially important for persons under 65 years of age, says the Association, for about 190,000 persons under 65 die each year of heart attacks or strokes while the grand total who die at all ages from these conditions reaches 700,000. The same precautions will be helpful in reducing risk of either heart attack or stroke, said the Heart Association.

The Association listed a number of health measures which can improve the individual's chances of avoiding (or at least delaying) a heart attack or stroke. These measures are especially important for men and women in "high risk" groups—for example, if they or their families have shown a tendency to these illnesses. But, everyone, the Heart Association emphasized, can benefit by taking the following precautions:

1. See your doctor for regular check-ups so that he can determine whether you have any of the established "risk factors" such as high blood pressure, diabetes, high blood level of cholesterol and some others.

2. Control your weight. Obesity especially in combination with high blood pressure, is a threat to heart health. And obesity raises the risk of high blood pressure.

3. Under the doctor's guidance, eat less fat and while you cut down on fats, reduce the amount of animal fats you eat and raise the amount of vegetable oils and fish. This will lower total calories and make it easier to maintain ideal weight, and it will tend to lower blood cholesterol.

4. Control high blood pressure. If a physical examination shows that you have high blood pressure, cooperate with your doctor in following the regime he prescribes—chiefly drugs and diet changes—to bring it under control. This in itself may add years to your life, since chronic high blood pressure adds significantly not only to the risk of heart attack but stroke and kidney disease.

5. Stop smoking cigarettes. Studies indicate that death rates from heart attacks in middle-aged men range from 50 to 200 per cent higher among cigarette smokers than among non-smokers. Your chances of heart disease increase in proportion to the number of cigarettes you smoke. However, there is evidence that, even if you have been a heavy smoker, if you stop smoking now, abnormal changes which may have ocurred in your body tissues—such an occur in the lungs—will gradually revert toward normal. This, too will help reduce the risk of heart attack.

Chamber Head Praises Coming Year's Prospect

Ways in which everyone can help insure continuing national prosperity in 1965 were outlined in a year-end statement by Walter F. Carey, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"Prospects for the new year are very good," Carey said, "but prosperity can never be guaranteed. It must be earned. The National Chamber has a simple, three - point program that offers every American an opportunity to help make 1965 a bigger and better year for all."

The program follows:

"1. KEEP THE ECONOMY EXPANDING: Support the proposed excise tax cut and other fiscal and monetary policies which have been largely responsible for maintaining the nation's longest peacetime period of growth. In addition to eliminating the present discriminatory excises, adjust the tax load more evenly between earners and spenders. Put more reliance on a broad based general excise tax, with basic necessities exempted, and less reliance on the income tax. The income tax is unavoidable, while the excise tax leaves some room for choice, in that the purchaser can to a large extent decide when to pay the excise tax, what to pay it on, and how much to pay. This gives him, as a taxpayer, more freedom to decide between saving and spending, and it gives savers more to invest in new and expanding businesses.

"2. SHARE THE RESPONSIBILITY: Individuals, families, communities and states should meet the challenges which rightfully fall within their province, and the federal government should encourage them to do so, so that it can be free to concentrate on truly national problems.

"The Chamber will work to strengthen business leadership in dealing with such pressing problems as community development, education and poverty.

"In the field of education, for example, businessmen are doing much, and can do much more to help make local educational systems more responsive to the needs of our rapidly changing industrial society. More businessmen should be serving on school boards and advisory committees to help educators keep vocational and technical training abreast of the need for skills.

"3. SPREAD THE BENEFITS: Provide the kind of a business climate that recognizes our free market system as the source of our national prosperity, and the best hope of the unemployed for jobs and of the less privileged for higher living standards and rescue from poverty.

"Support all efforts to economize in the use of federal funds and develop a better budget system so that priorities can be assigned fore rationally.

"Avoid unnecessary government regulation and interference in the free market system. Leave labor and management free to bargain collectively and to reach agreements, subject only to the usual mediation where difficulties arise. Assure equal treatment for labor and management in the decisions of the National Labor Relations Board. Forestall the spread of compulsory unionism by reserving to the states the right to enact laws protecting the freedom of individuals not to join unions if they so desire.

"This is a Program for Progress on which businessmen, as represented by the National Chamber, are already hard at work. Their success will insure continuing prosperity for the nation."

BERL ERUMOR IS TRUE

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of Broadway's most persistent rumors are scheduled to be transformed together into actuality next season.

The frequent reports have concerned return to the stage of Milton Berle, last seen on the White Way in 1949; and the creation of a musical about two notorious lawyers of an earlier Gotham era, William Howe and Abe Hummel.

The project is being prepared by producer Diana Krasny. Berle is to star in an adaptation of biographical material by Jerome Weidman. The score is being prepared by Harold Rome. Late September is marked down as the time of the proposed premiere.

Stamp Club Sets Meeting For Tuesday

The first meeting in 1965 of the Colorado Springs Stamp Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Included will be a business meeting with a duscussion of the activities and projects for the new year.

The program for the evening will feature a stamp identification quiz. Stamps will be placed on display and covered at the beginning of the meeting. Clues will be given about each stamp. When the name of the stamp is guessed, the original stamp will be revealed to everyone. Points will be given to the person who identifies the stamp. Each time a clue is given about a stamp the number of points will drop. After all the stamps have been identified, the person with the most points will win a prize.

The Colorado Springs Stamp Club meets the first and third Tuesdays of every month.

LONG WAY FROM ELKO

Don Lewis, manager of the Ruby Valley Wildlife Refuge in Elko County, was notified that a pintail duck he banded four years ago had been shot in Eastern Russia.

The letter from A. Vinokurov, chief of the bird ringing center in Moscow, added the duck was shot in May of 1962.

Lewis said he had no idea why it took the Soviet authorities two years to notify him of the shooting.

LONG WAY FROM ELKO

Don Lewis, manager of the Ruby Valley Wildlife Refuge in Elko County, was notified that a pintail duck he banded four years ago had been shot in Eastern Russia.

The letter from A. Vinokurov, chief of the bird ringing center in Moscow, added the duck was shot in May of 1962.

Lewis said he had no idea why it took the Soviet authorities two years to notify him of the shooting.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Farmer Jesse Paul watched sullenly as a deputy sheriff, sent by creditors, arrived to cart off his hay. Paul had not paid his bills, and there was no doubt that the hay was subject to seizure.

But suddenly a wicked gleam came into his eyes. He had just realized that the deputy was using his pitchfork without permission.

The next day, Paul filed a damage suit against the deputy. Clearly the fellow had no legal right to use the pitchfork. Yet, the judge tossed the case out of court.

"De minimis non curat lex," quoth the judge. That is Latin for "The law doesn't care about trifles."

Whatever the letter of the law may be, courts do have a certain amount of leeway in the name of common sense. A judge may thumb down a complaint that is simply wasting his time and the taxpayers' money.

Here are other examples:

A dentist, readying a hypodermic needle for a woman patient, allowed a bit of liquid to dribble onto her tongue. Although the stuff was bitter, it was perfectly harmless. Nevertheless, the woman sued the dentist for damages, blaming him for an offense to her taste buds. The court characterized this as an "injury without damage" — and dismissed the case.

A pedestrian dented his hat on the bottom of a barber pole. Charging that the pole was too low, he aimed a damage suit at the barber. But the court, noting that the dent was very small and the hat very old, ruled that this too was a case of "de minimis."

And a man who tried to upset a verdict because of a 85-cent error got short shrift from the appellate court.

Of course, mere money is not the crucial test. A man's claim for a single penny won a respectful hearing in the trial court and two appelate courts, with scholarly opinions being written by three justices. But that case involved not only the penny but but also the interpretation of a new tax law.

In short, the law does care even about trifles — if there is a principle at stake. But there really must be a principle, not just pique. As the court said to Farmer Paul:

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Tulie Bennett, a woman to whom adversity is a challenge, has been named Handicapper of the Year by Stalwarts and Pals Club for the Handicapped.

Miss Bennett, an employe of Sno-White Laundry and Cleaners, was stricken with polio when she was three years old. The disease left her confined to crutches. One leg is strong enough for walking.

But her handicap has not excluded her from a full and active life. Most recently she is learning to bowl.

"I think being handicapped all your life," Miss Bennett explained, "makes a handicap a lot easier to accept. This is normal for me. I never knew myself any other way." Miss Bennett was sitting in her home at 1707 N. Cascade where she lives with her brother, Ed Bennett, his wife and two sons.

"The way I am now," Miss Bennett said, indicating her legs, "is just me. One of the most pleasant things I remember concerning my handicap happened when my older nephew, Reb, was about three. He and a friend were playing together and the other little boy asked Reb what was wrong with me. Reb turned around, looked me up and down frowning. Then he turned and asked his friend what he meant by that. To Reb I wouldn't have been me without my crutches."

Miss Bennett spent most of her childhood in hospitals. She finally was released and joined her family in Santa Fe, N.M., in time to begin the fifth grade. Her mother, wanting to get reacquainted and afraid that her crippled daughter might not be able to get along in public school, taught her the fifth grade.

"She was one of the best teachers I ever had," said Miss Bennett recalls. "We had been apart so long it wasn't exactly like a mother trying to teach her own child. She got the less-real patient.

"I went to a private school sons from the school and was in the sixth and seventh grades but missed the eighth entirely because they had to do some more corrective surgery on my leg.

"I went back to the private school for the ninth grade. I kept asking to go to a public school because I felt like there would be more competition there but Mother was afraid. I didn't care for the private school. In the children's hospitals everyone was careful of each other but no one was spoiled or coddled. In the private school I was smothered for the first time and I didn't like it.

"Then, when I was a sophomore in high school, Mother finally relented. The first day in public school a funny thing happened and it made me feel right at home.

"A boy was running along behind me as I went toward the building. He bounded past me without a second glance. Then he did the most wnnderful thing. He threw open the door, ran in and let the door slam in my face. I probably appreciated that at that moment more than anything else. He hadn't treated me like I was the least bit different from any of the other kids.

"I stayed in public school at Santa Fe and loved it. You might say, I thrived on the competition. I graduated salutatorian (second in the class) in a class of 125. The valedictorian was a handicapper too. He later became a Phi Beta Kappa at Yale.

"I wanted to go on to college but there just wasn't enough money. The only kind of a scholarship was to a business school. I was interested in science but I went to the business school instead.

"After finishing school and one job, I went to Seminole, Tex., where my brother and several other members of the family had started a laundry. I went to work for them and stayed for five years. The family decided if we were going to work such long hours, we ought to be someplace where we could go fishing or camping on the weekends. We looked around. Someone suggested Colorado Springs, everyone agreed and we came here. That was about 14 years ago. Since then I have worked in our laundry here doing general office work.

"About four years ago I got tired of depending on everybody for tranportation. I decided there was no reason I couldn't learn to drive. I saw other handicappers who did. The family was not enthusiastic. My brother said he would help me find a car but he stalled around until I finally told him I was going to find one myself. He got to work and found me an old '51 Pontiac. It was a big car and he figured if I could learn to handle it, I could drive anything. A man here ordered and installed the special equipment. I couldn't use my legs, but I had strong arms and with the special equipment I knew I could learn to drive.

"Ed decided he would learn to drive it first and then teach me. It took us about a year for me to learn because we only had nights and weekends to practice. But I was so anxious to get out on my own, I didn't get discouraged or anything.

"Then I got my license. I'll never forget that first afternoon. After all that work, I finally was independent . . . I could go wherever I wanted to go. That afternoon I got behind the wheel . . . and couldn't think of a single place to go.

"But it didn't take long. Soon after that I joined a new group. It was the Stalwarts and Pals Club, a group of handicapped people who got together to exchange ideas, interests and activities.

"For a handicapper it isn't easy to get out into the world. You tend to get wrapped up in your own small area and you don't really care about getting out. In Stalwarts and Pals, the handicappers encourage each other to push a little harder. Also, in the club you see a lot of strong religious beliefs. Most of these people have developed a real sustaining faith and they radiate it.

"We have a lot of activities and you find you can do almost anything if someone with a similar handicap shows you how. We go on picnics, have parties and even lately, we've started bowling.

"The main thing about the club is that I feel I can contribute by encouraing others along some lines while I, too, am encouraged in areas I never thought of attempting."

PLAYING OR PLEASURE — Tulie Bennett, recently chosen Handicapper of the Year by Stalwarts and Pals Club for Handicapped Persons, practices at her piano. Playing the piano is one of the interests Miss Bennett has cultivated although her handicap makes it uncomfortable to sit for any length of time.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

How times have changed! Now the colleges have courses in journalism. The student prepares for active newspaper work. He graduates with a degree for it. It is a profession.

When I started work, in 1900, I don't think there were any courses in journalism. I know that many newspaper men and women had college degrees, but as I recall they were not trained for newspaper work. I think most newspaper workers had aspiration for success in some field of literature and worked as reporters while trying their luck that way.

At any rate, the word "journalism" had a different meaning than today. It was applied to writers of editorials or other branches of creative or critical newspaper work, not the reporting of news. I can remember some reporters being laughed at for putting on airs when they called themselves journalists. They were, I think considered newspaper workers and that was about all, except in the matter of writing.

On some papers much was made of good writing. But it seemed to make little difference whether the art was learned in college, or from reading, or acquired however it might be.

I remember a young man applying for work as a reporter and a city editor asking him if he thought he could write.

"Well, I believe pretty well," was his answer." I have a degree from — I can't now remember which college he mentioned.

"I don't care whether you ever went to school a day in your life," the city editor said. "I'll put you on the staff for a week and find out for myself if you can write. I'll not take snap judgment. I won't make up my mind till the end of the week. If I then conclude that you have promise as a writer a job is yours. If not, no job here."

I don't say this as applying at all to me. I started as a halfway copy boy, halfway reporter, and just managed, after several flops, to hang onto the fringes until I got to going. But these are my observations concerning other inexperienced persons I saw asking for newspaper work and making pretensions of ability.

'SAGE' SYSTEM

Semi - Automatic Ground Environment is an electronic system of air defense tested in New England. It uses an electronic digital computer that will not only spot and brand a hostile airplane in a matter of seconds, but will guide interceptors to the spot regardless of the target's speed or evasive action.

'Hawaii' May Become Biggest Movie Project

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Filming will start on Washington's Birthday for what may be the biggest movie project of 1965 — the $10 million "Hawaii."

The site of initial shooting: 150 miles above the Arctic Circle off Bodo, Norway. If that seems like a strange place to begin a film about the history of Hawaii, director George Roy Hill explains:

"We'll do the scenes there of the missionaries sailing through the Straits of Magellan en route from New England to the islands. The geography is very similar off Norway, and we will be near towns where the crew can headquarter. That wouldn't be possible at the straits."

Director Hill — "The World of Henry Orient" — and producer Walter Mirisch — "West Side Story" — discussed their monumental project at Mirisch Bros. headquarters. The filming will come 5½ years after the James Michener novel was purchased pre-publication.

Why so long a wait?

"We had an unfortunate start," explained Mirisch. "Fred Zinnemann worked on the picture for a long time, and he came to the conclusion that the story should be told in two pictures. We decided that wasn't feasible. The whole idea of two pictures being made and shown in tandem wasn't a commercial venture."

Zinnemann left the project and Hill was enlisted. But the weighty Michener tome may still end up as two films.

"We'll take the story from prehistoric times up to about 1862," Hill explained. "That will include the Polynesian period, the story of the missionaries, some of the Chinese and a little of the Japanese.

"If the picture is well received, the rest of the novel might be put into another film. We would jump to a whole new generation in the story."

The film makers said the Norwegian shooting would include none of the principal cast members — Julie Andrews is the first to be signed.

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Tulie Bennett, a woman to whom adversity is a challenge, has been named Handicapper of the Year by Stalwarts and Pals Club for the Handicapped.

Miss Bennett, an employe of Sno-White Laundry and Cleaners, was stricken with polio when she was three years old. The disease left her confined to crutches. One leg is strong enough for walking.

But her handicap has not excluded her from a full and active life. Most recently she is learning to bowl.

"I think being handicapped all your life," Miss Bennett explained, "makes a handicap a lot easier to accept. This is normal for me. I never knew myself any other way." Miss Bennett was sitting in her home at 1707 N. Cascade where she lives with her brother, Ed Bennett, his wife and two sons.

"The way I am now," Miss Bennett said, indicating her legs, "is just me. One of the most pleasant things I remember concerning my handicap happened when my older nephew, Reb, was about three. He and a friend were playing together and the other little boy asked Reb what was wrong with me. Reb turned around, looked me up and down frowning. Then he turned and asked his friend what he meant by that. To Reb I wouldn't have been me without my crutches."

Miss Bennett spent most of her childhood in hospitals. She finally was released and joined her family in Santa Fe, N.M., in time to begin the fifth grade. Her mother, wanting to get reacquainted and afraid that her crippled daughter might not be able to get along in public school, taught her the fifth grade.

"She was one of the best teachers I ever had," said Miss Bennett recalls. "We had been apart so long it wasn't exactly like a mother trying to teach her own child. She got the lesreal patient.

"I went to a private school sons from the school and was in the sixth and seventh grades but missed the eighth entirely because they had to do some more corrective surgery on my leg.

"I went back to the private school for the ninth grade. I kept asking to go to a public school because I felt like there would be more competition there but Mother was afraid. I didn't care for the private school. In the children's hospitals everyone was careful of each other but no one was spoiled or coddled. In the private school I was smothered for the first time and I didn't like it.

"Then, when I was a sophomore in high school, Mother finally relented. The first day in public school a funny thing happened and it made me feel right at home.

"A boy was running along behind me as I went toward the building. He bounded past me without a second glance. Then he did the most wnnderful thing. He threw open the door, ran in and let the door slam in my face. I probably appreciated that at that moment more than anything else. He hadn't treated me like I was the least bit different from any of the other kids.

"I stayed in public school at Santa Fe and loved it. You might say, I thrived on the competition. I graduated salutatorian (second in the class) in a class of 125. The valedictorian was a handicapper too. He later became a Phi Beta Kappa at Yale.

"I wanted to go on to college but there just wasn't enough money. The only kind of a scholarship was to a business school. I was interested in science but I went to the business school instead.

"After finishing school and one job, I went to Seminole, Tex., where my brother and several other members of the family had started a laundry. I went to work for them and stayed for five years. The family decided if we were going to work such long hours, we ought to be someplace where we could go fishing or camping on the weekends. We looked around. Someone suggested Colorado Springs, everyone agreed and we came here. That was about 14 years ago. Since then I have worked in our laundry here doing general office work.

"About four years ago I got tired of depending on everybody for tranportation. I decided there was no reason I couldn't learn to drive. I saw other handicappers who did. The family was not enthusiastic. My brother said he would help me find a car but he stalled around until I finally told him I was going to find one myself. He got to work and found me an old '51 Pontiac. It was a big car and he figured if I could learn to handle it, I could drive anything. A man here ordered and installed the special equipment. I couldn't use my legs, but I had strong arms and with the special equipment I knew I could learn to drive.

"Ed decided he would learn to drive it first and then teach me. It took us about a year for me to learn because we only had nights and weekends to practice. But I was so anxious to get out on my own, I didn't get discouraged or anything.

"Then I got my license. I'll never forget that first afternoon. After all that work, I finally was independent . . . I could go wherever I wanted to go. That afternoon I got behind the wheel . . . and couldn't think of a single place to go.

"But it didn't take long. Soon after that I joined a new group. It was the Stalwarts and Pals Club, a group of handicapped people who got together to exchange ideas, interests and activities.

"For a handicapper it isn't easy to get out into the world. You tend to get wrapped up in your own small area and you don't really care about getting out. In Stalwarts and Pals, the handicappers encourage each other to push a little harder. Also, in the club you see a lot of strong religious beliefs. Most of these people have developed a real sustaining faith and they radiate it.

"We have a lot of activities and you find you can do almost anything if someone with a similar handicap shows you how. We go on picnics, have parties and even lately, we've started bowling.

"The main thing about the club is that I feel I can contribute by encouraing others along some lines while I, too, am encouraged in areas I never thought of attempting."

PLAYING OR PLEASURE — Tulie Bennett, recently chosen Handicapper of the Year by Stalwarts and Pals Club for Handicapped Persons, practices at her piano. Playing the piano is one of the interests Miss Bennett has cultivated although her handicap makes it uncomfortable to sit for any length of time.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

How times have changed! Now the colleges have courses in journalism. The student prepares for active newspaper work. He graduates with a degree for it. It is a profession.

C. S. DUDLEY

When I started work, in 1900, I don't think there were any courses in journalism. I know that many newspaper men and women had college degrees, but as I recall they were not trained for newspaper work. I think most newspaper workers had aspiration for success in some field of literature and worked as reporters while trying their luck that way.

At any rate, the word "journalism" had a different meaning than today. It was applied to writers of editorials or other branches of creative or critical newspaper work, not the reporting of news. I can remember some reporters being laughed at for putting on airs when they called themselves journalists. They were, I think considered newspaper workers and that was about all, except in the matter of writing.

On some papers much was made of good writing. But it seemed to make little difference whether the art was learned in college, or from reading, or acquired however it might be.

I remember a young man applying for work as a reporter and a city editor asking him if he thought he could write.

"Well, I believe pretty well," was his answer." I have a degree from — I can't now remember which college he mentioned.

"I don't care whether you ever went to school a day in your life," the city editor said. "I'll put you on the staff for a week and find out for myself if you can write. I'll not take snap judgment. I won't make up my mind till the end of the week. If I then conclude that you have promise as a writer a job is yours. If not, no job here."

I don't say this as applying at all to me. I started as a halfway copy boy, halfway reporter, and just managed, after several flops, to hang onto the fringes until I got to going. But these are my observations concerning other inexperienced persons I saw asking for newspaper work and making pretensions of ability.

'SAGE' SYSTEM

It uses an electronic digital computer that will not only spot and brand a hostile airplane in a matter of seconds, but will guide interceptors to the spot regardless of the target's speed or evasive action.

'Hawaii' May Become Biggest Movie Project

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Filming will start on Washington's Birthday for what may be the biggest movie project of 1965 — the $10 million "Hawaii."

The site of initial shooting: 150 miles above the Arctic Circle off Bodo, Norway. If that seems like a strange place to begin a film about the history of Hawaii, director George Roy Hill explains:

"We'll do the scenes there of the missionaries sailing through the Straits of Magellan en route from New England to the islands. The geography is very similar off Norway, and we will be near towns where the crew can headquarter. That wouldn't be possible at the straits."

Director Hill — "The World of Henry Orient" — and producer Walter Mirisch — "West Side Story" — discussed their monumental project at Mirisch Bros. headquarters. The filming will come 5½ years after the James Michener novel was purchased pre-publication.

Why so long a wait?

"We had an unfortunate start," explained Mirisch. "Fred Zinnemann worked on the picture for a long time, and he came to the conclusion that the story should be told in two pictures. We decided that wasn't feasible. The whole idea of two pictures being made and shown in tandem wasn't a commercial venture."

Zinnemann left the project and Hill was enlisted. But the weighty Michener tome may still end up as two films.

"We'll take the story from prehistoric times up to about 1862," Hill explained. "That will include the Polynesian period, the story of the missionaries, some of the Chinese and a little of the Japanese.

"If the picture is well received, the rest of the novel might be put into another film. We would jump to a whole new generation in the story."

The film makers said the Norwegian shooting would include none of the principal cast members — Julie Andrews is the first to be signed.

In my column today, the first in the new year, let us try to apologize or explain for the several errors that have crept in during the last few weeks.

Firstly, in Mrs. A. R. Buckley's extracts of her club paper we mixed up with the South Park's story she had given us some sheep herders' experiences in the East. Mrs. Buckley feared that anyone who had ever been in Colorado's vast area would know there could not have been any such rivers of water as was told. So we apologize for that error.

Secondly, in Mr. Jack Buckley's letter last week he apologized for his poor typing as his eyes were not too good at present. In reply to that we want to remark that if all copy came to an editor as well written as was his, we could all dance for joy. There were errors in it but due only to a line-o-type for which we have no blame. Printers pies are not served up by us.

Because the Cock's children were my former pupils I well remember how the name was spelled on my school register, but some how the helper I had that day thought the name would be spelled "Cox" it appeared as Cox in the Sunday paper, and for this I am very very sorry.

Following are a few items from our friends and readers of this newspaper, our long time friend the Colorado Springs Gazette. From Mrs. Florence Donnelly we have this:

"Dear Dora:

"A line to tell you how I enjoy your columns. I was especially pleased with the one in the paper two weeks ago, telling how you and your sister played with buttons. Because, I did too, and I did not know anyone else ever did. I had a cocoa can filled with all sorts of buttons, some beautiful ones, and they wore the Sunday go-to-meeting clothes. The plain buttons wore the everyday clothes of the person they represented.

"I sat down on the floor to play and the flowers or other figures in the ingrain carpet were the houses of the different families. All by myself I played by the hour as I had no sisters.

"And, did you also play with flowers that way? My mother had many blossoms in her garden and I used to gather different ones and play with them. Each kind represented some person. Pansies were one of my favorite flowers, also petunias and they were families I especially liked. I did not like marigolds so they were a family I did NOT like.

"When I read your articles about your childhood days those memories come flooding back. Such happy days they were! The children now-a-days seem to have so much — so many play things but I doubt if they have any better times."

Glenn Jackson told his wife Violet last week that we had Mrs. Denis's name wrong until she told him there were two sisters, Bertha Denis and Adelaide Denis. Mrs. Jackson was formerly Violet Sanders, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Sanders, pioneers of the region. Glenn should have found out long ago that men's wives often know as much or more than they do.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were owners and editors of the Estes Park Trail an excellent newspaper in the Park.

The Rev. Mr. A. Skinner, son-in-law of Mrs. May Cocks Rowe tells us that long experience with newspapers, lets him know that newspapers often make mistakes.

So with your help and patience lets hope to have only a few errors in our column during the new year of 1965 HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU ALL!

Injured Mountain Climber is Rescued

MEXICALI, Mexico (UPI) — U.S. military and civilian rescuers Friday carried to safety a San Jose, Calif. - man who suffered a broken leg while climbing a steep mountain peak in Baja, Calif.

Randolph Lawrence of Santa Maria, Calif., and Stuart Turner, 30, of Logan, Utah, were with Irvin when the accident occurred.

The rescue teams carried Irvin down the mountain in a litter to an Air Force helicopter, which had landed about one mile from the scene, some 70 miles south of Mexicali.

Nigeria Seeks Compromise In Politics

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Political leaders of Africa's most populous nation were desperately trying to negotiate a solution today to the government crisis triggered by Wednesday's controversial election.

President Nnamdi Azikiwe Friday canceled a broadcast whose advance text said he would resign rather than form a new government on the basis of the election.

He met with Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa and other cabinet members at the state house. A terse government announcement said "efforts were being made to bring about a compromise."

The ruling Nigerian National Alliance, backed mostly by supporters from the Moslem north and west, won a majority of seats in parliament but opposition parties, which draw their support from the south, boycotted the balloting.

Incomplete returns gave the National Alliance 173 of the 312 seats. The United Progressive Grand Alliance, a union of opposition parties, won 29 seats despite the boycott but progressive spokesmen have said their victorious candidates will resign.

"In spite of the solemn undertaking given by political leaders to conduct the electioneering campaign lawfully, a wave of violence and lawlessness has enveloped our beloved republic," the text said.

DU Gets Third NASA Grant

The University of Denver has received a grant of $100,800 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for graduate student research, Dr. Wilbur C. Miller, dean of the University's Graduate College, announced Tuesday.

The grant is to support advanced study in the space-related sciences and technologies.

To become effective in September, 1965, it is the third the DU graduate College has received from the space agency since 1963, totaling $324,000 thus far.

The grant will finance three years of study and research for six graduate students, to be chosen from the fields of chemistry, chemical engineering, psychology, metallurgy, electrical engineering and physics, Dean Miller said. It will provide educational costs and living expenses for each student, he said, and a cost-of-education allowance for the Universtiy.

NASA's purpose in providing the grants is to encourage the teaching and research contribution of good students in the space-related sciences toward U.S. objectives in the field of space.

Fiscal '65 Was Banner Year for Spending Here

How well did Colorado Springs residents make out, economically, in the past fiscal year? The figures for the period are now in.

They show how much was earned and spent per household in the local area and the degree to which the community as a whole participated in the general prosperity.

For the majority of local families, incomes were higher than before and more money was available for discretionary spending. As a result, it turned out to be a banner year for most retail businesses.

The findings are set forth in the annual fiscal - year survey conducted by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It gives comparable figures for every section of the country for the 12-month period ending June 30, 1964.

Retail stores in Colorado Springs, it shows, chalked up sales in the amount of $190,448,000, which topped the previous year's $166,913,000.

How large a volume this was is indicated by the fact that it represented .0753 per cent of the nation retail business whereas, on the basis of local population., its quota was only .0457 per cent of the national.

Solid gains were registered by most retail lines. Those selling automotive equipment set the pace, as they had done the year before.

Home appliances were also in the forefront. Electric clocks, automatic coffee makers and can openers, air conditioners, washing machines and other household conveniences were among the big sellers.

The increase in business activity is attributed chiefly to the steady rise in personal income, bolstered to an extent by the cut in taxes, and to the fact that the consumer was in a buying mood.

The report shows that net earnings in Colorado Springs in the year, after deduction for taxes, amounted to $176,217,000, as against the previous year's $168,134,000.

It was equivalent to an average of $6,081 in disposable income per local household.

The fact that sales were greater than income locally indicates that people from other areas do their shopping in the city.

Just how long business throughout the country will stay at the present level, how much better it will get, if any, and what promise 1965 holds forth, are matters of current speculation. Most economists feel that the next six months, at least, will be good ones.

Carson Ends First Decade With Completely New Face

The changing face and faces of Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) were a continuing top news story at the mountain post in 1964.

Construction is changing Ft. Carson's appearance more widely than at any time since World War II, completion of division mechanization has added concentration of tracked vehicles and reassignments have brought new personalities from top command to privates.

In January or February more than 6,000 soldiers reported for advanced individual for men who left late in 1963. training and as replacements Through the first six months of 1964, tracks and new weapons rolled in to move and equip the new Red Devils until mechanization was officially complete on June 25.

Announcement of the proposed acquisition of 80,000 acres in the area now known as the South 40 wasbig news for 1965 along with construction plans.

The command changed as Brig. Gen. Charles B. Smith and then Brig. Gen. M. N. Huston arrived as new assistant division commanders followed by the new chief of staff, Col. Albert H. Smith Jr.

The top changes were completed in August when Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun, reported in as the first commander of the officially mechanized 5th Division. He is the third commander of the new Red Diamond division which was activated almost three years ago.

Construction projects, from Butts Army Air Field to the northern boundary, added new dimension to the Ft. Carson skyline which will add next an extensive $10 million permanent barracks area. World War II temporary frame structures are bting torn down to make room.

Mobility was another 1964 characteristic both at home and away for division and post units. The Red Devils traveled to two major and two smaller field exercises along with post support units after field preparation at home.

First and last were amphibious exercises with the U.S. Navy and Marines on the southern California coast. The 1st Battalion,, 10th Infantry, left in the spring and 2,500 men of the 1st Brigade — minus the 1st of the 10th — tried their sea legs in November.

Exercise Desert Strike, covering 13 million acres of Arizona and California along the Colorado River, tested 10,000 Red Devils with 90,000 other soldiers and airmen under blazing sun and sand, dust storms and tricky river crossings.

Exercise Gold Fire drew 1,000 division and post troops to the Missouri Ozarks in October and November.

A new unit, the 2d Battalion, 35th Artillery, came quietly to Ft. Carson during the summer months but added its cannonades to the other big guns in its training test in November.

A Continental Army Command inspection earned high praise for the combat readiness of the 5th Division and special mention was made of the reveille formations with which Gen. Maroun began intensive unit inspections. CONARC stated that Ft. Carson and the 5th would be a model for future inspections.

Intensive training and mobility kept sports to intramural level but Carson's Mountaineers won the Fifth Army basketball crown and Fifth Army automatic rifle honors for the second year.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Army chief of staff, inspecting the division in January led a succession of distinguished visitors throughout the year including Dr. Leopolde Square, Argentine defense minister, and Maj. Gen. Charles E. Brown, Army chief of chaplains, who returned for the third religious training day.

Major construction projects costing more than $14 million were started or completed in 1964. They included continuation of Butts Field improvements, start of 280 quarters units for officer and enlisted families, the new Chapel Center and eight motor repair shops.

Closing of Camp Hale, Carson's two-mile high subpost near Leadville, renewed memories of the important part it played in training of the 10th Mountain Division for World War II combat in Italy. But it continues cold weather training until it is phased out in 1965.

As it changed, Ft. Carson marked its first decade as a fort having been promoted from Camp Carson in 1954.

DU Gets Third NASA Grant

The University of Denver has received a grant of $100,800 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for graduate student research, Dr. Wilbur C. Miller, dean of the University's Graduate College, announced Tuesday.

The grant is to support advanced study in the space-related sciences and technologies.

To become effective in September, 1965, it is the third the DU graduate College has received from the space agency since 1963, totaling $324,000 thus far.

The grant will finance three years of study and research for six graduate students, to be chosen from the fields of chemistry, chemical engineering, psychology, metallurgy, electrical engineering and physics, Dean Miller said. It will provide educational costs and living expenses for each student, he said, and a cost-of-education allowance for the Universtiy.

NASA's purpose in providing the grants is to encourage the teaching and research contribution of good students in the space-related sciences toward U.S. objectives in the field of space.

Fiscal '65 Was Banner Year for Spending Here

How well did Colorado Springs residents make out, economically, in the past fiscal year? The figures for the period are now in.

They show how much was earned and spent per household in the local area and the degree to which the community as a whole participated in the general prosperity.

For the majority of local families, incomes were higher than before and more money was available for discretionary spending. As a result, it turned out to be a banner year for most retail businesses.

The findings are set forth in the annual fiscal - year survey conducted by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It gives comparable figures for every section of the country for the 12-month period ending June 30, 1964.

Retail stores in Colorado Springs, it shows, chalked up sales in the amount of $190,448,000, which topped the previous year's $166,913,000.

How large a volume this was is indicated by the fact that it represented .0753 per cent of the nation retail business whereas, on the basis of local population,, its quota was only .0457 per cent of the national.

Solid gains were registered by most retail lines. Those selling automotive equipment set the pace, as they had done the year before.

Home appliances were also in the forefront. Electric clocks, automatic coffee makers and can openers, air conditioners, washing machines and other household conveniences were among the big sellers.

The increase in business activity is attributed chiefly to the steady rise in personal income, bolstered to an extent by the cut in taxes, and to the fact that the consumer was in a buying mood.

The report shows that net earnings in Colorado Springs in the year, after deduction for taxes, amounted to $176,217,000, as against the previous year's $168,134,000.

It was equivalent to an average of $6,081 in disposable income per local household.

The fact that sales were greater than income locally indicates that people from other areas do their shopping in the city.

Just how long business throughout the country will stay at the present level, how much better it will get, if any, and what promise 1965 holds forth, are matters of current speculation. Most economists feel that the next six months, at least, will be good ones.

Smoothing Frazzled Hair

We all seem to fall apart during the holidays when we want to look our best. Aside from pacing ourselves when we shop or entertain, we can simplify certain grooming routines to offset a frazzled look.

Your hair makes a major difference in your appearance during family festivities, office parties or neighborhood visits. Keep your hair neat and you have a jump on your holiday beauty worries.

Get a good haircut or trim now and have your hairdresser give you a simple style, one that you can manage easily with comb and brush without professional care.

Erik of Breck, special stylist for the hair care manufacturer, offers these hair care suggestions for the holidays (and after):

— Keep your hair neat. Select a hair spray that does not leavy a sticky film. Spray it on and then brush your hair thoroughly. This should leave your hair looking clean and shining.

— Run a comb through cotton, picking up a lot of cotton in the teeth. Then comb your hair with this to remove dust and dirt that tends to cloud your hair.

— Don't wipe your makeup off into your hair line. Use cotton pads or a clean washcloth to remove make-up from this area. The slightest bit of make-up causes a wilted or grubby look.

— Keep your brush and comb clean. These grooming tools collect dust, hairset, hairspray and dandruff each time you use them. If you do not wash them throughly in warm suds and water or ammonia and water, you rebrush dirt through your hair.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I found that after I fried something, I had to clean the other burners on my stove because of grease spatters.

I got a bit weary of that (naturally), so now I use those throw-away pie tins to cover the other burners and they stay clean and spatter free.

The tins can either be cleaned . . . which is much easier to do than cleaning the burners . . . or can be thrown away. After all, they're free! —Mamy B.

Or you could use those rectangular foil tins and have almost the entire surface of the stove protected from that spattering grease. How about that? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

As a mother of seven children, I finally found a way to keep little girls' half-slips from slipping down and spoiling the effects of a pretty stand-out dress.

I measure a piece of white quarter-inch elastic over each shoulder, long enough to reach the front and back of said slip. Then I put a hook and eye on the slip and the elastic. When the child is sitting, the elastic will give; and when the child stands, the slip goes back into place.

The same idea will work if the child wears more than one slip at a time. It's sort of like suspenders. —Mrs. P. J. Cardin

Dear Heloise:

I would like to tell you my little trick for opening boxes.

I keep an ordinary wooden clothespin handy, and in place of my thumb, I press the tab with the split end of the clothespin, and then raise it up.

The box is opened quickly and easily — and no more broken fingernails or sore thumbs! —Mrs. M. Brown

Dear Heloise:

For those who have trouble eating breakfast:

While visiting with my grandchildren, I noticed that they were expected to eat soon after they got out of bed, and they had very little appetite.

So I suggested to my daughter that they all have to run up the road first — just for five minutes.

Incidentally, I went with them the first time but since I'm on a diet, I'll stay home from now on. —Mrs. Stella L. Burke

Dear Heloise:

Five members of my household are devout bookworms so book storage was a major problem in our house until the day I came across a discarded dresser.

I pulled the drawers out and found I had a bookcase built to order.

I removed the drawer pulls, stacked the drawers one on top of the other, painted the outside with gay enamel, lined the insides with adhesive - backed plastic, and presto — a wall of bookshelves!

Any old dressers, anyone? — Ann DiPaolo

Dear Heloise:

I have found that a chest-type freezer can be easily cleaned after defrosting by putting a clean bath towel on a wet mop stick. . . the kind with the spring head on it . . . and mopping the sides and bottom of the freezer with hot soda water. All surplus water can be mopped up like one would mop the floor.

I have found this to be a great help and hope it will help others. —V. D. H.

Kruse-Armstrong Nuptials Held in Cheyenne, Wyo.

A wedding of interest here took place recently in Cheyenne, Wyo., when Miss Charlene Kay Armstrong of that city became the bride of Thomas LaVerne Kruse of Colorado Springs The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Armstrong of Cheyenne. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne H. Kruse of 711 N. 30th St. Dr. John M. Pattison officiated at the ceremony which was held in the First Presbyterian Church. Tall candelabra were placed on either side of the sanctuary and baskets of white pom pons and carnations in two shades of pink were placed on the altar. Large bows of white satin ribbon designated the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire sheath of silk peau de soie, with bateau neckline and elbow length sleeves. The bodice was of lace which matched the lace covering a detachable chapel train. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion was caught to a matching pill box. She wore a silver necklace with pearl and diamond tear drop which was the bridegroom's gift, and her flowers were white butterfly orchids and stephanotis with ivy, arranged in a cascade.

Miss Suzanne Armstrong as maid of honor for her sister wore a floor length gown of velveteen, in empire style with bateau neckline and short sleeves. The waistline was banded with matching satin, with streamers at back extending to the hemline. Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Wilmschen, Miss Cheryl Cathcart and Miss Marilyn Brown. All wore gowns velveteen in shades of pink, styled like that of the maid of honor. Each attendant carried one long-stemmed red rose, with garlands of pink baby roses circling their beehive hair styles.

Miss Suzette Stivers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stivers and niece of the bridegroom from Colorado Springs, was flower girl. Her floor length frock of hot-pink silk organdy was styled with matching velveteen cummerbund, and she wore a garland of pink baby roses in her hair. She carried a small basket of pink rose petals.

Thomas M. Dairy of Colorado Springs was best man, and ushers were Robert France of Cheyenne; Edgar Prenzlow of Livermore, Calif., and Jim Reid and Ray Howells of Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Armstrong wore a two piece dress of persimmon-shade crepe with matching accessories and short white gloves. Mrs. Kruse chose a dress of aqua chiffon with bracelet-length sleeves and hat of matching velvet roses with veil. Both wore corsages of white roses and carnations.

A reception in the West Coach room of the Hitching Post Inn followed the ceremony. The three tier cake was decorated with pink and red roses and centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom. White mums and French ivy encircled the cake and tapers in silver candelabra lighted the table. Champagne glasses and a silver cake knife used at the reception were gifts to the couple.

Following a short honeymoon at Las Vegas, Nev., the couple lives at 504 Melton St., Apt. 8, Cheyenne. The bride's traveling costume was a white mohair suit, red accessories and matching velveteen coat.

The bride is a graduate of East High School, class of '62 and attended the University of Wyoming. She is employed in the Internal Revenue Office in Cheyenne.

The bridegroom received his Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration at Colorado State University, class of '61. He is also employed by the Internal Revenue Service.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

Opening lead: Ace of ♣

Declarer's attention was focused on the wrong suit in today's hand and the loss that resulted ran into several figures. His blind spot took the form of a common bridge affliction which bears a little investigation.

North had a sound opening bid of two no trump, holding 22 high card points. South decided that if his partner had three aces he was willing to undertake a slam commitment, so he checked for control via the Gerber convention by responding with four clubs. North's four no trump reply shows three aces, so South proceeded forthwith to six spades.

The opening lead by West was the ace of clubs and, after an examination of the dummy, he could see nothing better to do than continue with another club. Declarer was presented with an immediate discard. Staring at what appeared to be a certain heart loser, he discarded the three of that suit. After drawing trumps in two rounds, South cashed the king of diamonds and then led the deuce. When West showed out declarer had to concede another trick for down one.

South should have concentrated his original efforts on the diamond suit since it must provide the source for his 12th trick. On the king of clubs he should discard the deuce of diamonds. After drawing trump, he cashes the king and ace of diamonds and ruffs a third round in his hand. The king of hearts provides access to the dummy to ruff out East's queen of diamonds, and establish the seven for a discard of declarer's losing heart.

Roast Pork Loin Potatoes
Pineapple Butternut Snap Beans
Coffee Gelatin Parfait

Pineapple Butternut

1 butternut squash, about 1¾ pounds
1¼ to 1½ cups boiling water
Salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Cut squash in half; remove seeds and stringy portion. Pare, cut into ¾-inch cubes — there will be about 5½ cups. Turn squash, boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt into a 10 - inch skillet; boil gently, covered, just until tender and only a few tablespoons of water remain. Distribute pineapple and butter, cut into bits, over squash and add more salt if desired. Mix carefully so as not to mash squash. Reheat gently, shaking skillet several times. Makes 8 servings.

To mend a rip in sheer curtains, apply colorless nail polish then press to torn edges together with your fingertips. It is easy to do and the mend hardly shows.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I found that after I fried something, I had to clean the other burners on my stove because of grease spatters.

I got a bit weary of that (naturally), so now I use those throw-away pie tins to cover the other burners and they stay clean and spatter free.

The tins can either be cleaned . . . which is much easier to do than cleaning the burners . . . or can be thrown away. After all, they're free! —Mamy B.

Or you could use those rectangular foil tins and have almost the entire surface of the stove protected from that spattering grease. How about that? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

As a mother of seven children, I finally found a way to keep little girls' half-slips from slipping down and spoiling the effects of a pretty stand-out dress.

I measure a piece of white quarter-inch elastic over each shoulder, long enough to reach the front and back of said slip. Then I put a hook and eye on the slip and the elastic. When the child is sitting, the elastic will give; and when the child stands, the slip goes back into place.

The same idea will work if the child wears more than one slip at a time. It's sort of like suspenders. —Mrs. P. J. Cardin

Dear Heloise:

I would like to tell you my little trick for opening boxes.

I keep an ordinary wooden clothespin handy, and in place of my thumb, I press the tab with the split end of the clothespin, and then raise it up.

The box is opened quickly and easily — and no more broken fingernails or sore thumbs! —Mrs. M. Brown

Dear Heloise:

For those who have trouble eating breakfast:

While visiting with my grandchildren, I noticed that they were expected to eat soon after they got out of bed, and they had very little appetite.

So I suggested to my daughter that they all have to run up the road first — just for five minutes.

Incidentally, I went with them the first time but since I'm on a diet, I'll stay home from now on. —Mrs. Stella L. Burke

Dear Heloise:

Five members of my household are devout bookworms so book storage was a major problem in our house until the day I came across a discarded dresser.

I pulled the drawers out and found I had a bookcase built to order.

I removed the drawer pulls, stacked the drawers one on top of the other, painted the outside with gay enamel, lined the insides with adhesive - backed plastic, and presto — a wall of bookshelves!

Dear Heloise:

I have found that a chest-type freezer can be easily cleaned after defrosting by putting a clean bath towel on a wet mop stick. . . the kind with the spring head on it . . . and mopping the sides and bottom of the freezer with hot soda water. All surplus water can be mopped up like one would mop the floor.

I have found this to be a great help and hope it will help others. —V. D. H.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

Opening lead: Ace of ♣

Declarer's attention was focused on the wrong suit in today's hand and the loss that resulted ran into several figures. His blind spot took the form of a common bridge affliction which bears a little investigation.

North had a sound opening bid of two no trump, holding 22 high card points. South decided that if his partner had three aces he was willing to undertake a slam commitment, so he checked for control via the Gerber convention by responding with four clubs. North's four no trump reply shows three aces, so South proceeded forthwith to six spades.

The opening lead by West was the ace of clubs and, after an examination of the dummy, he could see nothing better to do than continue with another club. Declarer was presented with an immediate discard. Staring at what appeared to be a certain heart loser, he discarded the three of that suit. After drawing trumps in two rounds, South cashed the king of diamonds and then led the deuce. When West showed out declarer had to concede another trick for down one.

South should have concentrated his original efforts on the diamond suit since it must provide the source for his 12th trick. On the king of clubs he should discard the deuce of diamonds. After drawing trump, he cashes the king and ace of diamonds and ruffs a third round in his hand. The king of hearts provides access to the dummy to ruff out East's queen of diamonds, and establish the seven for a discard of declarer's losing heart.

Pineapple Butternut Snap Beans
Coffee Gelatin Parfait

Pineapple Butternut

1 butternut squash, about 1¾ pounds
1¼ to 1½ cups boiling water
Salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Cut squash in half; remove seeds and stringy portion. Pare, cut into ¾-inch cubes — there will be about 5½ cups. Turn squash, boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt into a 10 - inch skillet; boil gently, covered, just until tender and only a few tablespoons of water remain. Distribute pineapple and butter, cut into bits, over squash and add more salt if desired. Mix carefully so as not to mash squash. Reheat gently, shaking skillet several times. Makes 8 servings.

To mend a rip in sheer curtains, apply colorless nail polish then press to torn edges together with your fingertips. It is easy to do and the mend hardly shows.

Was Your Boy Alone That Cold Dark Morning?

The red and yellow signal lights were blinking as we drove through the darkness of a cold winter morning toward a local bus station.

Each member of the family felt the strain of rising at 5 a.m., however, this was a special occasion that every member wanted to share. It was the day Mike, would leave his home and friends for a bus ride to a destination no one could predict; for a period of two years.

He was answering his nation's call to military training, and he was told he would be a member of the finest Army in the world.

Mike, full of uncertainty and fear kept glancing at the clock that ticked closer to his departure time, then looked at us. Yes! we were there and because we were, he knew we cared.

He knew that out of all the uncertainty ahead he could be certain of the love his family held for him.

We had said good-by and with a few tear-filled eyes were on our way home when the youngest, now 15, said, "Dad did you notice, there weren't any other parents, sisters, brothers, or even friends there to say goodby to the other 20 boys leaving on that bus this morning.

Was your boy alone that morning?

Nine From Springs Learn the Navy Offers More Than 'Deck Swabbing'

The lure of the sea. . .and further education were the primary reasons why eight sailors and one "Wave" — all of Colorado Springs — enlisted in the U. S. Navy. All nine, who were home on Christmas leave, have reported to the Navy Recruiter that they're getting just what they enlisted for. . . a chance to go to sea and training in their selected fields.

Of the nine, one is attending college; two are in the submarine nuclear fields and have at least another year and a half of schooling before they'll be assigned to the Fleet; two have completed service schools and have been ordered to naval operating units; three are still attending various training schools, and another is with the Naval School of Aviation Medicine.

Now a "freshman" at Purdue University, 22 year-old Marvin W. Kidder is majoring in electrical engineering. He enlisted in the Navy in August 1960 as an airman recruit. Last year he competed with 1,200 sailors in the Navy Enlisted Scientific Education Program. He was one of 312 sailors selected to attend one of 22 colleges and universities participating in this program.

According to Kidder, in four years — by attending classes throughout the year — he will be six hours short of obtaining his master's degree. He feels certain that he'll be able to complete his full education through the Navy. Upon his graduation he will attend the Naval Officer Candidate School for his commission as a line officer.

Kidder now holds the rating of aviation electronics technician second class. He receives all pay and allowances while attending Purdue. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kidder of 2015 N.Nevada Ave. He graduated from Palmer High School in 1960.

Twenty year old Charles H. Kelly Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kelly Sr., of 114 West Navajo, enlisted in the Navy Guided Missile School at Damneck, Va. Prior to entering this six-month school he completed basic submarine training at New London, Conn.

Upon completion of the missile school he will be assigned to a fleet ballistic submarine. He now holds the rating of missile technician third class. He was promoted to this grade on December 16, as a result of his high academic standing in the Guided Missile School.

It's the submarine service nuclear power field for Richard H. Nelson. This 19 year-old sailor will be attending Navy and nuclear power schools for at least another year. Nelson has already completed Electrician's Mate Class "A" School at Great Lakes, Ill., and Submarine School at New London, Conn. After his Christmas leave he will support to Mare Island, Calif., for six-months of Nuclear Power School. From there he will spend another six-months at a nuclear prototype school.

He is the son of Mrs. Emma Nelson of 2327 N. Union. Nelson graduated from Wasson High School in June 1963.

Dennis S. McMahon, 18, also has great hopes of becoming a submariner. He enlisted in July 1964 under the Nuclear Power Program. As a fireman apprentice he is now attending the Machinist's Mate Class "A" School at Great Lakes. According to McMahon, he expects to attend the Nuclear prototype school at West Milton, N. Y. after Class "A" School. On top of all of this training, he'll attend Submarine School before his assignment to the Fleet.

McMahon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. McMahon of 77 Marland Road. He graduated from St. Joseph's Military Academy last June.

"Wave" Hospitalman Elizabeth L. Alenius, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Alenius of 1317 La Paloma Way, is now serving on the Staff of the Naval School of Aviation Medicine, at Pensacola, Fla. She is assigned to the Department of Cardiology.

Hospitalman Alenius graduated from Cheyenne Mountain High School in June 1961. Eight months later she enlisted in the Navy.

Elizabeth plans on "shipping over" for six years when she returns to duty after Christmas leave. She is also requesting to attend the Navy Electrocardiogram School at the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md.

This 19 year-old sailor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Kotwica of 2617 E. St. Vrain.

Interior Communication's Electrician Glenn W. Everson, 18, is "sea going" bound. After his leave here, he is to report to the oiler USS Ponchatoula, based at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Everson enlisted in the Navy in July 1964 and has just graduated from the Interior Communication's Class "A" School in San Diego, Calif. Prior to reporting to his ship, he will spend two-weeks in San Diego, attending Motion Picture Operator School.

Last year 22 year old Ronald E. Van Natten decided to study electronics. He enlisted in the Navy in May 1964 under the High School Graduate Training Program in the electronics field. After completing "boot" training he was sent to the Navy Electronics Class "A" School at Treasure Island, Calif.

Seaman apprentice Van Natten is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Van Nattan of 1921 Carlton Ave. He graduated from Wasson High in 1960.

Seaman apprentice Larry W. Widerstein, 18, is "striking" (training for) Gunner's Mate. After he comples his recruit training next month, he will be assigned to the Fleet for on-the-job training.

Wiederstein enlisted in October. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Widerstein of 3442 W. Pikes Peak.

Children's Art Classes Resume At FA Center

The second term of the Children's Art Classes of the Fine Arts Center begins this week and ends May 30. New pupils wishing to register may do so on the days of the classes from 3:30 p.m. or on Saturday morning before 9 and between 10 and 10:30 a.m.

There will be a slight change in the schedule in which the Monday class will be resumed. The entire schedule is as follows: 8 to 10 yr. olds — Monday 4 p.m..; 5 to 7 yr. olds — Wednesday 4 p.m..; 11 to 13 yr. olds — Friday 4 p.m..; 6 to 10 yr. olds — Saturday 9 a.m.; 11 and up — Saturday 10:30 a.m.

Advanced workers may come Saturdays from 9 to 12:30 and work on their own. To inform those who are new to our city of this offering of the Fine Arts Center — these classes are for all children who enjoy art. It is as enjoyable for children possessing a great skill as for those who merely like to express themselves through art experiences.

The program is a creative program in which the child puts forth his thoughts and feelings with guidance of an inspirational rather than a dictatorial manner.

It is not a rigidly planned procedure of lessons which are repeated every 12 weeks, but rather the program flows along with repetition of drawing, painting, printmaking, pottery, and crafts often enough for some skill to result. Many times the result is not in the product, but in the character of the child.

The fee is $5 for 12 lessons. This includes (but does not cover the cost) of materials usd. The Fine Arts Center provides the finest materials procurable and in furnishing this material the children have much greater freedom of expression than if they bought it themselves. In addition to this they learn to care for the equipment properly.

Three Attacks Against Viet Americans Noted

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Communist terrorists started the new year with three separate attacks on Americans in the Saigon area, an American military spokesman revealed Saturday.

They shot at American water skiiers on the Saigon River, but missed. They wounded a U. S. Navy officer with a grenade when he motorcycled through the suburbs to investigate the shooting. They threw another grenade at the home of an American civilian government employe, but only succeeded in damaging his concrete fence.

The terrorists' first casualty of 1965 was Navy Cmdr. M.D.J. Turley of Annandale, Va.

He rode to a suburban sports club to investigate the shooting at the water skiiers. On the way back, two Vietnamese threw a grenade at him.

It bounced across the road and into a canal where it exploded. Turley was cut on the forehead and left arm, but was not knocked off the machine. He continued into the capital for first aid. His wounds were not serious enough to require hospitalization.

Looking at Hollywood

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM TELLS HEDDA ABOUT FIRST FILM

Hollywood — This is the season for catching up with old friends. I sat beside Maxie Rosenbloom on the plane to San Francisco. He was en route to Minneapolis to do a couple of weeks in a night club. "Why do you work so hard?" I asked. "You look mighty prosperous." . . . "A couple of pals need help and they're gonna get it," he said. "You worked in my first picture, 'Nothing Sacred,' which Bill Wellman directed. It starred Carole Lombard, and she had to do battle with her leading man, so David Selznick paid me $500 a week for two weeks to teach her how to box. She would have made a fine boxer if I could have gone on with the lessons. I asked if I could do one bit of acting. Mr. Selznick said, 'Well, get in there and we'll turn the camera and see what you can do.' I picked up a telephone, folded up my ear, made a face and talked to a pal. That bit got me a contract at Warner's.

"The studio thought I was very funny, but couldn't understand me," Slapsie continued. "They sent me to the Max Reinhardt school to learn to speak English. I was there six months. Then my English was too good, so they fired me. But I made many pictures after that and had my own night club on Wilshire boulevard for nine years. The biggest stars in the business went from there into movies. That's where producers saw Martin and Lewis first. They were a riot. They started at $250 a week, but their salary kept going up and up until I couldn't afford them. Hal Wallis could. Lena Horne played there. Name any of them—they played for me." . . . As the plane was on the phone said, "I'm Eleanor Hopper—I'm in the next room." I hadn't seen her in years. Her late husband, Charles, helped develop Bel Air. She went up to visit a son and daughter, both married with children. Her son is a doctor on the staff of a big hospital. The Hoppers lived in an English manor house in Beverly. They built a theater on the top floor where the children gave performances, and another house on the property with a huge playroom and underneath a beautiful bedroom where Eleanor could get away from it all. I went to a New Year's do there years ago. They sold the big house to the Arthur Rubinsteins. When they moved to Paris, Frank Ross bought it, tore it down, and put up a modern house. The playroom was bought by Ingrid Bergman. That's where she, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, and Pia lived until she went off with Roberto Rossellini.

Before I left the Burlingame Country club for home, a voice resisted him, and our fellow landing, Slapsy said, "Give me passengers were in hysterics.

Before before I left the Burlingame Country club for home, a voice resisted him, and our fellow landing, Slapsy said, "Give me passengers were in hysterics.

Lucille Ball called to tell me about her holiday. She, Gary Morton, the two kids, a maid, and 18 pieces of luggage went to Squaw valley, and for four days Lucy sat on the luggage and looked at the rain. Then caught the first plane out for home. Now she's in Palm Sprngs and hoping the rain won't follow. . . Arthur Godfrey arrives Monday to do a show with Lucy—a musical with special lyrics. I hope when he's here, he'll meet Walt Disney. Those two have got to get acquainted. . . . . One of Lucy's former writers, Madelyn Martin (now Mrs. Dick Davis), sent a picture of their five children with this note: "You can see my five reasons for not getting bored here in Marion, Ind. Dick says I may have to go back to work to get a rest."

Peace Corps Tests Set Here For Saturday

At 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, January 9 the Peace Corps Placement Test will be given at the Colorado Springs Main Post Office, Nevada and Pikes Peak Avenues.

Approximately 800 other Civil Service testing centers throughout the United States will be administering the test on this same day, at 8:30 local time. It makes no difference where the Peace Corps applicants take their test and there is no need to register ahead of time.

Applicants should bring along a completed Questionnaire unless one has already been sent in to Washington. The Questionnaire forms are available at most post offices, from the Peace Corps Liaison on Campus or college placement offices, or they can be obtained by writing the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C., 20525.

There are two parts to the Peace Corps Placement Test: a general aptitude test and a modern language aptitude test — for which knowledge of a foreign language is not necessary. Applicants should figure on about one and a half hours at the testing center, unless they wish to take the Spanish or French achievement test. For this optional test, another hour should be added.

No passing or failing marks are given out, nor will the applicants ever learn their scores. The results are used, with the character references and Questionnaires, to estimate the applicant's potential for completing the intensive training program and their ability to be effective Volunteers overseas.

Peace Corps applicants must be American citizens at least 18 years old. Married couples are eligible if they have no dependents under 18. A college degree is not necessary, but it is advantageous to complete college unless one has acquired a special skill. Many "blue collar" skills are now being requested by foreign countries.

He Gets Three Now for His Money

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Each year Kenneth Albert Miller gives about $100 in coins to the first New Year's Day baby named Kenneth born in the Louisville area. This year he gets three for his money.

It all started because Miller, 61, a supper club host, got a handful of Indian head pennies in change in 1943. He said the pennies started him saving change and at the end of that year he had a gallon jar of coins. He decided to give the coins to the first baby named Kenneth born each year in this area.

Miller will present three gallon jars of coins to Kenneth Patrick McDaniel, Kenneth Chad Lindley and Kennethia Gale Howlett. Each jar contains about $100, he said today.

The McDaniel youngster was born at one second after midnight at a Louisville hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDaniel; the Lindley child came one second later at a New Albany, Ind., hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Lelie Lindley. And the Howlett girl was born at 4:50 a.m. at a Louisville hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William Howlett.

Comedy Writer To Address Knife & Forkers

Behind every successful radio and television show is a silent "partner," a fellow who never appears in the public eye, or on the screen, whose voice one never hears over the air. But if it were not for these fellows — in the trade called "gag-writers," — radio and television would be in a sorry plight. For it is these felllows with witty tongues, a way of saying things facetiously, a knack for creating humorous situations that actually "make" most of the big television and radio shows a success.

One of these fellows is Zeno Klinker, a man who when at work for Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen, and he has been doing this for a steady diet for 22 years, draws a weekly stipend that runs into five figures.

It is this delightful fellow who will be the guest of members of the Knife & Fork Club when it meets at dinner Thursday at the Broadmoor Hotel. His name: Zeno Klinker, and that may ring a bell. For in the Bergen show frequently appears Effie Klinker — she is Zeno's namesake.

Zeno is an aviation enthusiast. He has made it a hobby. For 25 years he has been flying a plane and recording humorous incidents that have occurred to him and to others. He's put them on film. With his natural bent for narration, he has come up with a program reported to be the most hilarious in the after-dinner circuit. It's called "Higher 'n a Kite." And in the Klinker tradition it quite likely will make others feel the same way.

Torrential Rains Flood Tunisia

TUNIS (UPI) — Torrential rains in southeastern Tunisia have flooded the town of Zarzis causing at least seven deaths and leaving more than 3,000 families homeless. Rescuers feared the death toll would rise.

Floodwaters from a swollen stream swirled through the sleeping village late Thursday night. A torrent six feet deep washed through the streets and houses, knocking down bridges, damaging highways and crops and drowning people and livestock in its path.

LA PAZ—The US has agreed to sell some $8 million worth of surplus wheat to Bolivia.

Automation Not as Big As Its Made Out to Be

The effect of automation on employment in the U. S. has been wildly and irresponsibly exaggerated — by businessmen as well as by social scientists and journalists. The fact in that automation has made sustantially less headway than the literature on the subject suggests.

Despite all the loose talk about "a new era in production," no fully automated process exists for any major product in any industry. Nor is any in prospect in the immediate future.

These are some of the principal findings of six months of research conducted by Fortune magazine as background for a series of articles on "Technology and the Labor Market." The project undertook to analyze the cuses of persistent unemployment and the problems involved in matching a changing labor force to rapidly shifting job requirements.

There have been many dire reports about automation's displacement of labor. Fortune finds them based more on myth than on fact. The question, it says, is not whether innovation causes displacement of labor; it always has. Rather, the real question is whether technological displacement is occurring at a substantially faster rate than in the past — at a rate so fast, perhaps, as to threaten a crisis of mass unemployment. The answer of the Fortune research economists is no.

The Fortune study is based on a rigorous statistical analysis of industry's employment shifts in recent years. And it cites some concrete examples of exaggeration to support its view of automation'n impact:

Ford's famous "automated" engine factory in Cleveland, said by Walter Reuther to be "built around computers," has in fact no computers and never had any.

The Grayson - Robinson clothing chain, cited to a congressional committee as using computers for "the complete merchandise and inventory-control function" in fact used computers in a far more restricted way. It is now out of business.

A Texaco refinery unit's computer control system held up to a Senate committee as replacing "half a dozen men," in fact has made no change in employment.

U. S. Industries, which reported sale of 50 of its "Transfe-Robot 200's" in 1961, still in fact has sold only a fraction of that number.

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM TELLS HEDDA ABOUT FIRST FILM

Hollywood — This is the season for catching up with old friends. I sat beside Maxie Rosenbloom on the plane to San Francisco. He was en route to Minneapolis to do a couple of weeks in a night club. "Why do you work so hard?" I asked. "You look mighty prosperous." . . . "A couple of pals need help and they're gonna get it," he said. "You worked in my first picture, 'Nothing Sacred,' which Bill Wellman directed. It starred Carole Lombard, and she had to do battle with her leading man, so David Selznick paid me $500 a week for two weeks to teach her how to box. She would have made a fine boxer if I could have gone on with the lessons. I asked if I could do one bit of acting. Mr. Selznick said, 'Well, get in there and we'll turn the camera and see what you can do.' I picked up a telephone, folded up my ear, made a face and talked to a pal. That bit got me a contract at Warner's.

"The studio thought I was very funny, but couldn't understand me," Slapsie continued. "They sent me to the Max Reinhardt school to learn to speak English. I was there six months. Then my English was too good, so they fired me. But I made many pictures after that and had my own night club on Wilshire boulevard for nine years. The biggest stars in the business went from there into movies. That's where producers saw Martin and Lewis first. They were a riot. They started at $250 a week, but their salary kept going up and up until I couldn't afford them. Hal Wallis could. Lena Horne played there. Name any of them—they played for me." . . . As the plane was on the phone said, "I'm Eleanor Hopper—I'm in the next room." I hadn't seen her in years. Her late husband, Charles, helped develop Bel Air. She went up to visit a son and daughter, both married with children. Her son is a doctor on the staff of a big hospital. The Hoppers lived in an English manor house in Beverly. They built a theater on the top floor where the children gave performances, and another house on the property with a huge playroom and underneath a beautiful bedroom where Eleanor could get away from it all. I went to a New Year's do there years ago. They sold the big house to the Arthur Rubinsteins. When they moved to Paris, Frank Ross bought it, tore it down, and put up a modern house. The playroom was bought by Ingrid Bergman. That's where she, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, and Pia lived until she went off with Roberto Rossellini.

Before I left the Burlingame Country club for home, a voice resisted him, and our fellow landing, Slapsy said, "Give me passengers were in hysterics.

Lucille Ball called to tell me about her holiday. She, Gary Morton, the two kids, a maid, and 18 pieces of luggage went to Squaw valley, and for four days Lucy sat on the luggage and looked at the rain. Then caught the first plane out for home. Now she's in Palm Sprngs and hoping the rain won't follow. . . Arthur Godfrey arrives Monday to do a show with Lucy—a musical with special lyrics. I hope when he's here, he'll meet Walt Disney. Those two have got to get acquainted. . . . . One of Lucy's former writers, Madelyn Martin (now Mrs. Dick Davis), sent a picture of their five children with this note: "You can see my five reasons for not getting bored here in Marion, Ind. Dick says I may have to go back to work to get a rest."

Peace Corps Tests Set Here For Saturday

At 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, January 9 the Peace Corps Placement Test will be given at the Colorado Springs Main Post Office, Nevada and Pikes Peak Avenues.

Approximately 800 other Civil Service testing centers throughout the United States will be administering the test on this same day, at 8:30 local time. It makes no difference where the Peace Corps applicants take their test and there is no need to register ahead of time.

Applicants should bring along a completed Questionnaire unless one has already been sent in to Washington. The Questionnaire forms are available at most post offices, from the Peace Corps Liaison on Campus or college placement offices, or they can be obtained by writing the Peace Corps, Washington, D.C., 20525.

There are two parts to the Peace Corps Placement Test: a general aptitude test and a modern language aptitude test — for which knowledge of a foreign language is not necessary. Applicants should figure on about one and a half hours at the testing center, unless they wish to take the Spanish or French achievement test. For this optional test, another hour should be added.

No passing or failing marks are given out, nor will the applicants ever learn their scores. The results are used, with the character references and Questionnaires, to estimate the applicant's potential for completing the intensive training program and their ability to be effective Volunteers overseas.

Peace Corps applicants must be American citizens at least 18 years old. Married couples are eligible if they have no dependents under 18. A college degree is not necessary, but it is advantageous to complete college unless one has acquired a special skill. Many "blue collar" skills are now being requested by foreign countries.

He Gets Three Now for His Money

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Each year Kenneth Albert Miller gives about $100 in coins to the first New Year's Day baby named Kenneth born in the Louisville area. This year he gets three for his money.

It all started because Miller, 61, a supper club host, got a handful of Indian head pennies in change in 1943. He said the pennies started him saving change and at the end of that year he had a gallon jar of coins. He decided to give the coins to the first baby named Kenneth born each year in this area.

Miller will present three gallon jars of coins to Kenneth Patrick McDaniel, Kenneth Chad Lindley and Kennethia Gale Howlett. Each jar contains about $100, he said today.

The McDaniel youngster was born at one second after midnight at a Louisville hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDaniel; the Lindley child came one second later at a New Albany, Ind., hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Lelie Lindley. And the Howlett girl was born at 4:50 a.m. at a Louisville hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William Howlett.

Comedy Writer To Address Knife & Forkers

Behind every successful radio and television show is a silent "partner," a fellow who never appears in the public eye, or on the screen, whose voice one never hears over the air. But if it were not for these fellows — in the trade called "gag-writers," — radio and television would be in a sorry plight. For it is these felllows with witty tongues, a way of saying things facetiously, a knack for creating humorous situations that actually "make" most of the big television and radio shows a success.

One of these fellows is Zeno Klinker, a man who when at work for Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen, and he has been doing this for a steady diet for 22 years, draws a weekly stipend that runs into five figures.

It is this delightful fellow who will be the guest of members of the Knife & Fork Club when it meets at dinner Thursday at the Broadmoor Hotel. His name: Zeno Klinker, and that may ring a bell. For in the Bergen show frequently appears Effie Klinker — she is Zeno's namesake.

Zeno is an aviation enthusiast. He has made it a hobby. For 25 years he has been flying a plane and recording humorous incidents that have occurred to him and to others. He's put them on film. With his natural bent for narration, he has come up with a program reported to be the most hilarious in the after-dinner circuit. It's called "Higher 'n a Kite." And in the Klinker tradition it quite likely will make others feel the same way.

Torrential Rains Flood Tunisia

TUNIS (UPI) — Torrential rains in southeastern Tunisia have flooded the town of Zarzis causing at least seven deaths and leaving more than 3,000 families homeless. Rescuers feared the death toll would rise.

Floodwaters from a swollen stream swirled through the sleeping village late Thursday night. A torrent six feet deep washed through the streets and houses, knocking down bridges, damaging highways and crops and drowning people and livestock in its path.

Automation Not as Big As Its Made Out to Be

The effect of automation on employment in the U. S. has been wildly and irresponsibly exaggerated — by businessmen as well as by social scientists and journalists. The fact in that automation has made sustantially less headway than the literature on the subject suggests.

Despite all the loose talk about "a new era in production," no fully automated process exists for any major product in any industry. Nor is any in prospect in the immediate future.

These are some of the principal findings of six months of research conducted by Fortune magazine as background for a series of articles on "Technology and the Labor Market." The project undertook to analyze the cuses of persistent unemployment and the problems involved in matching a changing labor force to rapidly shifting job requirements.

There have been many dire reports about automation's displacement of labor. Fortune finds them based more on myth than on fact. The question, it says, is not whether innovation causes displacement of labor; it always has. Rather, the real question is whether technological displacement is occurring at a substantially faster rate than in the past — at a rate so fast, perhaps, as to threaten a crisis of mass unemployment. The answer of the Fortune research economists is no.

The Fortune study is based on a rigorous statistical analysis of industry's employment shifts in recent years. And it cites some concrete examples of exaggeration to support its view of automation'n impact:

Ford's famous "automated" engine factory in Cleveland, said by Walter Reuther to be "built around computers," has in fact no computers and never had any.

The Grayson - Robinson clothing chain, cited to a congressional committee as using computers for "the complete merchandise and inventory-control function" in fact used computers in a far more restricted way. It is now out of business.

A Texaco refinery unit's computer control system held up to a Senate committee as replacing "half a dozen men," in fact has made no change in employment.

U. S. Industries, which reported sale of 50 of its "Transfe-Robot 200's" in 1961, still in fact has sold only a fraction of that number.

Voodoo Drums Bring Protest In London

LONDON (UPI)—The pounding of voodoo drums from an African diplomat's garden during the first three hours of the New Year sparked a stream of protests from his neighbors Saturday.

The drums allegedly were played at a party for African diplomats and British Foreign Office officials at the residence of the high commissioner for Ghana, Kewsi Armah.

About 600 guests, many wearing African dress, turned up to greet the new year with champagne and African delicacies. They jammed under a marquee erected in Armah's garden to hear the music of a Ghanian band.

Police said one woman notified them at 3 a.m. that the voodoo drums were frightening her children.

It was reported that other residents of the neighborhood, angry because they were informed the police were powerless to intervene due to the high commissioner's diplomatic immunity, tried to shout down the music in protest.

Board leader Oscar Moore, a Ghanian student, said: "We gave the party everything we had—jungle drums, waltzes and sure, the voodoo. Why not? It was a party for Africans."

State bank notes, used as currency in early times, disappeared shortly after passage of the National Bank Act of 1863 by the Congress.

Investigations Will Be Revived by Congress

By STEVEN GERSTEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two investigations that figured prominently in the last Congress and became issues in the 1964 election campaign will be revived in the new Congress.

A renewed examination is set by the Senate into the contract award of the F111 (formerly the TFX; fighter plane which made its maiden flight last month. Senators want to take a closer look at the controversial jet's cost and performance now that it is off the drawing boards and into the air.

Also promised is another round of inquiry into the sideline business activities of Robert G. (Bobby) Baker while he was secretary to Senate Democrats. For more than a year now the Senate Rules Committee has been holding on-again, off-again hearings on Baker and charges of influence peddling that have swirled around him.

New this session is a likely investigation into what Senate staff investigators believe is a vicious nationwide mail-order racket that peddles names of alleged teen-age "party-girls". The girls are often children of prominent families and had no knowledge their names were being so used, the report said.

And Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said he would propose to the House an investigation into the "Minutemen" organization. Rep. Charles S. Jelson, D-N.J., requested the inquiry, saying he understood the group encouraged members "to own firearms and to become proficient in the use of them and to force governmental policies by violent ends."

While the pre-session docket of investigations is still spotty, it appears that Senate sleuths will have a busier session than their House counterparts.

In addition to the TFX inquiry, the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee has started work on the national urban renewal program. The aim is to determine whether there have been improper practices, frauds, and waste in certain of its 350 individual programs.

The subcommittee also is working on preliminary background for an inquiry into contract and procurement irregularities and possible conflicts of interest in a branch of one of the armed services.

Investigators of the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee reported, meanwhile, they had discovered that a Midwest smut merchant advertises in the mail that he has an inventory of 10,000 names of teenage girls around the nation, complete with addresses and telephone numbers, who are available for "party" activity.

The investigators said the names are sold at a rate of $2 for 50 names. The names were said to be grouped by cities and states.

Two subcommittees, one in the Senate and one in the House, also plan to tackle the question of "government snooping" and invasion of privacy by telephone taps and other devices.

The House Judiciary Committee has plans to look into the administration of justice, including the impact of pre-trial news coverage.

But it is likely that the Bobby Baker investigation will attract the most attention.

Bomb Destroys 28 U.S. Automobiles

Other American cars, including some belonging to the agency for international development, were damaged.

BIGGEST TAX IS SALES

According to the Commerce Clearing House, sales tax accounted for one - fourth of the total 50 state tax take of $24.2 billion in the fiscal year ending June 1964.

Sales taxes produced the most revenue for 30 states. Income taxes proved the best revenue source in 13 states. Gasoline taxes led in six states. Severence tax, a tax on severing natural resources from the ground, was at the top in Louisiana.

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

Some people think New Year's Resolutions are old fashioned. But I think that if you write them down or even think about them it puts things in a new perspective. It makes you think, "well, maybe I could change." So here goes some resolutions for members of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club:

I resolve —

1. To attend all kennel club meetings.
2. To help in every way I can to uphold the aims and purposes of the club.
3. To try to get new members into the club.
4. To always be a good sport in the show ring, win or lose.
5. To do all I can to further my own particular breed of dog.
6. If there is any doubt of the state of my dog's health I will take him to a veterinarian.
7. To never breed my dog if there are any Congenital defects present such as cryptorchidism, monorchidism, dysplasia, etc., or if my dog has very bad faults as set down in the Standard for my breed.

Just think, if everyone kept these resolutions, we would have to rent a big hall for our club meetings, there would be no disagreements in the ring, all the veterinarinas would be rich and there would be no crippled dogs siring more cripples. Doesn't it sound too good to be true. I'm afraid that is just what it is, too good to be true, but it might set all dog owners, not just club members, to thinking.

A week or so ago I sent my poor harassed editor a column and somehow it got lost, thrown away or something but it never got to print. It's probably just as well becaust I am convinced now that I didn't know what I was talking about. I had started a series on hip dysplasia and now I find that there are so many theories on this subject that I am completely confused as are many of the men now working on this crippling affliction.

Last month, Harried Pross, Chuck Thoma and I attended a meeting of the Rocky Mountain German Shepherd Club in Denver. The speaker for the evening was Dr. Everett Corley who is now doing research work on canine elbow dysplasia at Ft. Collins Veterinary School of Medicine, Ft. Collins. Dr. Corey and his fellow workers are also doing research on hip dysplasia. The school has a colony of over 100 dogs, mostly German Shepherds. These dogs representserveral "families"or represents several "families" or lines of breeding.

Dr. Corley showed colored slides of malformed elbow and hip sockets of dogs who had either elbow or hip dysplasia. This is a cruel, crippling disease and eventually the dog must be put out of his misery.

I am a very poorly informed layman on this particular problem but I'm trying to learn so I can pass some of this information along to you. The only accurate description I can give of this ailment is that it is a malformation of these joints. It is something like trying to fit a square peg into a round hole. The result — a crippled dog in severe pain. It is generally accepted that dysplasia is hereditary. But then on the other hand two "clean" parents can produce some puppies with dysplasia. As you can see this is a very perplexing and frustrating problem.

Research is now going on in such places as Ft. Collins, Georgia, Texas, California and Minnesota. These hardworking doctors and their staffs have not yet found out why it happens or how it happens and as yet there is no cure.

It is the consensus among veterinarians that it is the breeders' problem. The breeder alone can wipe out this dreadful thing by not breeding dogs that are known to be afflicted. Yet there are some who refuse to recognize that there is such a thing as dysplasia, let alone in their own dogs. Again the almighty dollar raises its ugly head. Some say "who cares, I am just going to sell the pups anyway."

Dr. Corley has agreed to come to Colorado Springs in February as a guest of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club and speak on this problem. The public is invited to attend this lecture. I will announce the time and place at a later date.

I think every dog owner, whether he be the owner of a pure-bred or mixed breed owes it to future generations of ALL dogs to attend the lecture and recognize the seriousness of this problem.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Glenn Urban, 495-2143.

Vatican Denounces Massacare in Congo

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican lashed out through its press and radio media Saturday against the massacre of missionaries in the Congo as "indescribable violence and cruelty."

The strongly termed denunciations followed Pope Paul VI's New Year peace appeal directed mainly to the Congo where he said "still today brothers kill brothers, where still suppression, revenge and war are throught to be instruments of order and peace."

The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano reiterated the protest Saturday saying, "Still blood and martyrs, still crimes, still violence. Gratuitous crimes and indescribable violence and cruelty. This blood is most sad, this picture fills us with anguish."

Osservatore Romano said "the missionaries are struck who bring light and evangelical and human charity."

Voodoo Drums Bring Protest In London

LONDON (UPI)—The pounding of voodoo drums from an African diplomat's garden during the first three hours of the New Year sparked a stream of protests from his neighbors Saturday.

The drums allegedly were played at a party for African diplomats and British Foreign Office officials at the residence of the high commissioner for Ghana, Kewsi Armah.

About 600 guests, many wearing African dress, turned up to greet the new year with champagne and African delicacies. They jammed under a marquee erected in Armah's garden to hear the music of a Ghanian band.

Police said one woman notified them at 3 a.m. that the voodoo drums were frightening her children.

It was reported that other residents of the neighborhood, angry because they were informed the police were powerless to intervene due to the high commissioner's diplomatic immunity, tried to shout down the music in protest.

Board leader Oscar Moore, a Ghanian student, said: "We gave the party everything we had—jungle drums, waltzes and sure, the voodoo. Why not? It was a party for Africans."

State bank notes, used as currency in early times, disappeared shortly after passage of the National Bank Act of 1863 by the Congress.

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

Some people think New Year's Resolutions are old fashioned. But I think that if you write them down or even think about them it puts things in a new perspective. It makes you think, "well, maybe I could change." So here goes some resolutions for members of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club:

I resolve —

1. To attend all kennel club meetings.
2. To help in every way I can to uphold the aims and purposes of the club.
3. To try to get new members into the club.
4. To always be a good sport in the show ring, win or lose.
5. To do all I can to further my own particular breed of dog.
6. If there is any doubt of the state of my dog's health I will take him to a veterinarian.
7. To never breed my dog if there are any Congenital defects present such as cryptorchidism, monorchidism, dysplasia, etc., or if my dog has very bad faults as set down in the Standard for my breed.

Just think, if everyone kept these resolutions, we would have to rent a big hall for our club meetings, there would be no disagreements in the ring, all the veterinarinas would be rich and there would be no crippled dogs siring more cripples. Doesn't it sound too good to be true. I'm afraid that is just what it is, too good to be true, but it might set all dog owners, not just club members, to thinking.

A week or so ago I sent my poor harassed editor a column and somehow it got lost, thrown away or something but it never got to print. It's probably just as well becaust I am convinced now that I didn't know what I was talking about. I had started a series on hip dysplasia and now I find that there are so many theories on this subject that I am completely confused as are many of the men now working on this crippling affliction.

Last month, Harried Pross, Chuck Thoma and I attended a meeting of the Rocky Mountain German Shepherd Club in Denver. The speaker for the evening was Dr. Everett Corley who is now doing research work on canine elbow dysplasia at Ft. Collins Veterinary School of Medicine, Ft. Collins. Dr. Corey and his fellow workers are also doing research on hip dysplasia. The school has a colony of over 100 dogs, mostly German Shepherds. These dogs representserveral "families"or represents several "families" or lines of breeding.

Dr. Corley showed colored slides of malformed elbow and hip sockets of dogs who had either elbow or hip dysplasia. This is a cruel, crippling disease and eventually the dog must be put out of his misery.

I am a very poorly informed layman on this particular problem but I'm trying to learn so I can pass some of this information along to you. The only accurate description I can give of this ailment is that it is a malformation of these joints. It is something like trying to fit a square peg into a round hole. The result — a crippled dog in severe pain. It is generally accepted that dysplasia is hereditary. But then on the other hand two "clean" parents can produce some puppies with dysplasia. As you can see this is a very perplexing and frustrating problem.

Research is now going on in such places as Ft. Collins, Georgia, Texas, California and Minnesota. These hardworking doctors and their staffs have not yet found out why it happens or how it happens and as yet there is no cure.

It is the consensus among veterinarians that it is the breeders' problem. The breeder alone can wipe out this dreadful thing by not breeding dogs that are known to be afflicted. Yet there are some who refuse to recognize that there is such a thing as dysplasia, let alone in their own dogs. Again the almighty dollar raises its ugly head. Some say "who cares, I am just going to sell the pups anyway."

Dr. Corley has agreed to come to Colorado Springs in February as a guest of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club and speak on this problem. The public is invited to attend this lecture. I will announce the time and place at a later date.

I think every dog owner, whether he be the owner of a pure-bred or mixed breed owes it to future generations of ALL dogs to attend the lecture and recognize the seriousness of this problem.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Glenn Urban, 495-2143.

Vatican Denounces Massacare in Congo

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican lashed out through its press and radio media Saturday against the massacre of missionaries in the Congo as "indescribable violence and cruelty."

The strongly termed denunciations followed Pope Paul VI's New Year peace appeal directed mainly to the Congo where he said "still today brothers kill brothers, where still suppression, revenge and war are throught to be instruments of order and peace."

The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano reiterated the protest Saturday saying, "Still blood and martyrs, still crimes, still violence. Gratuitous crimes and indescribable violence and cruelty. This blood is most sad, this picture fills us with anguish."

Osservatore Romano said "the missionaries are struck who bring light and evangelical and human charity."

Investigations Will Be Revived by Congress

By STEVEN GERSTEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two investigations that figured prominently in the last Congress and became issues in the 1964 election campaign will be revived in the new Congress.

A renewed examination is set by the Senate into the contract award of the F111 (formerly the TFX; fighter plane which made its maiden flight last month. Senators want to take a closer look at the controversial jet's cost and performance now that it is off the drawing boards and into the air.

Also promised is another round of inquiry into the sideline business activities of Robert G. (Bobby) Baker while he was secretary to Senate Democrats. For more than a year now the Senate Rules Committee has been holding on-again, off-again hearings on Baker and charges of influence peddling that have swirled around him.

New this session is a likely investigation into what Senate staff investigators believe is a vicious nationwide mail-order racket that peddles names of alleged teen-age "party-girls". The girls are often children of prominent families and had no knowledge their names were being so used, the report said.

And Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said he would propose to the House an investigation into the "Minutemen" organization. Rep. Charles S. Jelson, D-N.J., requested the inquiry, saying he understood the group encouraged members "to own firearms and to become proficient in the use of them and to force governmental policies by violent ends."

While the pre-session docket of investigations is still spotty, it appears that Senate sleuths will have a busier session than their House counterparts.

In addition to the TFX inquiry, the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee has started work on the national urban renewal program. The aim is to determine whether there have been improper practices, frauds, and waste in certain of its 350 individual programs.

The subcommittee also is working on preliminary background for an inquiry into contract and procurement irregularities and possible conflicts of interest in a branch of one of the armed services.

Investigators of the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee reported, meanwhile, they had discovered that a Midwest smut merchant advertises in the mail that he has an inventory of 10,000 names of teenage girls around the nation, complete with addresses and telephone numbers, who are available for "party" activity.

The investigators said the names are sold at a rate of $2 for 50 names. The names were said to be grouped by cities and states.

Two subcommittees, one in the Senate and one in the House, also plan to tackle the question of "government snooping" and invasion of privacy by telephone taps and other devices.

The House Judiciary Committee has plans to look into the administration of justice, including the impact of pre-trial news coverage.

But it is likely that the Bobby Baker investigation will attract the most attention.

Bomb Destroys 28 U.S. Automobiles

Other American cars, including some belonging to the agency for international development, were damaged.

BIGGEST TAX IS SALES

According to the Commerce Clearing House, sales tax accounted for one - fourth of the total 50 state tax take of $24.2 billion in the fiscal year ending June 1964.

Sales taxes produced the most revenue for 30 states. Income taxes proved the best revenue source in 13 states. Gasoline taxes led in six states. Severence tax, a tax on severing natural resources from the ground, was at the top in Louisiana.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Economic Forecast For 1965

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and others similarly based, predict a GNP (gross national product) of between $656 and $660 billion. This figure is, of course, based on the governmental method of calculation which leaves many things to be desired. Included in the government calculation are such items as government spending and government subsidy, which tend to make the figures employed something other than realistic.

However, the GNP figure is the only one available. And, assuming the rate of inflation does not climb too rapidly, 1965 ought to be a good year, although it may not be as volatile and active in growth as 1964.

One of the major hopes expressed by a number of "experts" is that there will be some extensive cuts in excise taxes. If this materializes, there may be some substantial gain in the profit side of the ledger which will, in turn, stimulate more investment money and enhance our ability to provide jobs for some of the millions of young people in this country who are just now reaching age 18 and are thus actively seeking employment. If this excise tax cut does not occur, we can anticipate an increase in the number of persons out of work.

Some economists are thus hopeful that the government will reduce its taxing efforts by about $6 billion. This would, of course, provide financial stimulation in the market place. But, if the government continues to spend at increasing rates, as seems likely, the federal debt will increase by more than that sum and the effect of the stimulant will largely be lost in devalued dollars.

Certain of the economists who like to make long-range predictions make claims that increased government expenditures are actually good for the market and will serve as well as private spending to enhance our position. There is a morsel of truth in this observation for the market is essentially indifferent to the name of the customer and will respond when money is spent.

But the persistent fact which is not faced by most economists is that expanding government activity enlarges what we call the "public debt." And this debt has to be serviced with interest payments. And to service this debt, increased borrowing must ensue. Increased borrowings lead to inflation and the devaluation of the dollar which invariably occurs as government becomes an ever larger factor in the economic picture.

Our economy is now largely operative around the concept that Uncle Sam is the major financier of the world and certainly of this country. Many men like to gear their efforts to this concept for Uncle Sam is notoriously profligate in his handouts, and government contracts, since they are not checked by normal market place rules and safeguards, have a way of providing for big profits. Many a fortune these days has been made simply by doing business with Uncle.

But the fact still remains that the government has no money of its own. It obtains everything it gets from the taxpayers. And thus, the more the government spends, the more it must take away from those who pay the taxes. Thus, the large profit accruing to a man with a government contract is a profit taken by force and violence from the taxpayers of the country. The major problem, as we see it, and the one most economists are loath to consider, is the speed with which the government is taking over one segment after another of the private productive area.

Gradually the chains are being forged wherein we will all end as puppets of the monster state. If we finally arrive at the place where we will work where the government directs, at a wage the government dictates, according to the hours approved by the government, we will have surrendered our freedom in favor of a giant pater familias.

When this has occurred, our plight in this nation will be the same as the plight of the Russian peasant under Lenin. A voice of disapproval of a government policy will be equated with treason. And slavery and a declining economic system will be the inevitable result.

Time Marches

When you're through making changes, you are through making progress. No moment of time can be grasped and held, however gratifying it might appear to be.

HE'LL DECIDE WITH HIS BOTTOM DOLLAR

The Pundits

BY GEORGE BOARDMAN

An interesting facet of the progress being made by those who believe in the right of a man to stand on his own two feet in freedom involves the relatively large number of people who may properly be classed as pundits or teachers of the freedom philosophy.

Oddly enough, these pundits are occasionally members of some branch of the armed forces but more frequently are employed in government subsidized defense plants which provides an odd flavor for the situation since the pundits are part of the problem. Most of them recognize this fact, being amazingly honest in their critical analysis of the situation as a whole. While it's true that a few go to fantastic extremes to rationalize their own participation in the acceptance of stolen goodies, the majority qualify as solid critics of behavior since they include consideration of their own behavior.

It is difficult to estimate the number of people who have become teachers of the freedom philosophy. There may be more teachers than students, more critics than disciples, but don't get the idea that I am taking gentle kicks at the pundits. When you get right down to the bare facts, any human being who believes in the philosophy of freedom and behaves accordingly, becomes a teacher by example, if nothing else, and believe me, this is important.

I don't believe there has been any period in history when so many human beings were so avidly investigating a basic philosophical concept on an unorganized and individualistic basis. Each pundit has become an authority and this is logical since each individual person is the very best authority available when it comes to documenting private, individual beliefs, his own.

Among these pundits, you will find a high percentage of engineers, scientists, mathematicians and other professional people. They are not basically hero worshippers but when one of their number disappears, he automatically achieves a rather superior status among those who remain in the fold. The man who moves out and away from his customary haunts may not know about the superior status he has achieved, but his name possesses a kind of magic for those he left behind.

I've watched political movements and cults rise, fall and disappear, particularly in Southern California, but I've witnessed nothing which had a comparable, inherent strength, a strength which seems to draw more vigor from the fact of being totally lacking in organization. The rule book for collectivism has been thrown out of the window, the sky is the limit and individuals become consciously more and more individualistic and, at the same time, responsible.

Without undue optimism, I am certain the influence of the people to which I have been referring, will be felt increasingly during the year which is now right around the corner. This will be a positive, affirmative but non-authoritarian influence. This influence is not susceptible to inquiry by pollsters nor is it susceptible to the influence of polls and this creates a situation which is fraught with danger for politicians and all who are involved with political action.

The most intelligent politicians are deeply concerned about the statistics which indicate that almost 40 per cent of the adult population exhibited a remarkable disinterest in the late elections, from the beginning of the campaigns, right thru to the very end. Even now, they are beginning to beller, "If you people don't let us know what you want, how can we take care of things for you?" It will take awhile before bureaucrats, elected or otherwise, realize that intelligent human beings are capable of attending to their own wants, win, lose or draw.

Dawn just brought an unusually heavy load of mail from the post office and if I were to begin this column anew, it would reflect an even stronger note of optimism. A couple of the letters evoked an almost unpleasant emotional reaction because the messages conveyed mean so very much to us. We hope you all have better opportunities in 1965.

Good luck and good health to you in Freedom.

The Free Man and the Slave

We do not know why there should be any misunderstanding concerning the character and condition of a slave. A slave is considered by all and sundry to be a property, owned and controlled by a slave master.

It is important, apparently, to point out that a slave and a prisoner are two entirely different persons whose conditions are not the same. A slave is presumed to be a property owned by another. A prisoner owns himself but is temporarily or permanently restrained by a jailer.

Thus, a prisoner is fundamentally a free man who continues to own himself but whose freedom of action has been curtailed or, in some cases, removed almost totally. But a prisoner is an owner. He owns himself and can continue to own almost any amount of property while he remains a prisoner.

He does not own himself and he owns nothing else.

It should be underscored that no slave ever fulfills totally the theoretical condition of slavery. This would be contrary to nature. Even the slave must have clothes to wear, food to eat and some kind of shelter from the elements. He often requires medical attention. And many a slave has had a marvelous education and command of extensive knowledge.

So, in a practical sense, the slave does command certain properties. But, in theory, even these properties are entirely at the disposal of the owner of the slave. Thus, a slave owner is presumed to be a person who is rightfully endowed with such power over the slave that he can rightfully remove ALL property from the slave, even his food or clothing, and, if necessary, he can let the slave die, for the slave has no rightful claim on anything at all. Whatever he has, he has through the goodness, the kindness, the benevolence of his master and owner.

John Locke, in his second treatise on government, discusses the slavery condition and observes from history that slaves are usually the product of governmental action on the field of battle. That is, in war, a man may best another on the field of combat, at which point he is in a position to take the life of the man he has conquered. If he spares the life of the man, the man becomes his slave. And, in theory, the slave master is forever thereafter in a rightful position to take the life of the man which he spared as a result of mercy. Thus, anything that the slave is to have in the way of property comes from the slave master and from no other source.

This leads to the condition we have set forth as a property-less condition for the slave.

But in all practical aspects, there is no purpose in merely owning a slave. The single justification is that the slave becomes an economic unit and will produce for the master. Whatever the slave produces belongs to the master. If the master is to keep his slave producing, the master must permit the slave to have certain essential properties or the slave will die.

Thus, total slavery (total absence of property) is impossible. Take all property away from anyone and he will die. Even the property of his life is forfeit.

What John Locke omitted in his treatise was the observable fact that a government can create a slave through political action as well as upon the field of battle. If a government is in a position to decide, without fear of reprisal, that a citizen may keep only the bare essentials for himself, and all else that was produced may be taken by the government, then, in point of fact, the man has become as much a slave as if he had been purchased and a bill of sale rendered.

This is especially the case if the government, in addition, has the power to take the life of the person, or to demand his specific services, with or without recompense. If the person has no right as an owner, either to retain his life or any other property, and if his production is managed by the government so that only that portion of it the government believes he should have is retained by him, then the government has acted to enslave him.

The essential difference between a free man and a slave relates to the question of property ownership.

The Local Scene

More Good News

By RUFUS L. PORTER

After three days of almost continuous snowfall, it is preparing to start on the fourth, over here in the Blue River Valley. This is good news for the Springs. Water restrictions should be less severe next summer.

Except for the first 24 hours, the snow has not been heavy, but steady. Probably 20 inches of new snow has fallen altogether. The natives are getting tired of such "unusual weather." Snow plows are out 24 hours a day in a frantic effort to keep the roads open. But they haven't been entirely successful. Loveland and Hoosier passes have had to be closed a couple of times.

Twenty minutes ago it showed signs of clearing up, but it is now snowing in earnest again. I have been wanting to get up to the solar observatory at Climax and view the sun through the largest (16-inch) coronagraph in the world. But the sun has not been visible since we arrived in the area. I can only hope that the weather clears up before we have to head back for home.

We are not exactly snowbound, but it appears that we might be before this is over. Have to get out Whittier's poem of that title and read it to get in the proper mood to enjoy the weather.

The skiers ought to be enjoying it. See quite a few cars go by with skis on the roofs. There are a couple of young fellows here in Silverthorne who are having fun from the storm, and they are sharing their fun with everybody who wants to join it. They have a couple of those newfangled machines called "Skidoos," and how they do scoot around .

The "Skidoos" consist of a pair of skis mounted under the front end of a contraption that has a small, rubber caterpillar tread under the back end, powered by a small gas motor. There is a seat over the engine big enough for two passengers and the way those things get around over the snow is something to marvel at. Deep, soft snow bothers them, but they can run and jump over the banks built up by the snowplows and zoom around on the packed snow at 40 miles an hour. They are built low to the ground, and so long as there is plenty of snow to land in, it would be almost impossible to get hurt on one of these gadgets.

They are about the greatest fun machine I have seen in a long time. And they are practical in this country. Our son is thinking of getting one to make his 25-mile daily drive between his home and the observatory at Climax. In fact I'd like to stay over here the rest of the winter, just so I could ride one of the darn things.

This storm reminds me of the time Adam Lyre and I were prospecting in the mountains out of Paradise, Montana. We had a small cabin for shelter, with a door in the front and a window in the back. We had heard of those Montana blizzards and we brought our tools in from the diggin's every night, so we could find them if a blizzard hit us.

And one did. It was then we learned that we had placed the door at the wrong end of the cabin. The blizzard lasted two days and we were totally exhausted, we hadn't had a moment's rest in all that time. For the wind blew the snow through the keyhole in the door faster than we could shovel it out the window in the rear with broad-faced shovels.

If Adam had told you this tale himself, he would have exaggerated, embroidered and embellished it. I tell 'em straight.

The longer I write, the harder it snows. Guess I'll give up for the day.

A CLOSER LOOK

To the Editor:

How humanitarian the goal of insuring that everyone who works will have a pension when he retires! This is indeed a goal that is good and worthy.

Now, how does Social Security try to achieve this goal? Does it do so by moral means and by allowing choice as to whether or not one wishes to obtain a pension under the system? The answer to the latter is clearly a strong NO! You are FORCED to join; no choice whatsoever! What about the moral aspect of the Social Security method of pensions? Is it moral, immoral or what?

Most without thinking will shout, "Of course it is moral. I'm only getting what I paid for." Is that true, or is that deceit that has been spread for so many years that it is accepted without question?

Say one wishes to enroll in Social Security and, of course, does so. Then over the years taxes are taken from one's paycheck and monetary credits accrue to one's bookkeeping account. When the checks begin to arrive, one receives within the first five to six years what has been paid in during his working days. But after this period during which check receipts finally equal one's full payments, the checks should then cease if one is "to get what I paid for."

Naturally, the checks continue beyond this equalization point for as long as one lives. Just where, then, does this additional money come from? Certainly, on no basis whatsoever can it be claimed that one has paid in these additional amounts. Here a change of base occurs and rationalization takes place in which one NOW argues, "These additional funds are OWED to me. They are my RIGHT!"

Such rationalization may assuage one's conscience with a sense of ease, and thus obscure facing realities. The fact stands unchanged in spite of such deception that the additional funds have come from those persons who are currently paying into the system or will pay into it in the future. It is the money of the current and future payors that the recipient continues to receive while he assures himself this is his right.

Why does the recipient have a "right" to the money of the current and future payors? Has he provided them a service, made them a loan, invested in their business? No, none of these. Whence, then, arises the moral claim against the property (money) of others as belonging to him? There is no moral basis for such a claim, but there is a system of political coercion and force of legal theft to perpetuate the illusion of a claim.

Now, why does accepting the money of others as one's own constitute theft, and why is the term legal theft used? Webster says theft is taking unlawfully another's property without his consent. Morally, theft is taking another's property without his consent, whether lawfully or not. Legal theft then is theft (in the moral sense) that has been legalized. The latter is exactly the method of Social Security. The force of government is used to take the funds of all in the system, even those forced against their consent, and it also incurs an indebtedness obligation against future generations who haven't even entered the job market. Is this not taking others' current funds or future potential funds? If not, then what is such a process? A cover-all of taxation is not a sufficient smokescreen to transform theft into morality.

Just because the agency that takes the money by force is a legalized collective, doesn't alter the continuous commission of acts which if carried out by an individual would land him in prison as a thief. Even taxation is the utilization of the force of government to take from an individual his property without his consent. If this is not theft, then what is it?

Yet such a system as that of Social Security has been operating for a generation with the jubilant acceptance of the masses. Now, with 1965 on the horizon, masters of political brainwashing are proposing a new program to expand the theft and deceit by adding to Social Security, "medicare." This new benefit program will sharply increase the amount of theft and again soothe consciences with, "It is my right."

To all who believe and preach Social Security is a moral system and the way the goal should be attained, the principles of freedom contradict such false assumptions.

Social Security is political hokum. Social Security is a system of moral deceit and theft. It has bred a nation which accepts and sanctions theft as a way of life in the guise of good, and thereby has helped to destroy one of the most fundamental principles of freedom — private property ownership.

Freedom's path is self-responsible individuals choosing voluntarily to provide for themselves with THEIR OWN property to the degree of their capabilities and voluntarily subscribing to such programs as they deem fit. Will medicare-theft be added to the Social Security system of national theft which has already incurred claims against others' property to the amount of some 640 billion dollars — an amount of 320 billions of property of current payors and 320 billions of future payors as of 1962? Well, how do you think, as a slave or as a free man?

Who Are the Deprived?

By BUTLER SHAFFER

In a TV appearance the other day, LeRoy Collins, director of the federal government's Community Relations Service, spoke of the "economically deprived" minority groups and, naturally, suggested government programs to aid such people.

The phrase "economically deprived" is one of the collectivists' many "gooey" words that simply drip with all sorts of human compassion, but which are so loosely defined as to put more clouds than sunshine over an issue. When one talks of a person being "deprived," a rational man would do well to ask: "Who has been deprived of what and by whom?" Such a question will most likely elicit a blank stare followed by either an equally vague explanation of "slum area economics," or an attack upon your horribly inhumane tendencies, or both. "At any rate," so he will go on to argue, "what we need is a government program to give these people a greater share of the nation's wealth."

The concept of "redistribution of wealth" (and after all, this is all the collectivist has in mind) is based upon the assumption that "wealth" exists in a given quantity, is a constant, and that any man who "appropriates" to himself more than his "fair share," has thus taken advantage of other men. This premise is inconsistent with the nature of the real world which is that wealth does not simply "exist," but must be created by men. Anyone who assumes that a man who builds a steel mill has "deprived" another man of the opportunity to have had that steel mill, is suffering from more than economic illiteracy.

If we may, for purposes of explanation, assume a society of cave-men, let us imagine that one of the men — call him Thor — has been out hunting game every day and has always had a difficult time finding enough food. Let us also assume that this has been the common experience of the other members of the society as well. Thor, however, is not content to live out his remaining days in simply trying to obtain enough food to sustain himself, and thus devises a plan to make food-acquisition much easier. He decides to take some of the game he catches and, instead of killing and eating it, will put these animals in a pen and start raising them. To do this, he goes out into the woods, away from the others, and encloses a portion of the land. He then clears the land of trees and uses the timber to build pens, fences and the like.

In time, Thor will have enough animals in his pens so that he need not spend so much time hunting, as the other men do. With his additional time, he decides to do what would have been almost impossible before . . .cultivate some ground and raise vegetables. Thor is, by now, enjoying a relatively high standard of living, and has even begun work on building himself a crude little hut to live in.

Then one day one of his neighbors, Attila, realizes how much "wealth" Thor has acquired, and proclaims himself to be a "deprived" person. "Thor has exploited us," he cries, and sets out to form an organization called "Aborigines for Democratic Action," which will seek to "redistribute" Thor's property (in the "public interest") among the "economically deprived."

Now I ask you: Who has Thor deprived of what and how did he do it? Did he steal any of his wealth from other men? No, everything he acquired was as a result of his own efforts. Did he defraud anyone else? No, in fact he had no dealings whatever with any of the other men in building his pens and hut. He certainly did enjoy a higher standard of living than his neighbors, but he created that which permitted him this luxury. Yet here are the same cries of "exploitation" and "deprivation" that we encounter today.

History does provide us one lesson on this point: when you hear a man talking about the "deprived" and of the need to provide for a "more equal distribution of the wealth," you'd better head for home and lock up your valuables.

There is only one moral and just way to "distribute" the wealth, and that is according to the principle that the man who has produced it shall determine how it shall be used. The collectivistic system of "redistribution" is but a fancy name for "theft," and amounts to neither more nor less than forcibly taking from one man that which he has produced and giving it to a man who has not produced it. Under such a system, as we now have in America, the only "deprivation" that takes place is at the expense of the producers who are being deprived of their rightful property.

These Days

Trial by Mind Readers

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Are we entering a period in which decisions that have the force of law will be decided by mind reading? The precedents, so it would seem, are already being established, and when the suits arising from civil rights quarrels really begin to pile up we are apt, if precedents are followed, to see more than one good man suffer merely because he can't prove his motives to have been innocent.

The most flagrant recent instance of mind reading was that of the National Labor Relations Board in its decision against the General Electric Company. By a vote of four to one the board found that GE, in its 1960 negotiations with James B. Carey's electrical workers, was guilty of bargaining in bad faith. The charge against the company was that it had tried to "undermine" the union by criticizing its officials and by carrying its own bargain position directly to the GE employees. The GE claim is that Mr. Carey, the leader of the IUW, had been "frequently uninhibited" in expressing his derogatory opinion of some of the company's negotiators, and that it could hardly be called "disparaging" to describe the actualities of Mr. Carey's behavior in a company report to the workers. As for making any report in the first place, the right to do so is guaranteed by the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution to say nothing about the Taft-Hartley Act itself.

ASKING BIDDING

Aside from giving the employees a description of Mr. Carey's conduct at the bargaining table, GE had made a "fair and firm offer" to the union and had evidently described it as such. This, according to a majority of the NLRB, had the effect of eliminating the "ask and bid" or "auction" form of bargaining, and so served to "devitalize" negotiations. Now, it is clear that not even an oriental rug merchant could stay in business for very long if he didn't know the place where the "auction" approach ceases. But the fact is that GE acquiesced in a number of changes from its original proposals, so it can hardly be said to have been "inflexible" or "frozen" or "locked in" because of its "fair and firm offer." There was "asking and bidding."

What the NLRB has done is manifestly to substitute mind reading for objective evidence in reaching its anti-GE decision. GE's Vice President Virgil Day was properly outraged at the NLRB's condemnation of the "totality" of his company's actions before and during the 1960 negotiations. The board, he says, has based its claim of bad faith in bargaining on a "sort of psychoanalysis of the company's state of mind during . . . negotiations."

It must also have been a "sort of psychoanalysis" that led to the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission's decision against the Motorola Company in a recent "unfair" hiring case. The company had been accused of turning a Negro down for "discriminatory" reasons after giving him a test which the company said he had failed. The company had destroyed the test paper after recording the grade, which would seem to be routine procedure with any organization that does not have unlimited storage facilities. However, because the Negro was able to pass the same test when he took it a second time for the commission, the Motorola Company was inferentially made out to seem a liar. It was ordered to pay $1,000 in damages.

NO PROOF

This, in effect, was judging a company to be guilty simply because it could not prove its innocence. There is hardly a college student in the country who could not pass a test the second time around, so the criterion of success before a second examiner should not be permitted to stand up in court as conclusive proof of ability to pass something the first time. The point is that the Illinois Commission has imputed motives to the Motorola Company without having any objective evidence to sustain its case. Talk about mind reading!

In comparison to GE and Motorola, people who are accused of treason are lucky. No one can be convicted of treason unless the prosecution can produce two credible witnesses to something very palpably overt.

Economic Forecast For 1965

In checking economic predictions for the coming year we have found that many of those who speak with the voice of authority are optimistic.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and others similarly based, predict a GNP (gross national product) of between $656 and $660 billion. This figure is, of course, based on the governmental method of calculation which leaves many things to be desired. Included in the government calculation are such items as government spending and government subsidy, which tend to make the figures employed something other than realistic.

However, the GNP figure is the only one available. And, assuming the rate of inflation does not climb too rapidly, 1965 ought to be a good year, although it may not be as volatile and active in growth as 1964.

One of the major hopes expressed by a number of "experts" is that there will be some extensive cuts in excise taxes. If this materializes, there may be some substantial gain in the profit side of the ledger which will, in turn, stimulate more investment money and enhance our ability to provide jobs for some of the millions of young people in this country who are just now reaching age 18 and are thus actively seeking employment. If this excise tax cut does not occur, we can anticipate an increase in the number of persons out of work.

Some economists are thus hopeful that the government will reduce its taxing efforts by about $6 billion. This would, of course, provide financial stimulation in the market place. But, if the government continues to spend at increasing rates, as seems likely, the federal debt will increase by more than that sum and the effect of the stimulant will largely be lost in devalued dollars.

Certain of the economists who like to make long-range predictions make claims that increased government expenditures are actually good for the market and will serve as well as private spending to enhance our position. There is a morsel of truth in this observation for the market is essentially indifferent to the name of the customer and will respond when money is spent.

But the persistent fact which is not faced by most economists is that expanding government activity enlarges what we call the "public debt." And this debt has to be serviced with interest payments. And to service this debt, increased borrowing must ensue. Increased borrowings lead to inflation and the devaluation of the dollar which invariably occurs as government becomes an ever larger factor in the economic picture.

Our economy is now largely operative around the concept that Uncle Sam is the major financier of the world and certainly of this country. Many men like to gear their efforts to this concept for Uncle Sam is notoriously profligate in his handouts, and government contracts, since they are not checked by normal market place rules and safeguards, have a way of providing for big profits. Many a fortune these days has been made simply by doing business with Uncle.

But the fact still remains that the government has no money of its own. It obtains everything it gets from the taxpayers. And thus, the more the government spends, the more it must take away from those who pay the taxes. Thus, the large profit accruing to a man with a government contract is a profit taken by force and violence from the taxpayers of the country. The major problem, as we see it, and the one most economists are loath to consider, is the speed with which the government is taking over one segment after another of the private productive area.

Gradually the chains are being forged wherein we will all end as puppets of the monster state. If we finally arrive at the place where we will work where the government directs, at a wage the government dictates, according to the hours approved by the government, we will have surrendered our freedom in favor of a giant pater familias.

When this has occurred, our plight in this nation will be the same as the plight of the Russian peasant under Lenin. A voice of disapproval of a government policy will be equated with treason. And slavery and a declining economic system will be the inevitable result.

Time Marches

When you're through making changes, you are through making progress. No moment of time can be grasped and held, however gratifying it might appear to be.

The Free Man and the Slave

We do not know why there should be any misunderstanding concerning the character and condition of a slave. A slave is considered by all and sundry to be a property, owned and controlled by a slave master.

It is important, apparently, to point out that a slave and a prisoner are two entirely different persons whose conditions are not the same. A slave is presumed to be a property owned by another. A prisoner owns himself but is temporarily or permanently restrained by a jailer.

Thus, a prisoner is fundamentally a free man who continues to own himself but whose freedom of action has been curtailed or, in some cases, removed almost totally. But a prisoner, is an owner. He owns himself and can continue to own almost any amount of property while he remains a prisoner.

He does not own himself and he owns nothing else.

Thus, the basic distinction between a slave and a prisoner is the property relationship. A slave is a non-owner and a prisoner is an owner.

It should be underscored that no slave ever fulfills totally the theoretical condition of slavery. This would be contrary to nature. Even the slave must have clothes to wear, food to eat and some kind of shelter from the elements. He often requires medical attention. And many a slave has had a marvelous education and command of extensive knowledge.

So, in a practical sense, the slave does command certain properties. But, in theory, even these properties are entirely at the disposal of the owner of the slave. Thus, a slave owner is presumed to be a person who is rightfully endowed with such power over the slave that he can rightfully remove ALL property from the slave, even his food or clothing, and, if necessary, he can let the slave die, for the slave has no rightful claim on anything at all. Whatever he has, he has through the goodness, the kindness, the benevolence of his master and owner.

John Locke, in his second treatise on government, discusses the slavery condition and observes from history that slaves are usually the product of governmental action on the field of battle. That is, in war, a man may best another on the field of combat, at which point he is in a position to take the life of the man he has conquered. If he spares the life of the man, the man becomes his slave. And, in theory, the slave master is forever thereafter in a rightful position to take the life of the man which he spared as a result of mercy. Thus, anything that the slave is to have in the way of property comes from the slave master and from no other source.

This leads to the condition we have set forth as a propertyless condition for the slave.

But in all practical aspects, there is no purpose in merely owning a slave. The single justification is that the slave becomes an economic unit and will produce for the master. Whatever the slave produces belongs to the master. If the master is to keep his slave producing, the master must permit the slave to have certain essential properties or the slave will die.

Thus, total slavery (total absence of property) is impossible. Take all property away from anyone and he will die. Even the property of his life is forfeit.

What John Locke omitted in his treatise was the observable fact that a government can create a slave through politcal action as well as upon the field of battle. If a government is in a position to decide, without fear of reprisal, that a citizen may keep only the bare essentials for himself, and all else that was produced may be taken by the government, then, in point of fact, the man has become as much a slave as if he had been purchased and a bill of sale rendered.

This is especially the case if the government, in addition, has the power to take the life of the person, or to demand his specific services, with or without recompense. If the person has no right as an owner, either to retain his life or any other property, and if his production is managed by the government so that only that portion of it the government believes he should have is retained by him, then the government has acted to enslave him.

The essential difference between a free man and a slave relates to the question of property ownership.

Two Men Missing With Light Plane

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Spurred on by the sight of a flare, the erratic blink of a tiny light and a radio transmitter's tone, searchers set out to hunt two men feared down in their plane since last Thursday in snow-covered mountains.

Fifty men headed at dawn into the rugged country around Ft. Wilson, 15 miles to the north of Los Angeles, where a civilian pilot spotted an airborne flare just after dusk Friday night.

Searchers are hoping it may have been fired from a signaling pistol which the two men, airmen from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., could have been carrying in the private plane they were flying Thursday.

Ten Army helicopters readied to take off shortly after dawn to join Civil Air Patrol planes in the search for M. Sgt. Gerald A. Henderson, of Rose Hill, N.C. and Airman 2. C. Allen L. Jaeger of Crandon, Wis.

The two belong to an aero club at Edwards, and were flying one of the club's T34 planes, a single engine training model phased out of Air Force service in 1952.

Friday, about 500 men, 75 airplanes and 100 vehicles searched for the missing plane, in which the two men were heading from Edwards toward Pomona.

THE HORIZON HISTORY OF CHRISTIANTY — American Heritage - Roland H. Bainton and Editors—$18.95—432 pages—450 illustrations, 150 in color — This is, without doubt, one of the most ambitious projects, and worth the price every penny. The subtitle to this volume is "The Greatest Single Force in Two Thousand Years of Western Civilization."

It starts out with the statement that "If we would understand Jesus, we must understand the religion in which he was reared, and if we would understand Christianity, we must begin with Judaism, for the one religion is the daughter of the other." And so, the history starts with Abraham.

Not only in respect to price, and the big format of the book, but also in respect of the text and the wealth of illustrations, this is a book ideal as a gift, or for any permanent library of any church member, or anyone interested in the deeper implications of Western civilization.

Christianity is a thing to Christianity is a thing to which icans subscribe, but undoubtedly this volume may fare somea major segment of Amerwhich everybody buys, but few read. For here is presented the colorful, fascinating, somtimes terrifying, always hopeful, historical background of the Christianity which shaped the forces of today's world. Unless, of course, one subscribes to Henry Ford's dictum that "history is bunk," which, indeed may not be as stupid as it sounds, but more of a statement of the actual state of affairs in which "traffic" is the determinant of the modern world, rather than history. But, one should not forget that history, in all of its fascination, has always served mankind as a background for future projections, whether it be divination or planning, and mankind always comes back to history to find its bearings, especially in times of crisis.

Therefore, the publishers state that "all of us, whatever our individual beliefs, belong to a society shaped by the Christian tradition." True, it is a fairly sweeping statement, for it takes into account mainly the world of morality and ethics, and not the secular traditions that came from Greece and Rome, and beyond. But as to the Western attitude towards life, the statement can be taken as being fairly general.

The sweeping survey of the history of Christianity, as presented in the big Horizon volume, is immensely helpful to understand some of the forces still at work today. These are the forces - among others - that are still trying to retain at least a semblance of moral and ethical systems in the face of the greatest power play in the history of man - the one brought about by The Bomb.

There are some 450 illustrations in all, of which 150 are in spectacular color, illustrating the twists and turns of the history of Christian churches.

The publishers state that this is "an extraordinary history, and so indeed it is. And it is more than that - for it does not merely deal with the adversity and defeat of those people who were called Christians — but also "the glory and power," — such as for instance the victories of Charlemagne and the crusaders, who believed (as do various ideologies today) that they can impose their "faith" by the sword. There are also chapters on the "persecution" and "division" within the Christian churches, which has resulted in today's spectrum of various creeds, churches and sects, from 4th Century Arianism to 17th Century Quakerism, and many others, and it comes to a critical point as it faces, what the book calls, the "progressive secularism" of the 20th Century, in which more churches than ever are filled, but ethics and morality are more often assigned to the extinction of the Dodo bird, - even in churches.

"Yet," the publishers state, "in every sphere of Western life and achievement, in our art and literature, our politics and law, our philosophy, we find the enduring legacy of the Christian experience."

The key word in this is "enduring," about which philosophers today, not to say politicians and economists, have their own thoughts. For, today, the world's trend seems to go, regardless of the ideological spectrum, not so much on the lines of ethics and morality, as on the pragmative findings of statistics, and the prescriptions of computers, where the "operation" has taken over the role which formerly used to be ascribed to "conduct."

At any rate, the "Horizon History of Christianity" traces that "long and magnificent heritage," from its roots in the distant Jewish and classical past, to "the ecumenical flowering of our day," or, to use other words, a search by the churches for new unity and strength; a search which at first glance appears salutary, but which could also be interpreted as a retrechment, in which the religionists are seeking to shore up the bastions that are crumbling in the face of assault — not so much perhaps assault by the so-called atheists, but rather in the face of assault what one could all-inclusively and with many overtones call, the "Modern Traffic."

The author of the text is Roland H. Bainton, who until his recent retirement was the professor of ecclesiastical history at Yale University. His previous books included such titles as: A Life of Martin Luther, Early and Medieval Christianity, The Travail of Religious Liberty, The Age of Reformation, and Christian Attitudes Toward War and Peace.

The professorial imprint seems to be well established in his text. The author takes an objective and historical approach with such dispassionate ease that even an athetist would find the text fascinating - in addition to the fine illustrations. At the same time, Bainton takes an avenue which, if not always, then in the main, uses the "official" approach; that is, he deals mainly with the formal history of the Christian churches - or as some ecumenicists today would call it, "The Christian Church." He does pay attention, in passing, to various side issues in the development of Christianity such as ths "side" issues, as the influence of St. Francis, of the mystics, of the Quakers (whose influence is greater than ever admitted in official histories) (or that of the Puritans, whose influence shaped the entire morality of America up to the present century). But to give enough space to various side issues, and to esoteric teachings, would require far more volumes, than even this great one:

What will delight those who do think $18.95 is a modest price for such a beautiful volume, is that the pictures reproduced here represent a selection not only from the great museums, libraries, and churches throughout the world, but also from private collections, rarely visited archives and repositories, and remote archaeological sites. And perhaps it is the pictures, even more than the ithe pictures, even more than th text, for those who under the influence of television today are more than ever visually inclined, which will give a picture of the scope, breadth, and vision of the Horizon History of Christianity.

There are paintings, frescoes, panells, canvases, drawings, sculpture, tapes — try, architecture, coins, ivories, precious metals, jewelry, stained glass, mosaics, woodcuts, engravings and brilliantly illuminated manuscripts. And these pictures are reproduced on every page of the book, which is printed on heavy, slick paper.

The publishers can indeed say that "no single volume to date has spanned so many centuries and schools of art influenced by the Christian experience, with so many color plates."

How did this book come about? The Horizon History of Christianity was published by the American Heritage Publishing Co., Inc., publishers of two distinguished book-magazines, Horizon, which deals with art, and American Heritage, which deals with history. Every year, the company issues a major illustrated history. And the Horizon History of Christianity is the production for the year 1964.

The book is a discussion of the impact of Christianity upon the formation of Western culture - sofar. It seems to admit that there has been a thorough upheaval in the Western world, and what is called Western culture in general, (under the impact of technology, which is not ethical, moral, but merely functional.) The author asks with an unusual candor for an ecclesiastical historian: "What of the future? No man knows. Historical probabilities render it very doubtful that Christianity will ever be the religion of the world. Yet the shadow of the cross is cast across the years, and faith in the Resurrection has quickened myriad hearts. The day may never come when 'every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Christ is Lord of all. Like the Christian himself," says Bainton, "the Church must in faith step forward boldly into darkness, leaving the outcome to God."

And he ends the volume with a discussion of the latest forms of art, as practiced in the architecture and decoration of churches today, with gorgeous illustrations.—JOHN FETLER.

EX-KING

ROME (AP) — Former king Umberto of Italy wished the Italian people a happy new year and called for reinforcement of the country's democratic institutions.

In a new year message made public here, the ex-monarch said his wishes for the reinforcement of democratic institutions in Italy, expressed in previous messages, "have not so far been fulfilled."

Years of Mismanagement Catching Up With Iraq

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BAGHDAD (AP) — Beyond the Euphrates River, a rusty barge lies half buried in sand, miles from the nearest water. Just eight years ago this emptiness was rich farmland and the barge floated on an irrigation canal. The canal has vanished into a desert.

At the southern port of Basra, a towering wheat silo built to store exports now houses grain Iraq must import to feed itself. Near Baghdad, a huge, abandoned agricultural project now supports only six families.

These symbolize the troubles of Iraq, potentially the richest Arab country in the Middle East. Years of mismanagement and political unrest have brought stagnation and instability.

To get Iraq moving, President Abdel Salam Aref — a colonel who promoted himself to field marshal and seized power in 1963 — faces formidable problems he inherited, plus some the regime has created. Aref also must contend with rebellious Kurdish tribes who in the past have threatened to proclaim an independent republic in northern Iraq.

The regime's new five-year plan may speed up Iraq's lagging development. But many Iraqis, beset by rumors of plots and coups, fear Baghdad's chronic unrest could boil into another revolution and set the country back again.

Aref, dedicated to socialism and looking to United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser for support, has pledged progress, reform and unity with Egypt. But the tanks, crimson-uniformed guards and army encampments that surround his headquarters seem to show the uncertainty of the regime's future.

"For the moment things have improved," says one informed resident, recalling regimes that preceded Aref. Constant surveillance by secret police has eased. Iraqis can now travel freely around the country.

Aref last summer monopolized almost half of all the trade in Iraq, took over banks and insurance companies, and nationalized 36 per cent of the country's industry.

Merchants claim sales have fallen by 60 per cent. Executives grumble over what they call government interference and inefficiency. Workers in nationalized factories claim their earnings have been cut despite a government profit-sharing scheme.

Economic experts contend that almost no money has been set aside for development projects, while the government has spent huge but secret amounts for new military equipment, most of it from the Soviet Union. Part of the money reportedly went to replace about 25 jet fighters wrecked in the 1963 revolutions.

The economy holds together on the strength of oil revenues, which are expected to reach more than $335 million when 1964 figures are totaled.

Much of the opposition to Aref s regime centers on its eagerness for union with Egypt in the next two years. President Nasser, his fingers burned by his unsuccessful merger with Syria, appears to be hesitant about joining Iraq, but a unified political command has been formed to coordinate foreign policy, defense, economic and other affairs.

Two Men Missing With Light Plane

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Spurred on by the sight of a flare, the erratic blink of a tiny light and a radio transmitter's tone, searchers set out to hunt two men feared down in their plane since last Thursday in snow-covered mountains.

Fifty men headed at dawn into the rugged country around Ft. Wilson, 15 miles to the north of Los Angeles, where a civilian pilot spotted an airborne flare just after dusk Friday night.

Searchers are hoping it may have been fired from a signaling pistol which the two men, airmen from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., could have been carrying in the private plane they were flying Thursday.

Ten Army helicopters readied to take off shortly after dawn to join Civil Air Patrol planes in the search for M. Sgt. Gerald A. Henderson, of Rose Hill, N.C. and Airman 2. C. Allen L. Jaeger of Crandon, Wis.

The two belong to an aero club at Edwards, and were flying one of the club's T34 planes, a single engine training model phased out of Air Force service in 1952.

Friday, about 500 men, 75 airplanes and 100 vehicles searched for the missing plane, in which the two men were heading from Edwards toward Pomona.

Current Books

John Fetler, Book Editor

THE HORIZON HISTORY OF CHRISTIANTY — American Heritage - Roland H. Bainton and Editors—$18.95—432 pages—450 illustrations, 150 in color — This is, without doubt, one of the most ambitious projects, and worth the price every penny. The subtitle to this volume is "The Greatest Single Force in Two Thousand Years of Western Civilization."

It starts out with the statement that "If we would understand Jesus, we must understand the religion in which he was reared, and if we would understand Christianity, we must begin with Judaism, for the one religion is the daughter of the other." And so, the history starts with Abraham.

Not only in respect to price, and the big format of the book, but also in respect of the text and the wealth of illustrations, this is a book ideal as a gift, or for any permanent library of any church member, or anyone interested in the deeper implications of Western civilization.

Christianity is a thing to Christianity is a thing to which icans subscribe, but undoubtedly this volume may fare somea major segment of Amerwhich everybody buys, but few read. For here is presented the colorful, fascinating, somtimes terrifying, always hopeful, historical background of the Christianity which shaped the forces of today's world. Unless, of course, one subscribes to Henry Ford's dictum that "history is bunk," which, indeed may not be as stupid as it sounds, but more of a statement of the actual state of affairs in which "traffic" is the determinant of the modern world, rather than history. But, one should not forget that history, in all of its fascination, has always served mankind as a background for future projections, whether it be divination or planning, and mankind always comes back to history to find its bearings, especially in times of crisis.

Therefore, the publishers state that "all of us, whatever our individual beliefs, belong to a society shaped by the Christian tradition." True, it is a fairly sweeping statement, for it takes into account mainly the world of morality and ethics, and not the secular traditions that came from Greece and Rome, and beyond. But as to the Western attitude towards life, the statement can be taken as being fairly general.

The sweeping survey of the history of Christianity, as presented in the big Horizon volume, is immensely helpful to understand some of the forces still at work today. These are the forces - among others - that are still trying to retain at least a semblance of moral and ethical systems in the face of the greatest power play in the history of man - the one brought about by The Bomb.

There are some 450 illustrations in all, of which 150 are in spectacular color, illustrating the twists and turns of the history of Christian churches.

The publishers state that this is "an extraordinary history, and so indeed it is. And it is more than that - for it does not merely deal with the adversity and defeat of those people who were called Christians — but also "the glory and power," — such as for instance the victories of Charlemagne and the crusaders, who believed (as do various ideologies today) that they can impose their "faith" by the sword. There are also chapters on the "persecution" and "division" within the Christian churches, which has resulted in today's spectrum of various creeds, churches and sects, from 4th Century Arianism to 17th Century Quakerism, and many others, and it comes to a critical point as it faces, what the book calls, the "progressive secularism" of the 20th Century, in which more churches than ever are filled, but ethics and morality are more often assigned to the extinction of the Dodo bird, - even in churches.

"Yet," the publishers state, "in every sphere of Western life and achievement, in our art and literature, our politics and law, our philosophy, we find the enduring legacy of the Christian experience."

The key word in this is "enduring," about which philosophers today, not to say politicians and economists, have their own thoughts. For, today, the world's trend seems to go, regardless of the ideological spectrum, not so much on the lines of ethics and morality, as on the pragmative findings of statistics, and the prescriptions of computers, where the "operation" has taken over the role which formerly used to be ascribed to "conduct."

At any rate, the "Horizon History of Christianity" traces that "long and magnificent heritage," from its roots in the distant Jewish and classical past, to "the ecumenical flowering of our day," or, to use other words, a search by the churches for new unity and strength; a search which at first glance appears salutary, but which could also be interpreted as a retrechment, in which the religionists are seeking to shore up the bastions that are crumbling in the face of assault — not so much perhaps assault by the so-called atheists, but rather in the face of assault what one could all-inclusively and with many overtones call, the "Modern Traffic."

Federal Tax Tips

By ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative

INCOME AVERAGING: Taxpayers who had an unusually large income in 1964 will find that taxes on their higher earnings may be reduced considerably by the new income averaging provision. This provision of the 1964 tax law treats the qualified extra income of one year as if it had been earned over a five - year period. Since tax rates are progressive, this means a lower tax rate for the higher year's earnings. The income averaging provision should be particularly helpful to persons with sharply fluctuating incomes, such as salesmen, farmers and ranchers, entertainers, writers, professional athletes and many business and professional people may be able to realize important tax savings by using this income averaging provision.

The provision covers most types of income. It includes salaries, commissions, business income, dividends, and interest, among others. The income averaging can be used by a U.S. citizen or resident who is over 25 and who has not been a full-time student during four of his taxable years beginning after he attained age 21.

It can be used by taxpayers under 25 if they have furnished at least one - half their support in all four years prior to the year averaging is desired. To qualify for averaging, income in the current year must be at least one third greater than the average income earned during the last four years. This excess must also exceed $3,000. Under income averaging, income in excess of 133 1-3 per cent of the average earned during the previous four years, will be taxed in an amount equal to five times the tax payable on the first one-fifth of the excess. This procedure results in about the same amount of relief as an actual spreading of excess income over a five year period.

NON-DEDUCTIBLE STATE AND LOCAL TAXES: Some of the taxes previously deductible on Federal income tax returns will not be deductible by individuals under provisions of the 1964 law. In Colorado the auto license and driver fees are no longer deductible. Taxes that are still deductible are real estate and personal property taxes, general sales and certain use taxes, state and local income taxes and gasoline taxes. Also there is no change at all in the taxes that may be deducted on business returns.

Soldier Says Knife Was Thrust at Him

FRANKFURT, Germany — (UPI) — An American soldier from Alpena, S.D., who allegedly ran "amok" in a German restaurant, has claimed a knife he used was thrust into his hands during a fight.

Sp.4 Gary L. Stone of the 2nd Battalion, 64th Armored Division, located in Schweinfurt, told military police the fight began when a German guest at the "Zur Krone" restaurant in the Bavarian village of Oerlenbach attacked him with "a piece of lumber."

"I picked up a piece of lumber, too, but then someone threw me a silver - colored switchblade knife," Stone was quoted as telling military police.

The restaurateur was quoted as saying the fight began shortly after the New Year was rung in.

The fight continued out in a parking lot where Stone allegedly cut one German youth so badly he had to be hospitalized. Later, Stone went back inside the restaurant where he said he remembered being beaten to the floor and the knife taken away from him.

Five of the group which overpowered him in the restaurant were treated for knife wounds.

FILLING UP HAWAII

HONOLULU (AP)—Hawaii as a place to live rather than to visit is becoming more popular.

During the third quarter of 1964, new residents totaled 7,960—a record in the 14 years the statistics have been compiled. During the first nine months of this year, 18,475 people settled permanently in Hawaii.

And the Bureau of Planning and Economic Development notes males outnumbered females by 10 per cent "thus contributing further to Hawaii's surplus of unattached men."

Taxes Break Records In Changes, Collections

Record breaking changes in the ground rules and the first income tax reduction in 10 years combined with the highest ever collection of $112 billions to make 1964 a big federal tax year, says Commerce Clearing House.

Aftr mor thean a year's consideration Congress passed a two-stage income tax rate reduction on February 26. This law also revamped many of the income tax rules and some of these changes will cost taxpayers more money, according to the CCH Annual Federal Tax Review.

Individual tax rates were lowered to range from 16 per cent to 77 per cent for 1964, with a further reduction of from 14 per cent to 70 per cent on 1965 income. While individual taxpayers got more take home pay when the withholding rate dropped from 18 per cent to 14 per cent in March, they may find they owe extra tax to the government because not enough was deducted from this year's paychecks.

The corporate combined rate was reduced to 50 per cent for 1964, and to 48 per cent for next year, from the prior 52 per cent rate. For corporations, however, there is a speedup in current payment of tax, so that by 1970 a corporation will have to pay four current installments of 25 per cent each for tax liabilities over $100,000, according to the CCH review.

While federal tax collections boomed to $112 billions, up $6 billions from the year before, the lower rates are expected to affect revenues for 1954 & 1965. How much will depend on business activity and the economic stimulation provided by the reduction.

Here are the other high spots of the 1964 tax legislation:

—The standard deduction is now the higher of the 10 per cent standard or a new minimum standard which is $200 ($100 for a married taxpayer, filing a separate return) plus an additional $100 for each exemption up to a top of $1,000.

—The dividends-received credit is 2 per cent for 1964 and is repealed for 1965; the dividend exclusion is now $100 ($200 on a joint return).

—Limit on retirement income is $2,286 for a joint return where both spouses are 65 or over but only one qualifies under the earned income test; the tax rate for the credit is 17 per cent for 1964, 15 per cent thereafter.

—State taxes, other than property, income, sales and gasoline taxes, are not deductible unless they qualify as business expenses or expenses for the production of income.

—The 1 per cent of adjusted gross income reduction on medicine and drug expenses for taxpayers 65 or over was removed. Payments for such items for such a taxpayer or his spouse who is 65 or older, and also for dependent parents age 65 or older, are fully deductible.

—An employee may deduct unreimbursed moving expenses incurred in connection with starting work in a new location.

—A controlled corporate group, except for special reasons, may have only one $25,000 surtax exemption. Also the 2 per cent additional tax on consolidated returns has been repealed, according to the CCH review. If a controlled group has only one surtax exemption and either cannot or does not want to file a consolidated return, a 100 per cent dividends-received deduction is allowed for intra-group dividends.

—A controlled group may elect to have each member claim a $25,000 surtax exemption, but each member will have to pay an extra 6 per cent tax on its first $25,000 of taxable income and forfeit the 100 per cent deduction for intra-group dividends received.

—Under the new law, the basis of property eligible for investment credit is not to be reduced by the amount of the credit.

To stop the flow of gold out of the country, Congress passed the Interest Equalization Tax Act imposing a temporary excise tax on the purchase of foreign securities by U. S. citizens. This tax has been collected on transfers made since July 18, 1963 and is scheduled to expire at the end of 1965. Canadian securities are excluded from the tax by Executive Order.

Other legislation included extension of the excise tax rates to July 1, 1965. Changes in the excises are among the actions anticipated for the coming year.

In the course of converting to ADP and coping with the many changes made by the 1964 Revenue law, the Internal Revenue Service had a busy year. Form 1040 was extensively revised. But taxpayers don't have any more room to do their figuring. Two of the more significant changes include listing income from dividends and interest on pages one and two and taking the exemption for children on page one. But the children need no longer be listed by name.

Many taxpayers are affected by changes in the rules resulting from numerous IRS rulings and decisions of the courts—

—A self-employed person or an employee may determine th deductible costs of operating his automobile for business purposes by use of a standard mileage rate of a dime per mile for the first 15,000 miles of business purposes and seven cents per mile for business purposes over 15,000 per year.

—A standard mileage rate of 5 cents a mile has been adopted for transportation costs includable in a medical expense or a charitable contribution deduction.

—A U. S. District Court has no jurisdiction, under the doctrine of sovereign immunity, over a suit by an attorney to restrain the Commissioner from enforcing summonses requiring accountants to produce records and original books of a client of the attorney.

—A bankrupt debtor cannot recover interest paid on delinquent taxes where the interst was paid out of after-acquired assets following a discharge in bankruptcy.

—Taxpayers itemizing their deductions should once again examine the sales tax guidelines, which have been redone for 1964.

Other IRS activity included the approval of 432 master or prototype retirement plans for self-employed individuals which were submitted by banks, insurance companies, regulated investment companies, and trade and professional groups. These master or prototype plans embrace hundreds of individual plans.

Deductions under these approved plans are limited to $1,250 and no more than $2,500 can be contributed annually. Further, all of the self-employed's employees with three or more years of service must be fully covered by the plan, and contributions on their behalf must be fully vested.

Some half million organizations exempt from federal income taxes are being required to furnish factual information to the IRS. Those affected include religious, charitable, educational, civic, labor and similar groups.

Generally, these groups are being asked to supply financial data relating to their gross annual income, expenses attributable to such income, disbursements from such income for exempt purposes, accumulations of income, a balance sheet, and the total of gifts and contributions received during the year.

While dropping some areas as subjects for advance rulings or determination letters, the IRS added others during the year. Among the areas in which the IRS will consider issuing advance rulings are gross income, meals and lodging furnished by an employer, contributions by an employer to health and accident plans, qualified pension, profit-sharing and stock bonus plans, and prohibited transactions.

And the IRS taxpayer numbering program where a taxpayer supplies his social security number on his tax return form made headway through the year with the total of "unnumbered" returns continuing its downward trend.

Not all of the hundreds of court decisions and IRS rulings and regulations concerning federal taxes that were made during the year fell into a normal pattern. Here are some that didn't.

—An appals court upheld the conviction of a taxpayer who had claimed his accountant told him there was a "10-year plan" for paying taxes, and that all the taxpayer had to do was inform IRS he had adopted the plan and he could avoid paying taxes for 10 years. The appeals court said this wasn't so.

—An all-expense-paid tour is no tax-free ride, the IRS ruled. A travel agency furnished an individual a free tour of foreign countries for his efforts in organizing a group of tourists. The fair market value of the tour, however, was held to be includible in income as compensation paid.

Not only that! Expenses incurred by the individual, while acting as the unpaid leader of the tourists, were not deductible as ordinary and necessary business expenses, the IRS said, according to the CCH Annual Federal Tax Review.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Repeat Performance

DEAR ABBY: I just received a letter from my husband in Korea and would like you to know how somehing you wrote in your column over a year ago has helped it keep our marriage a true one. I can best show you by quoting a portion of my husband's letter:

"Do you remember the clipping you sent me from Dear Abby's column when I first got over here? The one about the soldier in Korea who wanted to know what to do about his 'physical needs' while he was overseas? Well, I still carry it and I've read it so many times it is torn to shreds, It has helped to keep me strong, Honey. It's too bad the Army doesn't issue a copy to every man overseas. They could sure save a lot of money on curing V.D. and keep a lot of homes from breaking up."

Would you please print it again, Abby? I want to be sure the one my husband has now doesn't get too worn to read. Thank you. —A GRATEFUL READER

DEAR READER: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one that bothers thousands of other G.I.'s so I hope you will print your answer because it is needed badly. I am a happily married man with a wonderful wife and two small children back in the States. I've been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy man supposed to do for his physical needs? There are 12 women for every G.I. over here, and women practically throw themselves at our feet. Don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my wife and always will, but I have a long hitch over here and I am only human. This letter is sincere, and I am not ashamed to sign my name, but if you use it, please sign me. —"JERSEY"

And my reply

DEAR JERSEY: Assume for a moment that I received the following letter: DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a wonderful husband and two small children. My husband has been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy woman supposed to do for her physical needs? There are plenty of men around, and when they learn that my husband is in Korea they practically throw themselves at my feet. Don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my husband and always will, but he's going to be gone a long time and I am only human.—(signed) JERSEY'S WIFE

Well, Jersey, I would tell that woman to keep as busy as possible with her duties and as many wholesome activities as her time and energy permit. I'd suggest reading, exhausting physical exercise, and yes, even prayer! I'd tell her to stay sober and to avoid temptation, and to write to you every day! And that, Jersey, is my answer to you, and to all your buddies in the same lonesome boat. Sincerely. —ABBY

DEAR ABBY The lady with whom I've been keeping company for two years is a widow and I am a widower. We're both up there in years and have grandchildren. My problem is that she loves to dance. I enjoy dancing once in a while, but I can't take her dancing every night nor can I dance every time the music starts. I don't mind of she dances with other men of they ask my permission to dance with her. She is not that particular. She'll dance with anyone who asks her, whether she knows him or not. She says she doesn't see anything wrong with it. I say it's improper. She says she'd rather dance than eat. Who is right?

—STEADY READER

DEAR READER: Unfortunately, women who would rather dance than eat, do both. Your lady friend shouldn't dance with a man who has not first asked your permission. She appears to be more interested in a dancing partner than anything else. If you want companionship in your twilight years, you've got the wrong partner. Should you fall and break your leg, your friend might take you out and shoot you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "D" in Baton Rouge: If you want to support him, that's YOUR business. But marrying women who will support him appears to be HIS business.

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (UPI) — A young Dutch woman, known only to Wyomingites as Carolien, will arrive in Denver Jan. 11 en route to Thermopolis, Wyo.

Carolien will board a jet airliner at Amsterdam, The Netherlands, early in the day and will arrive in Denver where she has a cousin, Mrs. J. Megchelina Shore.

Carolien has an artificial leg. She was hit by an Allied bombardment during the war and lost her leg. She was fitted with the artificial limb available in her country.

But Mrs. Shore said the limb was so unattractive that Carolien wore pants to hide it.

The story of Carolien's trip to the Gottsche Rehabilitation Center here began when Mrs. Shore read an article by United Press International correspondent Max Jennings telling of the rehabilitation center in this northern Wyoming town.

She wrote Gottsche administrator Jake Poole and asked him if the center could fit Carolien with a limb attractive enough so that she could wear a dress.

But she expressed doubt about whether Carolien's trip could be financed.

Poole's reply took that doubt away. He told her the center could provide her with the leg, and said residents of Thermopolis had begun to make donations to help Carolien.

Thursday, Poole said the community, led by radio station KTHE and station manager Hugh Graham, had contributed $1,138 in cash plus $490 for the cost of her new limb and another $300 for her room and board and a tailored dress, a pair of shoes and a hair-do—all for a person they have never seen.

Poole said airline personnel have promised to greet Carolien when she arrives in New York.

Taxes Break Records In Changes, Collections

Record breaking changes in the ground rules and the first income tax reduction in 10 years combined with the highest ever collection of $112 billions to make 1964 a big federal tax year, says Commerce Clearing House.

Aftr mor thean a year's consideration Congress passed a two-stage income tax rate reduction on February 26. This law also revamped many of the income tax rules and some of these changes will cost taxpayers more money, according to the CCH Annual Federal Tax Review.

Individual tax rates were lowered to range from 16 per cent to 77 per cent for 1964, with a further reduction of from 14 per cent to 70 per cent on 1965 income. While individual taxpayers got more take home pay when the withholding rate dropped from 18 per cent to 14 per cent in March, they may find they owe extra tax to the government because not enough was deducted from this year's paychecks.

The corporate combined rate was reduced to 50 per cent for 1964, and to 48 per cent for next year, from the prior 52 per cent rate. For corporations, however, there is a speedup in current payment of tax, so that by 1970 a corporation will have to pay four current installments of 25 per cent each for tax liabilities over $100,000, according to the CCH review.

While federal tax collections boomed to $112 billions, up $6 billions from the year before, the lower rates are expected to affect revenues for 1954 & 1965. How much will depend on business activity and the economic stimulation provided by the reduction.

Here are the other high spots of the 1964 tax legislation:

—The standard deduction is now the higher of the 10 per cent standard or a new minimum standard which is $200 ($100 for a married taxpayer, filing a separate return) plus an additional $100 for each exemption up to a top of $1,000.

—The dividends-received credit is 2 per cent for 1964 and is repealed for 1965; the dividend exclusion is now $100 ($200 on a joint return).

—Limit on retirement income is $2,286 for a joint return where both spouses are 65 or over but only one qualifies under the earned income test; the tax rate for the credit is 17 per cent for 1964, 15 per cent thereafter.

—State taxes, other than property, income, sales and gasoline taxes, are not deductible unless they qualify as business expenses or expenses for the production of income.

—The 1 per cent of adjusted gross income reduction on medicine and drug expenses for taxpayers 65 or over was removed. Payments for such items for such a taxpayer or his spouse who is 65 or older, and also for dependent parents age 65 or older, are fully deductible.

—An employee may deduct unreimbursed moving expenses incurred in connection with starting work in a new location.

—A controlled corporate group, except for special reasons, may have only one $25,000 surtax exemption. Also the 2 per cent additional tax on consolidated returns has been repealed, according to the CCH review. If a controlled group has only one surtax exemption and either cannot or does not want to file a consolidated return, a 100 per cent dividends-received deduction is allowed for intra-group dividends.

—A controlled group may elect to have each member claim a $25,000 surtax exemption, but each member will have to pay an extra 6 per cent tax on its first $25,000 of taxable income and forfeit the 100 per cent deduction for intra-group dividends received.

—Under the new law, the basis of property eligible for investment credit is not to be reduced by the amount of the credit.

—Any gain on the disposal of depreciable real estate may now be partly subject to ordinary income tax treatment.

To stop the flow of gold out of the country, Congress passed the Interest Equalization Tax Act imposing a temporary excise tax on the purchase of foreign securities by U. S. citizens. This tax has been collected on transfers made since July 18, 1963 and is scheduled to expire at the end of 1965. Canadian securities are excluded from the tax by Executive Order.

Other legislation included extension of the excise tax rates to July 1, 1965. Changes in the excises are among the actions anticipated for the coming year.

In the course of converting to ADP and coping with the many changes made by the 1964 Revenue law, the Internal Revenue Service had a busy year. Form 1040 was extensively revised. But taxpayers don't have any more room to do their figuring. Two of the more significant changes include listing income from dividends and interest on pages one and two and taking the exemption for children on page one. But the children need no longer be listed by name.

Many taxpayers are affected by changes in the rules resulting from numerous IRS rulings and decisions of the courts—

—A self-employed person or an employee may determine th deductible costs of operating his automobile for business purposes by use of a standard mileage rate of a dime per mile for the first 15,000 miles of business purposes and seven cents per mile for business purposes over 15,000 per year.

—A standard mileage rate of 5 cents a mile has been adopted for transportation costs includable in a medical expense or a charitable contribution deduction.

—A U. S. District Court has no jurisdiction, under the doctrine of sovereign immunity, over a suit by an attorney to restrain the Commissioner from enforcing summonses requiring accountants to produce records and original books of a client of the attorney.

—A bankrupt debtor cannot recover interest paid on delinquent taxes where the interst was paid out of after-acquired assets following a discharge in bankruptcy.

—Taxpayers itemizing their deductions should once again examine the sales tax guidelines, which have been redone for 1964.

Other IRS activity included the approval of 432 master or prototype retirement plans for self-employed individuals which were submitted by banks, insurance companies, regulated investment companies, and trade and professional groups. These master or prototype plans embrace hundreds of individual plans.

Deductions under these approved plans are limited to $1,250 and no more than $2,500 can be contributed annually. Further, all of the self-employed's employees with three or more years of service must be fully covered by the plan, and contributions on their behalf must be fully vested.

Some half million organizations exempt from federal income taxes are being required to furnish factual information to the IRS. Those affected include religious, charitable, educational, civic, labor and similar groups.

Generally, these groups are being asked to supply financial data relating to their gross annual income, expenses attributable to such income, disbursements from such income for exempt purposes, accumulations of income, a balance sheet, and the total of gifts and contributions received during the year.

While dropping some areas as subjects for advance rulings or determination letters, the IRS added others during the year. Among the areas in which the IRS will consider issuing advance rulings are gross income, meals and lodging furnished by an employer, contributions by an employer to health and accident plans, qualified pension, profit-sharing and stock bonus plans, and prohibited transactions.

And the IRS taxpayer numbering program where a taxpayer supplies his social security number on his tax return form made headway through the year with the total of "unnumbered" returns continuing its downward trend.

Not all of the hundreds of court decisions and IRS rulings and regulations concerning federal taxes that were made during the year fell into a normal pattern. Here are some that didn't.

—An appals court upheld the conviction of a taxpayer who had claimed his accountant told him there was a "10-year plan" for paying taxes, and that all the taxpayer had to do was inform IRS he had adopted the plan and he could avoid paying taxes for 10 years. The appeals court said this wasn't so.

—An all-expense-paid tour is no tax-free ride, the IRS ruled. A travel agency furnished an individual a free tour of foreign countries for his efforts in organizing a group of tourists. The fair market value of the tour, however, was held to be includible in income as compensation paid.

Not only that! Expenses incurred by the individual, while acting as the unpaid leader of the tourists, were not deductible as ordinary and necessary business expenses, the IRS said, according to the CCH Annual Federal Tax Review.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Repeat Performance

DEAR ABBY: I just received a letter from my husband in Korea and would like you to know how somehing you wrote in your column over a year ago has helped it keep our marriage a true one. I can best show you by quoting a portion of my husband's letter:

"Do you remember the clipping you sent me from Dear Abby's column when I first got over here? The one about the soldier in Korea who wanted to know what to do about his 'physical needs' while he was overseas? Well, I still carry it and I've read it so many times it is torn to shreds, it has helped to keep me strong, Honey. It's too bad the Army doesn't issue a copy to every man overseas. They could sure save a lot of money on curing V.D. and keep a lot of homes from breaking up."

Would you please print it again, Abby? I want to be sure the one my husband has now doesn't get too worn to read. Thank you. —A GRATEFUL READER

DEAR READER: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one that bothers thousands of other G.I.'s so I hope you will print your answer because it is needed badly. I am a happily married man with a wonderful wife and two small children back in the States. I've been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy man supposed to do for his physical needs? There are 12 women for every G.I. over here, and women practically throw themselves at our feet. Don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my wife and always will, but I have a long hitch over here and I am only human. This letter is sincere, and I am not ashamed to sign my name, but if you use it, please sign me. —"JERSEY"

And my reply

DEAR JERSEY: Assume for a moment that I received the following letter: DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a wonderful husband and two small children. My husband has been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy woman supposed to do for her physical needs? There are plenty of men around, and when they learn that my husband is in Korea they practically throw themselves at my feet. Don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my husband and always will, but he's going to be gone a long time and I am only human.—(signed) JERSEY'S WIFE

Well, Jersey, I would tell that woman to keep as busy as possible with her duties and as many wholesome activities as her time and energy permit. I'd suggest reading, exhausting physical exercise, and yes, even prayer! I'd tell her to stay sober and to avoid temptation, and to write to you every day! And that, Jersey, is my answer to you, and to all your buddies in the same lonesome boat. Sincerely. —ABBY

DEAR ABBY The lady with whom I've been keeping company for two years is a widow and I am a widower. We're both up there in years and have grandchildren. My problem is that she loves to dance. I enjoy dancing once in a while, but I can't take her dancing every night nor can I dance every time the music starts. I don't mind of she dances with other men of they ask my permission to dance with her. She is not that particular. She'll dance with anyone who asks her, whether she knows him or not. She says she doesn't see anything wrong with it. I say it's improper. She says she'd rather dance than eat. Who is right?

—STEADY READER

DEAR READER: Unfortunately, women who would rather dance than eat, do both. Your lady friend shouldn't dance with a man who has not first asked your permission. She appears to be more interested in a dancing partner than anything else. If you want companionship in your twilight years, you've got the wrong partner. Should you fall and break your leg, your friend might take you out and shoot you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "D" in Baton Rouge: If you want to support him, that's YOUR business. But marrying women who will support him appears to be HIS business.

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (UPI) — A young Dutch woman, known only to Wyomingites as Carolien, will arrive in Denver Jan. 11 en route to Thermopolis, Wyo.

Carolien will board a jet airliner at Amsterdam, The Netherlands, early in the day and will arrive in Denver where she has a cousin, Mrs. J. Megchelina Shore.

Carolien has an artificial leg. She was hit by an Allied bombardment during the war and lost her leg. She was fitted with the artificial limb available in her country.

But Mrs. Shore said the limb was so unattractive that Carolien wore pants to hide it.

The story of Carolien's trip to the Gottsche Rehabilitation Center here began when Mrs. Shore read an article by United Press International correspondent Max Jennings telling of the rehabilitation center in this northern Wyoming town.

She wrote Gottsche administrator Jake Poole and asked him if the center could fit Carolien with a limb attractive enough so that she could wear a dress.

"Guessing from the picture," her letter said, "it would be possible to wear normal dresses with your kind of leg."

But she expressed doubt about whether Carolien's trip could be financed.

Poole's reply took that doubt away. He told her the center could provide her with the leg, and said residents of Thermopolis had begun to make donations to help Carolien.

Thursday, Poole said the community, led by radio station KTHE and station manager Hugh Graham, had contributed $1,138 in cash plus $490 for the cost of her new limb and another $200 for her room and board and a tailored dress, a pair of shoes and a hair-do—all for a person they have never seen.

Poole said airline personnel have promised to greet Carolien when she arrives in New York.

All - Girl Ketch Gets To Melbourne Port

HOBART, Australia (AP) — Lee Quinn's 45-foot ketch Neophyte and its all-girl crew arrived in Hobart Saturday from Sydney to complete another leg of its Pacific cruise.

The ketch, skippered by Quinn, 37, of San Francisco, left the United States two years ago. It has been to Honolulu, Tahiti and New Zealand. Quinn has said he may eventually go around the world.

Two of the three Australian girls with Quinn have been with the Neophyte six months and the other two months. A fourth girl, Barbara Sodt, of Chicago, had been with the ketch 10 months but she left in Sydney.
